The second snow and ice storm in 10 days swept into the state, cutting off electricity to 1.5 million homes and businesses.

The city department of traffic control said a "minor" snowstorm that night failed to accumulate enough snow to impact traffic.

Dr. Charles F. Fisher, who underwent a heart operation last week, is expected to return to work Monday with a light schedule.

The Oklahoma nursery outbreak, projected to be sizable, continues to expand.

The Oklahoma Department of Transportation has announced that a new road will be opened to the public Monday.

The JOANN'S Thursday paper was sold.

The store is located on the south side of the city.

Legislators To Seek Curbs On Pyramid Selling Firms

The House and Senate have been told by the Federal Trade Commission and state banking officials that they plan to investigate the practices of pyramid selling firms. The FTC has been investigating the practices of several firms, including the now-defunct World Marketing, Inc., and has filed suits against a number of them.

The House and Senate have been told that the FTC has found that pyramid selling firms operate by recruiting new members to sell the products of the firm, and then using these new members to recruit more members. The FTC has also found that pyramid selling firms use misleading advertising and false promises to attract new members.

The FTC has filed suits against a number of pyramid selling firms, including World Marketing, Inc., and has obtained judgments against them. The FTC has also obtained judgments against several banks that have been involved in the pyramid selling schemes.

The House and Senate have been told that they will hold hearings on the issue of pyramid selling in the near future.
