Publishers Declare Hughes Book Fraud

NEW YORK — Just in time for the annual Times Square Soccer Ball Drop, New York publisher Time-Life for the second time in two years has declared that Howard Hughes's book was a fraud.

The company's announcement on Monday also gave the book a new title: "The Real Howard Hughes: The Man Behind the Myth".

The book, written by author and Hughes biographer James Phelan, Los Angeles Times writer Phelan, who said he didn't know he'd written it, is now available for pre-order and will be available for pre-order on May 31st.

"Howard Hughes was a figure of mystery and intrigue," said Phelan, "but the truth is, he was just a guy who wrote a lot of words in a hurry and then died."
Inmates Earn 'Dollars' Toward Parole—but There's a Catch

This is the 12th in a series of stories in America.

Inmates Earn 'Dollars' Toward Parole...but There's a Catch...

The Oklahoma State Penitentiary, in McAlester, Oklahoma, is a place where inmates are expected to work hard and earn their way to freedom through good behavior. It's a place where time is money, and every day counts. And every dollar counts too.

Inmates are assigned to different work gangs, and they're expected to work hard and earn their way to freedom. But there's a catch...a catch that no one tells you about.

The catch is that the money they earn isn't theirs to keep. It's turned over to the state of Oklahoma, and they're not allowed to keep any of it. Inmates are told that the money they earn will be subtracted from their sentence, and they're not allowed to keep any of it.

Inmates are told that the money they earn is not for them, but for the state of Oklahoma. They're told that the money they earn is to be subtracted from their sentence, and they're not allowed to keep any of it.

Inmates are told that the money they earn is not for them, but for the state of Oklahoma. They're told that the money they earn is to be subtracted from their sentence, and they're not allowed to keep any of it.

Religious Week Set

The former Methodist leader is bringing a new perspective to the 'ecumenical' city church. He believes in unity among all denominations, focusing on common goals rather than divisions. His approach is gaining attention from both traditional and progressive churchgoers.

State Could Lose Funds

The state is facing potential cuts to its funding for education, healthcare, and infrastructure. The decision was made due to the ongoing budget crisis, which has forced the state to prioritize essential services. The funds will be reallocated to other critical areas, affecting the state's overall financial stability.

Damages Awarded In Pyramid Suit

In a recent court decision, a group of investors was awarded damages for losses incurred due to a pyramid scheme. The case highlights the importance of regulatory oversight in financial transactions to prevent such fraudulent activities.

City Begins Negotiations With Police

The city is initiating negotiations with the police department to improve community relations and enhance public safety. The discussions aim to address concerns and develop strategies for a safer and more inclusive environment.

Church roundup: Open House Slated

The church is planning an open house to welcome new members and visitors. The event will feature a variety of activities, including tours of the sanctuary, worship services, and social gatherings, providing an opportunity for people to connect and learn more about the church's mission.

Baptist Boys Plan 2-Day Tulsa Meet

The Baptist boys are organizing a two-day event in Tulsa, focusing on fellowship, education, and community service. The gathering will provide a platform for personal growth and networking within the Baptist community.

Words With Immortal Echo

It seems to be a law of conversation that when a man begins to talk about the weather he must also have at hand a bottle of water. In this case, the bottle must be a Gatorade.

Some people believe that the weather is a topic suitable for conversation only during extreme conditions, such as a heat wave or a snowstorm. Others argue that the weather is a constant topic of conversation, regardless of the season.

In any case, the bottle of water is not a necessary component of the conversation, but it is a useful one in the summer months when the temperature can soar. The bottle of water serves as a reminder to stay hydrated and avoid the risk of heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

The PEOPLE'S Voice

Sunday Clothing

Sunday clothing, once a staple of American fashion, has become less prevalent in recent years. However, there are still many who enjoy dressing up for Sunday services or other religious occasions.

For some, the act of putting on a new outfit on Sunday is a way to express their faith and connect with their community. Others find the tradition of wearing Sunday clothing a way to separate their weekend attire from their everyday attire.

In any case, the act of dressing up for Sunday services is a way to show respect for the day and the occasion.
