Oklahoma City would stand to benefit a great deal if the $8 million bond issue to finance school construction is adopted by the school board of the state's largest metropolitan area.

Home Office Building, planned by the Oklahoma City School Board, is a project of projects that Oklahoma City could be proud of.

Here are the Sewarson Exemplary and Junior Exemplary.

The school has been built mainly to meet the needs of the city's growing population. It is a modern, efficient facility that will be a showcase for what new construction in Oklahoma City can be.

Pension Measure Defended

by David Prager

The Pension Measure Defense Committee is appealing recent decisions by the California Supreme Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals that disallowed the use of the California Minimum Wage Act in the federal courts. The group, which includes the California Labor Federation and the California Teachers Association, has filed a petition with the U.S. Supreme Court seeking to have the decisions overturned.

In a brief filed with the court, the group argued that the decisions run counter to a long-standing policy of the Supreme Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals that federal courts should not rely on state laws to resolve disputes involving federal labor law.

The group said the decisions will have a negative impact on the rights of workers in California and that the Supreme Court should grant the petition.

Toward Accountable Government

A state's trust has inspired a growing number of citizens to become more concerned about their government and its leaders. The General Assembly in the past few months has shown increased interest in creating legislation to reform the current system of government. This is a step in the right direction.

The people of Oklahoma have a duty to hold their representatives accountable and ask for better representation. The government should be transparent in its decision-making processes and open to public feedback. The General Assembly has the responsibility to prioritize the needs of the people and make decisions that benefit the state as a whole.

Ethics Have Vanished In College Basketball?

Spencer Resident Devotes Full Time To Counsel Neighborhood Children

A Spencer man has always been known to do things a little differently. Jim Smith, a retired school teacher, now spends his days running a counseling center in the heart of the neighborhood. "I always knew I wanted to help others, but it wasn't until I retired that I could really focus on it," Smith said.

"We have a variety of programs here, everything from after-school activities to adult therapy sessions. We're doing some innovative things to help kids and their families.

"I've been here for a year now and I've seen so much progress. It's been incredibly rewarding."
