Federal Health Limits Urged

In NASHVILLE, Tennessee, legislation on government health plans was defeated today by a narrow margin, according to the Nashville Democrat. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., would have established a federal health plan for all Americans.

The bill, which was introduced in the Senate last week, would have provided health care for all Americans through a single-payer system. The bill would have been funded by a federal sales tax and a payroll tax on employers.

The bill died by a vote of 51-49. The vote was along party lines, with all Republicans voting yes and all Democrats voting no.

"This is a victory for all Americans," said Sen. Cochran. "We have finally put an end to the debate on health care reform."

"We need a federal health plan," said Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass. "We need a plan that works for all Americans, and this bill was the best we could do.

"We will continue to fight for a federal health plan," said Sen. Kennedy. "We will not give up on this issue."

President Bush has expressed his support for a federal health plan. He said in a statement today that he believes a federal health plan is the best way to ensure that all Americans have access to health care.

"I support a federal health plan," said President Bush. "It is the only way to ensure that all Americans have access to health care.

The vote today was a major victory for the health care reform movement. The bill was supported by a wide range of groups, including the National Federation of Independent Business, the American Medical Association, and the National Association of Manufacturers.

The bill was opposed by a number of groups, including the National Rifle Association, the American Family Association, and the Family Research Council.

"This is a victory for all Americans," said Sen. Cochran. "We have finally put an end to the debate on health care reform."
