A number of state and government agencies have been working against the crime of dope and gambling for many years, and their efforts have been fruitful. However, there is still much to be done in this area.

The people of Oklahoma have a right to expect that their government will do everything in its power to prevent the spread of these undesirable practices. We believe that the state should devote additional resources to the fight against dope and gambling.

Hair Suit Rejected By Judge

Business Briefs

By Nancy Lewis

In a surprising move, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has overturned a lower court's decision and dismissed a lawsuit brought by hairdresser Michael Jackson. The case, which had been closely watched by legal experts and the public, centered on the issue of whether hairdressers are entitled to the same protection under the law as other workers.

Jackson claimed that he had been discriminated against by his employer, a national hair care company, because of his race. He sought monetary damages and an injunction prohibiting future discrimination.

However, the appeals court ruled that hairdressers do not fall within the scope of the civil rights laws that protect workers from discrimination.

The decision is likely to have far-reaching implications for the hair care industry and the broader civil rights landscape.
