Talk Back TV Operation To Start In Fall At CSU

A small group of students are at work building a 15-engine television tower on the CSU campus to be used in a future television operation.

The tower will be completed by September 1, according to Mike Statler, coordinator for the new television station.

The tower will have six identical antennas and will be used to relay television pictures from the tower to the television stations in Oklahoma City and Lawton.

The students are doing the work themselves, Statler said.

A group of students are working on the tower, and the work is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

The tower will be used to broadcast television pictures from a number of different locations around the state.

Statler said the tower will be used to broadcast pictures from the Oklahoma City area, the Lawton area, and from a number of other locations around the state.

The tower will be used to broadcast pictures from a number of different daytime shows and special events.
