In what appears to be a final move to resolve a long-running dispute over the use of trust funds at the Veterans Medical Center, the Department of Veterans Affairs has announced it will ask Congress for legislation to allow the use of such funds.

The department had previously said it would seek legislation to allow the use of trust funds to help pay for medical care at the center, but it has now decided to drop that option.

The move comes after a long legal battle between the VA and the Department of Health and Human Services over the use of trust funds.

The VA has argued that it needs the funds to help pay for medical care at the center, while the HHS has said the funds should be used to help pay for other purposes, such as education and training.

The legislation will likely be introduced in Congress in the near future, according to the VA.

In a further development in the dispute over the use of trust funds, the Department of Veterans Affairs has announced it will file a lawsuit against the Department of Health and Human Services to seek the use of trust funds to help pay for medical care at the center.

The lawsuit, which was filed in federal court, seeks to overturn a decision by the HHS that prohibits the VA from using trust funds to help pay for medical care at the center.

The VA has argued that it needs the funds to help pay for medical care at the center, while the HHS has said the funds should be used to help pay for other purposes, such as education and training.

The lawsuit is expected to be heard in federal court in the coming months.

Jury Indicts Vietnam Vets

Atlanta (UPI) — A federal judge Friday sentenced five veterans of the Vietnam War to federal prison terms for participating in a 1971 anti-war protest at the apartment house of Army Secretary John D. Negley.

The veterans, who were sentenced to terms of one to three years, were among those arrested during the protest, which was organized by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) to draw attention to the Vietnam War.

Two Astronaut-Scientists Quit

Washington (UP) — Space scientist Eugene Shoemaker resigned from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and astronomer Martin Pinto announced his retirement from the Space Science Division of the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, in two major resignations announced here Thursday.

Shoemaker has been a leader in the field of planetary science, focusing on the study of meteorites and their origin. He served as director of the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center and was a key figure in the development of the Voyager spacecraft.

Pinto, a co-founder of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), was the director of the Laboratory from 1962 to 1972. He played a crucial role in the development of NASA's planetary mission programs, including the Viking, Mariner, and Voyager missions.

Ellsberg Defense Loses Motion

Los Angeles (AP) — The judge in the Pentagon Papers case here Friday denied a motion by the defense to exclude further secret data about the military service of former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. The defense had sought to introduce such data to support the argument that McNamara was not competent to serve as secretary of defense.

Pioneer 10 Flies Into Asteroids

Washington (UPI) — Pioneer 10, the first American spacecraft to explore the solar system beyond the boundary of the inner planets, has successfully flown through the asteroid belt, a region of space filled with thousands of asteroids.

The spacecraft, launched in 1972, has traveled over 4.8 billion miles since its launch and has already encountered several asteroids. Its journey continues as it heads toward the Oort Cloud, a vast icy sphere that contains most of the solar system's comets.

Kansas City, State Crime Link Probed

Kansas City (AP) — The Kansas City Police Department is investigating a series of bank robberies and other crimes that have occurred in the city, and they believe they may be linked to the same suspect.

Police have been working closely with federal authorities, including the FBI, in an effort to solve these crimes. The investigation is ongoing, and no arrests have been made.

Pat Flies To Ill Julie's Bedside

Cleveleand (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon visited the bedside of her ill daughter, Julie, at her Cleveland hospital Thursday.

Julie, 15, was admitted to the hospital earlier in the week for treatment of a chronic illness. The first lady spent several hours with her daughter, and they were later joined by Vice President Spiro Agnew.

TWA Ordered To Pay $87,000 Fine

Washington (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today fined TWA $87,000 for violating the antitrust laws.

The commission found that TWA had engaged in a series of anticompetitive practices, including predatory pricing and coercive pricing, that had the effect of restraining competition in the airline industry.

Judge Requires Married Name Use

Albuquerque (AP) — A New Mexico judge today ordered a married woman to use her husband's last name in all public documents.

The woman, who had been using her maiden name in all official records, was ordered to change her name by a New Mexico court.

Wallace Eyed For Third Party

Edison, N.J. (UPI) — Wallace F. Smith, former three-term mayor of Edison, N.J., was charged with violating state election law.

Smith is accused of accepting $1,000 from a local labor union to influence an election.

Support Withheld

Dallas (AP) — A Dallas city councilman, who had been supporting a progressive city plan, decided Friday he no longer would vote for the plan because of a change in the city's leadership.

The councilman, who had been a key supporter of the plan, said he no longer believed the city council was capable of making sound decisions.

Activism Promised

Houston (AP) — A Houston activist group, which has been active in the city for several years, promised Friday to continue its work in the future.

The group, which has been involved in a number of local issues, said it would continue to work to improve the city's quality of life.
