Ed Ripped By Nesbitt

By STEVE NESBITT

Charles Herschel Beckett, former radio manager for WABC, died last week at his home in New York City. He was 72 years old.

Beckett was born in New York City and had worked for WABC for over 40 years. He was known for his energetic and dynamic personality, which he brought to every aspect of his work.

In addition to his work at WABC, Beckett also served as the host of several popular radio shows, including "The Beckett Report" and "The Beckett Variety Show." He was a well-respected figure in the radio industry and was widely known for his ability to connect with his audience.

Beckett is survived by his wife, Estelle, and two children, Susan Beckett and Charles Beckett Jr.

Hopes Dim For 9 Trapped Miners

The search for nine coal miners trapped in a West Virginia mine has ended in tragedy. The miners had been trapped for over three days and were eventually pronounced dead by rescue workers.

The miners had been working in a mine that had been declared safe by the government, but it appears that the mine was not properly ventilated. The miners had been trapped by a cave-in and were unable to escape.

The search for the miners had been assisted by teams of rescue workers and engineers, who worked tirelessly to locate the miners and bring them to safety.

The news of the miners’ deaths has been met with shock and grief by the community and the mining industry as a whole.

Parole Board Action Unusual

Lie Test Asked For Inmate

The Parole Board of Oklahoma has requested that a lie detector test be administered to an inmate who is facing a parole hearing.

The inmate is accused of committing a crime while on parole, and the Parole Board has requested that a lie detector test be administered to help determine whether the inmate is telling the truth.

The inmate has been on parole for several years and has been accused of committing a crime while on parole.

The request for a lie detector test is unusual, as the Parole Board typically relies on other evidence to determine whether an inmate is telling the truth.

The inmate has been given the option to take the lie detector test, but it is not clear whether he will take the test.

Nixon To Meet Tanaka

Japan Talks Slated

President Nixon will meet with Prime Minister Tanaka of Japan on Tuesday, according to a White House announcement.

The meeting is expected to focus on a range of issues, including trade relations, security, and the Korean peninsula.

Tanaka is a long-time friend of Nixon’s, and the two leaders are expected to have a warm and productive meeting.

The meeting comes as Japan and the United States work to strengthen their alliance and improve their economic ties.

Tulsa Killed In Crash Of Old Biplane

The pilot and co-pilot of a small airplane crashed in a residential area in Tulsa, Oklahoma, killing both of them.

The plane was a small biplane that had been used for recreational flights. The crash occurred during a flight over the city, and it is not clear what caused the plane to crash.

The crash has sparked an investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), which will determine the cause of the crash and make recommendations for preventing similar accidents in the future.

The crash has also prompted calls for increased safety measures for small airplanes, particularly those used for recreational purposes.

Fischer Wins In 41 Moves

Bobby Fischer, one of the world’s top chess players, defeated his opponent in an intense game that lasted for over 40 moves.

Fischer, who is known for his aggressive playing style, was able to outplay his opponent and win the game in a display of skill and strategy.

The game was played in a tournament in Reykjavik, Iceland, and it was watched by chess enthusiasts from around the world.

Fischer is considered one of the greatest chess players of all time, and his victories in tournaments and matches have solidified his place in the history of the game.

High Court Relieves Reporters Of Most Painful Assignment

By ALBERTO ROBLES

The United States Supreme Court has granted a petition by four news organizations to relieve them of the most painful assignment a reporter could face: interviewing a dying man. The court ruled that the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution protects the right of such groups to seek an interview with a terminally ill man, in this case a terminally ill man.

The court said that the Fourteenth Amendment, which guarantees all citizens equal protection under the law, requires that all news organizations be given equal protection when it comes to seeking interviews with terminally ill men.

The four news organizations had sought to interview a terminally ill man, but had been denied the right to do so by a local hospital. The hospital said that it did not have the resources to accommodate the news organizations.

The court disagreed, saying that the Fourteenth Amendment requires that all news organizations be given equal protection when it comes to seeking interviews with terminally ill men.

The court ruled that the hospital had violated the Fourteenth Amendment by denying the news organizations the right to interview the terminally ill man.

The court said that the hospital had violated the Fourteenth Amendment by denying the news organizations the right to interview the terminally ill man.

WOMEN'S EDITOR

her fashion reports
tell both sides

Elviretta Walker sees fashion as a reflection of contemporary life—not just high fashion models and expensive gowns, but what women are wearing at work, shopping centers, social gatherings, even rock concerts.

She believes a fashion editor should not attempt to be an arbiter of style. Instead, she tells readers about everything new and interesting in fashion, interviews working girls, housewives, and celebrities to find out what styles appeal to them, and why.

Elviretta’s contemporary and sparkling fashion reporting is another reason why readers call The Oklahoma Journal “The Bright One,” and another reason why The Oklahoma Journal is Oklahoma’s fastest growing morning and Sunday newspaper.

Hopes Denied By Connolly

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connolly, who is now a member of the National Foreign Policy Council, would say he has no chance now of winning the presidency of the United States. But Connolly, a Democrat, in his resignation speech in the Senate last week, said, "I never predicted I would be the Democratic candidate or that I would be the Democratic vice presidential candidate."

"I am not the presidential candidate of the party," Connolly said. "I am the vice presidential candidate of the party."

Connolly, a liberal Democrat who is widely regarded as a possible running mate for President John F. Kennedy, is running as the party's nominee for the vice presidency in the 1964 election.
