A Giant Step Forward

By ROBERT HELBURN

Neil Diamond, who has been a favorite of mine for years, has released his latest album, "Moods," and it is a giant step forward in his career.

The album features a variety of musical styles, including ballads, rock, and pop, and it showcases Diamond's versatile voice and songwriting abilities.

Personally, I think this album is a significant departure from his past work, and it will definitely appeal to fans of all ages.

I highly recommend checking it out!

Smokey Robinson Closes An Era

By RICHARD E. PRINCE

WASHINGTON — On May 15, Smokey Robinson, the consummate performer, artist, and songwriter, stood on stage at the Kennedy Center, his final performance with the Miracles, and he knew it was time. The crowd roared, and he responded with a smile, bowing and waving as he walked offstage. It was a bittersweet moment, as Smokey had been with the Miracles for over 50 years, and he was ready to begin a new chapter in his life.

Smokey Robinson was born in Detroit in 1942. He grew up in a rough neighborhood, and music was his escape. He formed a band with some friends, and they started playing around town, gaining a following. In 1959, they signed with Motown Records, and Smokey became a household name.

Over the years, Smokey and the Miracles released hits like "Shop Around," "I Second It to You," and "The Tracks of My Tears." He was known for his soulful vocals and infectious rhythm and blues sound.

But Smokey was more than just a singer. He was also a songwriter, and he wrote many of the Miracles' biggest hits. He was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987, and his music continues to inspire generations.

As Smokey stepped offstage that night, he knew it was the end of an era. But he also knew that his legacy would live on through his music. "It's been a helluva ride," he said. "I've been blessed."

The Why Of PBS Veto

By JOHN CARMODY

WASHINGTON -- The battle over the fate of the Public Broadcasting System -- and its $450 million annual subsidy -- raged across America this week on many fronts. The House of Representatives passed a bill that would cut the PBO's budget by more than 10 percent, while the Senate approved a measure that would have eliminated the entire subsidy. A third bill, which would have ended federal funding for public television but provided $25 million in grants to the system, was defeated in the Senate.

In Washington, the debate was closely watched by lawmakers from both parties. The House vote came after more than a year of hearings and hearings and hearings, during which Congress was told that the system was vital to the nation's cultural life.

The Senate vote was expected to be more decisive, since the PBO is a favorite of many senators. But even as the Senate considered the measure, it was clear that the issue was not yet settled.

The question of whether the PBO should continue to receive public support is one of the most important issues facing the nation today. The system has served a vital role in educating Americans about the arts and sciences, but many fear that it is too expensive and outdated to continue.

Second of Two Parts

These concerns were perhaps best stated during the Senate hearings on the issue, which were held in June and July. The senators were told that the system was not only outdated but also inefficient, with too many employees and too little programming.

The senators were also told that the PBO was not capable of reaching all Americans, and that it was not always able to provide quality programming.

The debate over the PBO is likely to continue for some time, as both the House and Senate consider further measures. But the PBO is not alone in its struggle for survival. Many other public service organizations are facing similar challenges.

We hope that the Senate will consider the needs of the PBO and of all public service organizations, and that it will work to ensure that they have the resources they need to continue to serve the nation.

It's Promises, Promises Again On New TV Season

By LAWRENCE LAURENCE

WASHINGTON -- Promises, promises. Most TV watchers are used to hearing them every fall, as networks announce their new schedules. This year, however, the promises are even more hollow.

Networks have been forced to develop new series in a hurry, and many are relying on old-fashioned Talk shows for their basic premises. In addition, the networks' financial situation has been further complicated by the current economic climate.

The networks' promises are particularly hollow because they have been making them in the face of a growing number of threats. The cable industry, for example, is increasingly becoming a factor in the television landscape, and the networks are not immune to the challenges posed by Internet video.

It is anyone's guess how the networks' promises will play out. But it is clear that the future of television is changing, and that the networks must adapt to the new environment if they are to survive.

The networks' promises are also a reminder of the importance of good programming. As more and more viewers turn to other sources for their entertainment, the networks must work harder than ever to create programs that will capture their attention.

In the end, the networks' promises are likely to be just that: promises. But they are still worth listening to, because they may offer some insight into the future of television.

Has TV Come Of Age?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — In the day when I Love Lucy, Milton Berle and Mr. Ed ruled the roost in TV Land, network executives would have blushed if the mere thought crossed their minds that they could one day challenge the Gross National Product.

But now, in the era of the home video game, the computer and the Internet, the industry is on the verge of a new era of growth.

The industry has grown from a small operation to a major player in the global economy, with companies like Netflix and Amazon leading the way.

In addition to the growth in the industry, there has also been a shift towards more diversity in programming.

There are now shows that cater to a wide range of audiences, including LGBTQ+ communities and people of color.

The shift towards diversity has been driven by the need to attract a wider audience, as well as a desire to reflect the changing demographics of the United States.

Despite the challenges, the industry continues to thrive and innovate, with new technologies and business models constantly changing the landscape.

It will be interesting to see how the industry evolves in the years to come, and how it continues to shape the way we consume media.

RANKINGS

1. Netflix
2. Amazon
3. Hulu
4. Disney+
5. HBO Max

The list is based on the number of subscribers, with Netflix currently leading the pack with over 200 million subscribers worldwide.

With the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the industry has seen a surge in interest in streaming services, with many people turning to them for entertainment.

As the industry continues to grow, it will be important to ensure that it remains accessible to everyone, regardless of their background or socio-economic status.

Lyric Actress Finds Musicals Fun

by STEVE DURRICK

Three years ago, Dorothy Green, now 74, one of the most versatile and popular actresses of her generation, left the world of musicals for a career in television. Today she is a confirmed musical comedy star, having played leading roles in many successful productions.

Dorothy Green is known for her roles as Norine in "Show Boat," Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady," and Anna in "South Pacific." She has also appeared in plays such as "Pajama Game" and "The Fantasticks.

"I am a Musically trained actress," she says, "and I have always loved the stage. But I can't say that I didn't miss the television experience."

Dorothy Green was born in 1925 in New York City. She attended the High School of Music and Art, where she studied drama. She made her professional debut in 1946 in the play "The Glass Menagerie." Since then, she has appeared in dozens of productions, both on stage and screen.

"I am looking forward to the next three years," she says. "I have many projects in mind, and I am excited about the opportunity to work with new and talented actors."

Dorothy Green is married to actor Robert Young, who has also appeared in many musicals. Together they have three children, all of whom are actors. Their daughter, Penny, is currently appearing in the Broadway production of "Cinderella."
Ask Them Yourself

FOR ERNEST BORGNINE

You've been married four times. Do you think you are at fault that the marriages never lasted?

L.P.G., Scoville, Neb.

I think I'm an easy catch. I honestly feel that I have been taken advantage of. People always think when a marriage breaks up that the man is at fault. Believe me, I tried desperately to keep my marriages together, particularly the last one, because there are two lovely children involved who have been traumatized in the place where they don't even want to see me any more. I am a family man. All I want is a wife who will listen to my troubles. I want to come home and enjoy my family. To work for that other. But maybe that's where I went wrong. I provided my last wife with a beautiful house, a car, swimming pool, servants. Maybe too much. Because suddenly she tells me I'm no old man and she prefers a young man.

FOR TONY RANDALL

Is it true that you still carry your World War II Army identification card in your wallet? —T. T., Denver, Ill.

I do—because it is a perfect identification. It has my picture on it, my fingerprints, my signature. Besides, I like the way I looked back in 1944.

FOR ARLENE DARR

What does it feel like to be a glamorous, beautiful woman who always been followed by so many other gossips as the stars in the moon? —G. B., Ballston Lake, N.Y.

Good grief! I've been asked questions like that all the time. And I can say this: No matter how ugly or beautiful a woman is, she isn't probably how ugly or beautiful she feels good, or how good she looks. That's for her, isn't that? It's what keeps her going in this world.

FOR L. PATRICK GRANT III, acting director of the FBI

How do you expect to run the FBI without any law enforcement experience? —J. H., Hopewell, Va.

I'm aware of the tremendous responsibility of being head of the FBI, but I feel my career as a lawyer and at Assistant Attorney General has given me sufficient experience and insight into law enforcement. With the help of my associates at the FBI, I'm confident I can meet the challenge.

FOR CAROL RUSSELL

I read somewhere that you hate singing. Is this true? —D. W., New Jersey.

Not true. I have said I feel uncomfortable sometimes singing a song on myself. It's much fun to sing with others, or as a character.

FOR JOE SCHMIDT, coach of the Detroit Lions

With a running quarterback like Greg Landry, don't you wish the Wistlers weren't so popular with college coaches? —J. H., Lansing, Mich.

Several teams, including the Lions, are getting more emphasis on the running back position of the quarterback. Last season, we installed definite option plays for Greg Landry and they were quite successful. However, we want to be versatile in pro ball. However, it's difficult to say whether the Wistlers will have a basic formation in the NFL. This season, we prefer to think that we will be an adequate to our regular formations.

FOR LES TREVINO, professional golfer

What player do you rate as the greatest man to compete against? —C. W., Atlantic City, N.J.

Without question, Jack Nicklaus. When he's in the field, most of us are losers if we can put our best foot and still barely make the tournament.

FOR HUGH O'BRIEN

To me, it's just so easy to find out how you feel, how tall you are, if you're wearing your own hair. Most people feel it embarrassing to approach a celebrity, but some come up and say, 'I want you to shake hands with you.' I enjoy what you do. They're sincere, they don't need an excuse.

FOR LANA WOOD, star of "A Face Called Today"

How long a day do actresses really have to work? —M. H., Los Angeles, Calif.

When I was on television as "Peyton Place," I never saw the sun. I'd get up at 5 a.m., go over my lines, and go back after dinner. It's a strange, busy way of life. I'd shoot scenes at 9:30 p.m., much later and would walk off my makeup, set top of crop and start back at 9 o'clock.

FOR ROBERT SEAY

You've traveled to Mary, Me, one of the world's great actresses, and you have worked with her on the stage and in films. What actresses would you still like to work with? —M. H., Newport, Conn.

This is easily billed, but the best actress I've ever seen in motion is Carole Landis. No question, she would have dominated me. And I'd like to work with Marilyn Monroe. She's an earthy, earthy soul in that I'd feel shooting at 9:30 p.m., much later and would walk off my makeup, top of crop and set back at 9 o'clock.

Dry is no way to smoke. Come all the way up to KOOL. The only one with the taste of extra coolness.

Few fields of endeavor have more influence on our lives than education, medicine, and science. Here are reports on three new researches, or discoveries, in these fields that may mean today, and could prove instrumental in shaping your life in the months and years ahead.

By Charles and Bernie Remmers

1. All students should be kicked out of school after they fail high school and be prohibited from receiving any formal education for at least two years.

This system, says the noted educator Miss. A. Albright, author of the book "The Common Sense of Politics," would help young people cut their losses quickly, thereby focusing their efforts and their career planning.

Under Albright's proposed program, young people would start school at age two, or three, the year that they are "irresistibly wanted." If they flunked high school at 18, all would be taught the same remedial course of study, concentrating on reading, writing, and mathematics, until they reached the desired level of academic instruction would be allowed.

At the end of high school, Aubert would allow all students who scored an "A" in "plausible" and "ambitious" to pursue college. Students would absolutely be required for a minimum of two years. During this time, they would either work in private industry or complete social problems.

Albright claims that this system will "do more to improve the environment, health, and welfare of every man, woman, and child than any other reform in our society has ever done." She says, "It is a basic tenet of the American Can- terry" society to support this program.

In one study, psychologist Dr. John Smith, a noted social scientist, found that students who are not successful in college are more likely to get a job than those who are. He also found that many students are not successful because they are not motivated to learn.

2. The Cancer-Personality Test

Do you see the word "cancer" as a gray, gray word? Do you see the word "personality" as a gray word? Do you see the word "depression" as a gray word? Do you see the word "chronic" as a gray word? Do you see the word "cancer" as a gray word? Do you see the word "personality" as a gray word? Do you see the word "depression" as a gray word? Do you see the word "chronic" as a gray word?

3. The "Beat of Generation"

Once the necessary technology is perfected, it is expected that a computer that can read the thoughts of compatible men and women can be collected and used for checking out relationships.

This is a vital factor in the overall design of this program. As many as possible of the greatest number of people who should. I believe there should be six or seven times as many men as women. I repeat, six or seven times as many men as women. I say, six or seven times as many men as women.

Boost prospects, for sure, give rise to the most powerful social problems. Who is to choose, for example, which "gender" we are to decide, and in what amount? Having copied a person emotionally, how can we remove the environment in which we are grown up and which may have influenced the way we turned out? What can be done about a movement? How can we move the patterns of life in the way of applying the technology to the masses?" says Albright. "When these problems are solved, it will help to change the rules, and yet again recognize our brothers and sisters as human beings."

Why Men and Women
Can Never Act Alike

True or False: A woman likes what she sees in the mirror better than a man does. (See number 1.)

By John E. Gibson

People are the most fascinating things in the world, and in many ways the most confidential to their own sensitivities and characteristics of both sexes.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. A woman likes what she sees in the mirror better than a man does.
2. Men are more easily distracted by noise than women are.
3. Women drivers don’t get as heated as men drivers.
4. Women are more sensitive to music than men are.
5. A woman is more concerned over what people think about her than a man.

ANSWERS

1. False Women look in the mirror more often than men, but don’t like what they see. Studies of two advertising agencies (Duke University and the University of Wisconsin) show that men are more affected by the way they look than by the way women look. Women, regardless of age, tend to be much more dissatisfied with their faces as well as their bodies. When a man looks into a mirror he looks at what he sees, whereas a woman looks at what she sees through the mirror. In a recent study, women were shown a picture of a woman with her hair done and asked to rate her appearance. The women rated the woman’s appearance as much higher than the men did. The women felt that the woman looked better, whereas the men felt that she looked worse.

2. True According to a recent study at Washington University, men are more easily distracted by noise than women are.

3. True Studies show that women drivers don’t get as heated as men drivers.

4. False Women are more sensitive to music than men are.

5. True A recent study of women’s reactions to music showed that women react more strongly to music than men do.

Herb-and-Wine Barbecued Steak

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hassen suggests a new way to cook barbecued steak, because "What can beat grilling a steak outdoors in summer?" But a little twist I've learned is to marinate the steak overnight in an herb-wine marinade. It gives your barbecue just that added bouquet, and makes the simplest outdoor meal special.

Herb-and-Wine Barbecued Steak

In a 10-inch skillet over medium heat, melt 1/2 cup margarine. Add 1 clove garlic, chopped; 1 can (16 oz.) stewed tomatoes; 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard; 2 cups herb wine; 1 tablespoon soy sauce; 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley. Simmer 15 minutes.

Prepare steak according to the above directions. Serve with Herb-and-Wine Barbecued Steak.

HERB AND WINE BARBECUED STEAK

- Place meat in marinade for 2 hours, turning often.
- Grill over charcoal; if desired, place marinade in saucepan and keep warm.
- Serve with marinade on top.

SAUTEED ZUCCHINI AND TOMATOES

- Sauté zucchini in margarine; add chopped fresh parsley.
- Add sliced tomatoes and cook until tender.

The Robert Stack I Know: In a Crisis, He Won Me Anew
By Rosemarie Bower Stack

Being married to an actor would have been a lot more difficult if I hadn't been in show business before I married Bob. Fortunately, I understood the emotional highs as well as the lows. The tension. The impossible hours. The lack of privacy.

I had worked with quite a few actresses before I met Bob, and I had always said that I would never marry one. They are too insecure. Too self-centered. Too egotistical.

In spite of the fact that he was, and still is, one of the best-looking men I've ever met, Bob is different. You'll never find him looking into the mirror. Usually he brushes his hair and faces a dawn that's hardly reflected. To Bob, sitting in a business, which is what I feel he could have been equally successful in any other chosen field (such as law, in which he was very talented), is no more and no less than the small show in which he got his first contract.

Bob is a performer. Ever since he starred in "The Un(markable)," he's had quite an uproar. Yet if a script isn't right, he doesn't create a scene or dream to walk off the set. Instead he will discuss it with the writer, sometimes for hours. It is so much a part of his work that he has no interest in getting it right. And of course, he has things changed without anyone's knowledge of the fact, often to his own benefit. Then he'll even be aware of them.

A most unusual man were we to get married was that Bob might be replaced in the show. Although he had not only been a bachelor for a long time, he was frequently referred to as "Hollywood's most eligible bachelor." Bob is a hard worker, but he doesn't have the usual need to impress his friends. He has no interest in the pretentious things that life has to offer.

Gambling trap: "One of the most significant and fascinating innovations in recent years is a study by psychologist Dr. Richard Evans of the University of Tennessee in the finding that compulsive gamblers as young as four-year-olds were conspicuous for patterns that closely resembled gambling patterns in other age groups. The study indicates that young people are likely to develop habits of gambling and that these habits may persist into adulthood."

Trains Roll Right To Our Door...On Our Own Railroad Siding!

Our own railroad track is located right at the back door! Merchandise is unloaded directly into our warehouse. To realize the savings involved—think about this! The average retail store orders a limited quantity of furniture from the factory which must be shipped with orders for several other stores in a "pool" car which is usually unloaded at the railroad terminal...reloaded for trucking to the store and finally, unloaded at the store. Think of the added cost included in the selling price! At Levitz, all these costs are saved to bring you lower prices—lowest anywhere!
