Air Force Pregnancy Rate Cited In Defending Policy

WASHINGTON — A pregnancy rate among women who became pregnant as a result of Air Force sexual relations was substantially lower than among those who became pregnant the regular way, government officials said today.

In a brief news release, the administration said that efforts to control the Air Force's pregnancy rate have been successful, as it had lowered the rate to its lowest level in recent years.

The report said that the pregnancy rate in the Air Force was 4.5 per 1,000 women in 2015, compared to 6.2 per 1,000 women in 2014.

One reason for the lower rate, the report said, was a new policy that requires women to report their pregnancies within 30 days of discovery. This policy, the report said, has helped to reduce the number of unauthorized pregnancies.

The report also said that efforts to improve education and counseling have helped to reduce the pregnancy rate.

The report noted that the pregnancy rate has been steadily declining since 2010, when it was 7.8 per 1,000 women.

Cats Called Threat To Unborn

LOUISIANA — A new study indicates that cats can pose a serious threat to the health of pregnant women, according to researchers at Louisiana State University.

The study, which was published in the journal Obstetrics & Gynecology, found that women who owned cats were more likely to experience complications during pregnancy, including miscarriage and premature birth.

The researchers surveyed 1,000 pregnant women and found that those who owned cats were twice as likely to experience complications as those who did not own cats.

The study also found that owning cats was associated with a higher risk of preterm labor, low birth weight, and stillbirth.

The researchers said that their findings support previous studies that have linked cat ownership to increased risk of complications during pregnancy.

The study was funded by the National Institutes of Health.
