Navy Obeyd
Raid Rules?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sen. John S. Mccain, R-Ariz., said Friday he had instructed his panel to investigate stories from former Defense Secretary Robert Gates and others about widespread problems at the Navy's boot camp.

Gates testified before the committee earlier in the day, saying the Navy needs to do more to ensure that recruits are not mistreated.

"We have serious concerns about the training at these camps," Mccain said. "We will continue to work with you to address these issues."
FBI Office Head Removed by Gray

The FBI's director, William J. Burton, was removed from his post by the Justice Department on November 19. Burton was appointed to the position in 1972 and had been in charge of the bureau for the past five years.

Culture Shock

The culture shock that followed Burton's removal left many FBI agents feeling uncertain about their future. The change in leadership has caused concern among some agents who feel that their jobs may be threatened.

New Mom Must Hold Reins

By June Baum

If you are a new mom, you may be feeling overwhelmed by the responsibility of caring for a new baby. It can be challenging to balance your responsibilities as a parent while also managing your own needs. However, there are ways to manage your time and energy effectively.

First, it is important to create a routine. Establishing a schedule can help you stay organized and focused. Make sure to allocate time for yourself to rest and recharge. It is essential to prioritize your self-care.

Second, reach out for support. Joining a support group or seeking help from friends and family can provide you with a network of people who understand your situation.

Lastly, don’t be afraid to ask for help. If you need assistance with household chores or childcare, don’t hesitate to ask for help. It is important to ensure that you are caring for your baby but also taking care of yourself.

The Second Wife—VI

By June Baum

In a newly formed marriage, it can be challenging to adjust to your partner’s habits and routines. However, with open communication and compromise, it is possible to navigate these differences.

First, identify areas of conflict. It is important to recognize when you are feeling frustrated or annoyed by your partner’s actions.

Second, have an honest conversation. Discuss your concerns with your partner and listen to their perspective. It is important to approach the conversation with a growth mindset.

Lastly, work together to find solutions. By identifying areas of conflict and working together to find solutions, you can strengthen your relationship.

Fire and terror. The words become synonymous. That sudden uncontrollable blaze can threaten lives, consume forests and wildlife, destroy a business. Completely. Irrevocably. It could have been prevented—-with care. The mundane, everyday breeding areas for fire—litter and unremoved trash, inadequate wiring, cigarettes and campfires left smoldering—could be eliminated. Unexpectedly, fire prevention and anti-pollution become synonymous, too. Both affect our environment, the quality of life.

Each and every day in the United States, fire takes an average toll of 32 lives, 1,486 homes, 215 apartment buildings, 30 schools, 18 churches, 215 businesses (stores, offices, and restaurants), 135 industrial plants, and 127 farm buildings. Last year alone, approximately 2,475,000 fires destroyed 12,500 lives and cost the nation $2.3 billion in property damage or destruction. The real tragedy of these statistics Chief Parish points out, is that much of the waste of lives and property is avoidable, if the basic rules of fire safety are observed at home and on the job. This alone could make the statistics for different.

Big Band Wins OU Applause

by STEVE SMITH

Big band follows the tradition of the annual OU band contest.

Despite a number of factors, the OU band managed to win first place in the annual contest.

SMITH REPORTS:

The University of Oklahoma band was the big winner on the road over the weekend. The band won the annual OU band contest in a downpour.

The contest was held on the OU campus and was judged by a panel of music educators from across the state.

The OU band, under the direction of Dr. William Johnson, was one of the top bands in the state.

Dr. Johnson said he was pleased with the band's performance.

"We worked hard on this contest," he said.

The band's performance included a medley of popular songs and a selection from the movie "Wizard of Oz." The performance was punctuated by a lively drum solo and a saxophone solo.

The OU band's victory was a surprise to many, as they had not been favored to win.

"We were not sure we had a chance," said band member John Smith.

The band's victory was met with a round of applause from the audience.

"This is a great day for the band," said OU President Dr. John Brown.

The OU band will now represent the University of Oklahoma at the national band contest in Washington, D.C., later this month.
