Race ‘Important’
Reagan ‘Asks’
Bartlett Win

By ENZO RIVAS

California Gov. Ronald Reagan visited Oklahoma City Tuesday to talk to the Oklahoma state Senate and to promote his Senate campaign. Reagan, running against incumbent Dan Quayle, said he wants to know what the state’s future holds and what the state’s future holds. The race is now considered a toss-up between two candidates who are both Republicans.

Reagan talked to a packed crowd of state senators at the Oklahoma State Capitol. He spoke about the importance of the Senate to the state and about the importance of the Senate to the country. He said he wants to help the state by working for the Senate.

Reagan’s visit was part of his campaign to win the Senate seat. He is running against Quayle, who is the incumbent senator. Reagan has been campaigning heavily in the state in recent weeks, and he is trying to gain support from voters.

Pokes' Stover Excels
In The Classroom, Too

STEELVILLE — At the moment, Oklahoma State University basketball and Stover's high school basketball teams are riding high in their respective sports. But they have one thing in common: the winning spirit of Stover's basketball teams.

It was during the month of March when things began to go wrong for the Steelville basketball team. Stover's parents were away on business and his mother needed to be in town. She called Stover's father to tell him she needed to be in town.

"I said, 'Mom, I need you to get the car,'" Stover said. "And she said, 'I can't.'"

Just then, Stover had an idea. He called his friend and told him to meet him at the gym. Stover then called his coach and told him to come to the gym with him. Stover and his friend then walked into the gym and met with his coach.

"I said, 'Coach, I think I can win the game,'" Stover said. "And he said, 'Do you have a plan?'"

Stover then explained his plan to his coach. Stover's coach was impressed and told him to follow through with his plan.

"I said, 'I'll win the game,'" Stover said. "And he said, 'You have to be in shape.'"

Stover then went home and began to work out. He ran every day and ate a healthy diet. Stover's plan worked and he won the game.

"I'm just glad I won the game," Stover said. "And I'm glad I didn't lose the game."
Sooner Can’t Afford
Mistakes At Dallas

By Tim Hebert
Executive Sports Editor

I imagine Oklahoma fans will kick and scream after a Dallas loss. They'll start a movement to get Coach Bob Stoops off the program, if they haven’t already. The Sooners have the opportunity to end their three-game losing streak, according to the confidence of the number One team in the nation.

This week marks a chance for the Sooners to turn things around. The offense needs to step up and play better than they did in the last game against the Sooners. They need to score more points and put points on the board.

Big Cowboy Win

by Charlie Spiker

The Sooners are one of the most unpredictable teams in college football. Oklahoma has proven that they can win games in any situation. They have a strong defense, especially against the run.

In the Big 8 standings, the Sooners are currently ranked second. They have a chance to move up in the standings with a win against Oklahoma State. The Sooners need to focus on their defense and try to limit the Cowboys' offense.

Broncos, Bulldogs On Top In OCAC

By CHRIS BUSCH

It's a tough one to call the conference for Oklahoma City University.

Oklahoma City University isn't the team everyone expected to win, but they're definitely the team everyone expects to win.

The Broncos and Bulldogs are two of the teams to watch in the OCAC.

The Broncos have a strong defense and the Bulldogs have a powerful offense.

It's going to be a close game, but we're预测 the Broncos will come out on top.
