Welcome To America

Mrs. and Mrs. Johnson Henry, left and right, greet three Russian Jewish refugees who arrived in Oklahoma City under thel new faces of the United States on the first time in their lives. They are Maria Khlis and her mother, who walked a distance of about 20,000 miles to escape communism and to reach America. The two refugees are expected to arrive in Oklahoma City on Wednesday, May 15, concluding a flight from oppression that began in Russia. They will be staying in the city with Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock, who have been expecting their arrival. The couple has provided them with a bed and a room, and they are expected to be well taken care of. The couple plans to take the refugees to their home in the suburbs of Oklahoma City for the first few days. The couple has also arranged for them to take a tour of the city and to meet some of the local people. The couple is looking forward to the opportunity to learn more about the refugees and to share their experiences with them.

Soviet Jews Arrive In City

This generation of Russian Jews arrived in Oklahoma City earlier this month and was greeted with open arms by the city's Jewish community. The refugees, who were part of a group of more than 100, were welcomed with a special ceremony at the synagogue. The refugees will be staying in the city for several months, during which time they will be provided with housing and other assistance. The city's Jewish community has been working hard to ensure that the refugees feel welcome and are able to integrate into the local community. The refugees have been received with open arms and are expected to make a positive contribution to the city.

Chandler Upholds Amtrak

By BERNARD DAVIO

Amtrak's latest victory in the courts has been a significant one for the company, which has been struggling with financial difficulties in recent years. The decision by Chandler County Judge L. N. Smith to uphold the company's lease agreement is a major victory for Amtrak, which has been facing financial challenges due to declining ridership and increased costs. The judge ruled that the lease agreement was valid and that Amtrak had the right to operate the service. The decision is expected to provide a boost for the company, which has been looking for ways to improve its financial situation.

Ed Challenges Busing Charge

By RAY ATTENDORE

Ed formally challenged the busing charge in the school district, arguing that it is unconstitutional and that it violates the rights of students. The judge ruled that the charge is constitutional and that it serves a valid educational purpose. The decision is expected to have a significant impact on the school district, which has been facing challenges due to declining enrollment and increased costs. The judge's decision is expected to provide a boost for the school district, which has been looking for ways to improve its financial situation.

Demonstrators Irrk Judge

Turner Faces Jail

The demonstrators, who had been protesting against the judge's decision, were arrested and are expected to face charges. The judge has been criticized for his handling of the case, and there have been concerns that his decision may have been influenced by political considerations. The judge's decision is expected to have a significant impact on the community, which has been divided over the issue of busing.

Inside News

These are the latest news updates from inside the city. The city's Jewish community has been working hard to ensure that the refugees feel welcome and are able to integrate into the local community. The refugees have been received with open arms and are expected to make a positive contribution to the city.

First Wife's Plight Often Worse Than Successor's

The Second Wife—11 years. She's all of the virtues that the first wife lacked: she's beautiful, sensual, loving, kind, and a good housekeeper. But she also has her own faults: she's jealous, possessive, demanding, and controlling. She tries to dominate her husband and make him into what she wants him to be, and this causes him a great deal of stress and anxiety. She's also prone to fits of rage and anger when she feels slighted or denied. She's very manipulative and will do anything to get her way, even if it means hurting those she loves. It's a lonely and miserable existence for her as well, as she's never sure if her husband truly loves her or if he'll leave her for someone else. The second wife is a reminder that not all relationships are equal and that power imbalances can cause a great deal of harm to those involved.

Latch On To The Loopholes

One of the strongest cases against those who have been accused of taking advantage of the retirement system is the case of the Oklahoma Teachers Retirement System. The system has received criticism for its ability to pay out large sums of money to educators who have retired. However, recent studies have shown that the system has taken advantage of many loopholes to pay out these amounts. It is time for the state to step in and make sure that the retirement system is run according to the law.

Twinkling Disturbs Astronomers

By LOU W. HURST

Astronomers are resorting to a new floodlighting system in the past few months to combat the glare from streetlights and other sources of light pollution. The new system, which uses "twinkling" lights, has been shown to be effective in reducing the brightness of the night sky and making it easier for stargazers to see fainter objects.
