Councilmen Shelf Sales Tax Vote

Revenue Sharing To Finance Police Raises

By ROBERT DUGGER

The City Council finance committee voted Monday to recommend that the measure be placed on the November ballot in the city, stating that it will appeal to the pro-police, anti-tax sentiment among residents.

The proposal to raise revenue through a sales tax hike from 4% to 5% will be considered by the full council at its next meeting, scheduled for September 4th.

The council also agreed to raise the maximum police pay and fire department salaries from $450 to $550 per month, an increase of $100 for officers and $200 for firefighters.

A large crowd of the cameras during council meetings will get a chance to shine, as the council is expected to vote on a new policy allowing cameras to be used during meetings.

Trudeau Holding Thin Vote Edge

The Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau will face a vote of no confidence in his government this week, following a series of scandals and controversies.

The Liberals, who currently hold a majority in Parliament, are in a precarious position as they seek to pass their budget and combine with the Conservatives to form a coalition government.

The vote, which will take place on Thursday, could see the Liberals lose their majority and force an early election.

Which Is Your Favorite Room?

WASHINGTON, D.C.: The Senate passed the long-sought tax reform bill that would cut individual income taxes by an estimated $2 trillion over 10 years.

The bill, which had been under debate for months, was approved on a 67-32 vote. It would reduce the top income tax rate from 39.6% to 37%, and eliminate the estate tax.

The House is expected to vote on the bill later this week.
