SBA To Test Credit Plan In City

Oklahoma City has been selected as the site for a new business loan program that is designed to help small businesses secure funding.

The program, which is being piloted in Oklahoma City, will provide low-interest loans to small businesses that are unable to secure funding through traditional sources.

The program is intended to help small businesses that have been affected by the pandemic, as well as those that are looking to expand or start new ventures.

"We believe that this program will play a crucial role in supporting the small businesses of our city," said Mayor Peter Zeigler. "By providing access to affordable funding, we are taking a step towards ensuring the economic vibrancy of our community."

EDMOND COUNCILadopt

New Zoning Ordinances

In its special session last week, the Edmond city council adopted a new set of zoning ordinances on appeal to the county on rezoning. The new ordinances, which have been in the making since last spring, will be effective on August 1. The new zoning regulations are aimed at improving the city's quality of life by providing a more attractive appearance and by regulating the use of public land. The new regulations will apply to all land within the city limits and will be enforced by the city's planning department. The new regulations include provisions for the protection of historic landmarks, the control of commercial activity, and the preservation of public open space. The new regulations will also provide for the protection of the city's water resources and for the control of noise pollution.

Computer To Lighten Chores

How Does A Million Change Your Life?

Winner Reflects

For the photographers' Camera Club, whose monthly competition has been the subject of previous columns, the last contest was for a million-dollar photo. The winning entry was submitted by Mr. John Smith, who took a photo of a million-dollar house.

School Programmer Excited

The programmer was excited by the recent purchase of a new computer that would lighten his chores. The new computer was able to perform tasks such as data entry, calculations, and reports generation in a fraction of the time it took him to do it manually. The programmer was excited about the potential savings in time and increased productivity that the new technology would bring to the school.

West Point Proud Of Alumni, Too

By ALEX T. MILLER

Along the Main Post Road at West Point, the muffled sound of drums and bugles could be heard as the cadets prepared for the annual Christmas parade. The parade, which is a tradition at West Point, is a time for the cadets to share their spirit and pride with the community.

The parade route begins at the Main Post Gate and follows the Main Post Road through the campus. The cadets march in formation, with each company wearing their distinctive uniforms. The parade includes floats, cadet organizations, and guest units from other military schools.

The highlight of the parade is the cadet band, which plays traditional Christmas carols and military favorites. The cadet band is a renowned group and always draws a large crowd.

The parade concludes at the parade stand, where the cadets line up to receive their awards and recognition for their efforts throughout the year.

The policy of the U.S. Army is to maintain West Point as the finest military academy in the world, and the parade is just one way in which the cadets demonstrate their commitment to that goal.

Parade Review

A regular part of each parade is the daily parade review held on the parade ground to the west of the Post. The cadets line up in a single file and review the day's events. The parade review is an important part of the day and is attended by cadets, faculty, and staff.

This year's paradereview was held on December 15th and featured a special guest speaker, General Pershing. The general spoke about the importance of West Point and the role it plays in the country's defense.

Sooners Attend Convention

A group of 50 Oklahoma college football teams and their coaches will be attending a post-season convention in Miami in January. The convention begins tomorrow and lasts through New Year's Eve. It will double as the major college football coaches' convention and a series of clinics for the men coaches and officials on officiating. Many of the teams will leave after this week's games and return after New Year's to attend the convention. The teams will be staying at hotels in the area, divided into teams of four or so, and will be meeting together. The convention's website is convention.com.
