When Apollo Passes

As we celebrate the end of the moon program and the space race, it's worth reflecting on the impact of space exploration on our society. The Apollo program was a significant achievement, symbolizing the peak of human ingenuity and technological prowess. However, it's important to recognize the cost and the risks associated with such endeavors. The space race was a competition that brought about significant advancements in science and technology, but it also exposed the darker side of human nature—aggression, nationalism, and a desire for dominance. As we move forward, it's crucial to approach space exploration with caution and to consider the long-term implications of our actions. The future of space exploration should be guided by a commitment to peaceful cooperation and a focus on scientific discovery rather than military advantage.

Art Buchwald
On Searching Luggage

In the midst of a busy airport, a man searches his suitcase for a lost item. As he rummages through his belongings, he suddenly finds a symbol of the American Dream—a well-worn and treasured item. The scene is one of both comedy and poignancy, a reminder that our possessions are often more than just material objects; they are extensions of our identity and memories. This image invites us to reflect on the things we hold dear and the stories they hold.

Bob Considine
Give Em Hell Harry

In a world where corruption and power can seem overwhelming, it's important to remember the voices of those who speak truth to power. Harry S. Truman, a former soldier, a former senator, and a former president, was known for his honesty and his willingness to take a stand against what he deemed wrong. His legacy reminds us that each of us can make a difference, no matter our position or power. Even in the face of adversity, we must stand up for what is right, and never give up on our principles.

Confessions Of A Department Store Santa

The holidays are a time for joy and celebration, but for some, they are a time of hardship and uncertainty. As a department store Santa, I am reminded of the contrast between the comforts of the season and the struggles of everyday life. Each year, I hear stories of joy and hope, but I also hear stories of despair and need. It's a humbling experience that reminds me of the importance of compassion and empathy. As we move into the new year, let us remember the lessons of the season and work to create a world where everyone can enjoy the holidays in peace and prosperity.

City Santas Promote Yuletide Spirit, Goodwill

By Marcia Sherard

Santas will visit downtown Oklahoma City this year to promote the spirit of the season. The annual tradition of placing Santas in prominent locations throughout the city offers a festive atmosphere for shoppers and visitors alike. These Santas, dressed in traditional red suits and hats, will be found at locations including department stores, shopping centers, and civic buildings. They are there to spread cheer and distribute toys and gifts to children, adding to the joyous spirit of the holiday season. This year, the Santas will be particularly appreciated as they help support local charities and raise awareness for various causes. Whether you’re shopping for presents or simply enjoying the season, the presence of these beloved figures is a reminder of the goodwill and generosity that characterizes the holiday spirit.

No Oscar, Jackie Says

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK

Jackie Gleason, now considered a Hollywood backwater, was not as impressed with the Academy Award for Best Actress as she had hoped.

"I'm not really interested in the Oscar," Gleason said in an interview. "It's just a job and it doesn't mean much to me. I'd rather be doing something more meaningful."

Midnight Earl, on the other hand, enjoyed his award. "It was a great honor," he said. "I really appreciate the recognition from my peers."

'Lady Day' Wouldn't Recognize Herself

By RALPH NOYAK

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Holiday, the sorely injured and emotionally troubled singer known for her voice, seemed to have been straightening up for a brief period of personal and professional stability by the time she was found dead in a New York City hotel room.

But in a new biography, "Lady Day," by Clinton Lincoln, it is described that Holiday had been struggling with her life's problems for years before her death.

In the paperback release of "Lady Day," a biographical novel about the jazz singer, Holiday, who was born Eleanora Fagan and later adopted the stage name Billie Holiday, is said to have battled with addiction to drugs and alcohol.

In the book, Lincoln, who is also an opera singer, said that Holiday's addictions led to a series of health problems that eventually caused her death.

In a letter to the New York Times, Lincoln wrote that Holiday's life was marked by "a deep sense of loss and despair." He said that Holiday's struggles with addiction and mental illness were "a constant battle against the demons of her past."

Bill Cosby Still Waiting For 'Good Black Film'

By Jack Kleiner

Hollywood (UPI) — "Black Box" kept putting off its release date for one of two reasons. Last week it was reported the movie was "on the edge" of release and just a week before it was "coming soon." Last week, "Good Black Film" was "just around the corner."

While the delays have been frustrating for the studio, they have been beneficial for the film itself. The longer "Black Box" is delayed, the more time the studio has to ensure the film is as good as possible.

Last week, "Black Box" was reported to be "near completion," but after a few more weeks of editing, the film is expected to be ready for release.

"Black Box" is a political thriller about a secret society that controls the world. The film stars Richard Pryor and Louis Gossett Jr. and is directed by Spike Lee.

"Good Black Film" is a biopic about the life of African American civil rights leader Malcolm X. The film is directed by Spike Lee and stars Denzel Washington and Viola Davis.

Both "Black Box" and "Good Black Film" are scheduled for release in the fall of 2023. Stay tuned for more updates on these期待的电影.

Can Losing Your Temper Be Better Than Keeping It?
Ask Them Yourself

FOR ERNEST BORGENE
You won an Academy Award in 1955 for "Marty." Looking back at it after all these years, do you think it has helped you or hurt you or not made any difference? — G. A., San Pedro, Calif.

1. I think it helped me. At that time the Oscar was more respected than it is today. There are so many awards these days, but the Oscar is still the first name on the envelope. And look at all the publicity about an actor—and I want mentions in newspapers and magazines. A mention in an ad for a product that should make the biggest difference. A name below mine on a list is no help. At the time I won, the Oscar was rare. I never saw one before. I wasn't involved in the making of the film, but it was a great honor to receive one. We all loved the film. The whole industry loved it. The Academy is a very prestigious organization.

FOR LILLY KIRK, singer
I never knew anyone named "Lilly" until I became a show-business "name" back around 1950. Now there's a whole generation of Lillies. Do you feel you started it? — M., Lincoln, Neb.

2. Lots of people tell me they named their daughter Lilly after me. I think it's because I've been in the business for so long. I always pass the hat for charity and people seem to like that. I've been in show business for over 30 years. I started singing in nightclubs and then moved on to radio and television. I've been in the business for such a long time that people have named their children after me.

FOR DANNY BANBURY, author of "Understanding Your Dog"
When dogs act out when we're not there, are they talking? — J. Olin, Stockton, Calif.

3. No, they're not talking out of earshot, but a dog's sense of smell is so acute that it can detect things in the air that we can't. Dogs are very sensitive to odors and they can detect things that we can't. They can detect things that we can't even smell.

FOR CONNIE STEVENS
Peebles Lee says he doesn't like having friends in show business. Do you feel the same way? — C. E., Maspeth, Queens, N.Y.

4. I think it's important to have friends in show business. It's nice to have people who understand the industry and can help you out. I've made some great friends in the business and they've been a big help to me.

FOR FRANK MCCARTHY, producer of "Patton"

5. It's not surprising. I've heard of many similar situations in the past. It's common for producers to use characters or names from famous figures or events, but they usually get permission from the rights holder. I think it's a good idea to have laws in place to protect copyright and trademark infringement.

FOR TOM HARRON
Your son is playing college football this fall. How do you feel about him playing on an artificial turf? — M. D. A., Beaver, Ill.

6. I think it's a good idea. Football is a very physical sport, and it's important to have a surface that can withstand the wear and tear. Artificial turf can help reduce injuries and make the game safer for players.

FOR SEX, BABY GOODWATER OF waterways
Why were you so quick to protect Nixon on the Watergate hearings? — I. D., Ournell, Va.

7. I think it's important to support him. Nixon is a great leader, and he's been through a lot. I think it's important to have leaders who are strong and can withstand pressure. I'm not sure if I would have the same opinion if I were in Nixon's position, but I think it's important to support him.

FOR J. HUGH GRIFFIN, actress of "Nancy" serial

Billy's Last Fight: A Boxer's Greatest Christmas Gift

By Martin Abramson

It was Christmas, 1923. Heavyweight Billy Mika was dying. He needed the money to give his family one last decent Christmas. And the only way he knew to get it was in the ring, against a man who had almost beaten Dempsey in 1930.

But Mika had a particular reason for feeling confident about the outcome. He knew that if he could win, he would leave this world a champion. And he was certain it would be his last match. But he had an obligation to do something special for his wife and kids.

Mika was one of the better heavyweights of his time. He had been in 100 bouts and had fought the likes of Gene Tunney, Tony Galento, and Harry Greb. Only Dempsey had been able to knock him out. But in 1923, Mika had an incredible kidney ailment called Bright's Disease. He had thrived and prospered and his illness was not apparent to the public. He had kept it a secret from everyone except his manager, Jack Fiddler, and of course, the doctors who had diagnosed it. One reporter, George Schieffelin of the Minneapolis Tribune, found out about it but agreed to keep it secret. When Mika was out of the ring, Mika was in the ring. He was a fighter's fighter, and he accepted the responsibility of fighting again. He knew he would need to sell most of the fans on his fans in his home to feed his family. A city news report about a forthcoming Christmas charity fight triggered a decisive burst of depression. He called his manager and told him he got more of the blues.

"My God, man, it could kill you," Reddy said, "I won't do it."

"Look Jack, I've got to get some money to give my family a decent Christmas," Mika pleaded. "If I do because of the fight, it won't make much difference. You know I can't last much longer anyway."

Fiddler immediately got in touch with Mika and Reddy, and a fight with Billy Brookes to be held in Omaha. Mika was tough going, but he realized that if he was going to knock out Mika, he had to do it. Mika was fighting Jack Dempsey on the same card, and he had some problems with his arm, but the Omaha fight, and he realized that if he was going to knock out Mika, he had to do it. Mika realized that he was the best at his weight, and he wanted to show the world what Billy could do.

The SPICED CARROT CAKE...
How to beat the high cost of steak

By Jennette Frank
Nutritionist and author of The Modern Meat Cookbook

Nation of Steak Eaters Caught in Meat Price Squeeze

America's housewives have been caught in a silent war over how to get enough meat for their families. The average family wants to cook steak, but need to accommodate their budgets. The average family wants to cook steak, but need to accommodate the high prices. What's the answer? Smart shopping, using substitutes like ground beef or pork, or using more meat in your meals. These tips cost you less money or less cost. This month, you'll want to know how to beat the high cost of steak.

Delicious All-American Steak Dinner: $1.29

For a family of four, buy 3.5 pounds of top round steak for $1.29 per pound. Trim off excess fat and cut into desired steak. Season with black pepper and salt. Heat a large skillet and sear the steak for 2 minutes on each side. Reduce the heat to medium and continue cooking until the steak is done to your liking. Serve with a side of baked potatoes, steamed vegetables, and a salad. Total cost—around $2.25 per person. For even more economical meals, try substituting ground beef.

A Case of Supply and Demand

Less than 2% of all beef is actually sold in retail stores. This can include 7-bone steaks, striploin, porterhouse, rib and top sirloin steaks. Since there are so few of these steaks, there is a great demand for them and they are sold considerably more for them. The internet makes it possible to order these steaks online. You can order from websites like MeatMe.com or MeatsAuthority.com. These websites offer a wide variety of steaks from different sources, including USDA Choice and Prime. These steaks are often cheaper than those found in retail stores.

You Can Broil or Barbecue the Expensive Steaks

Many people believe that more expensive, fattier cuts like ribeye or porterhouse should be cooked with a lot of fat on top. In reality, the high cost of these steaks is due to the high amount of fat. The leaner cuts, like sirloin or tenderloin, are much cheaper. These cuts can be cooked with a lot of fat on top and are still delicious. You can also grill or broil these steaks for a lower price.

Your Temper: Is It Better to Lose It Or Keep It?

True or False: Watching a competitive athlete or aggressive sport like football provides a release for pent-up hostility, and serves as a harmless escape valve for your anger.

By John E. Gibson

Whether you have a habit of temper tantrums and your top over insults, or have an even-tempered stress or anger at work, you can use anger to your advantage. For example, if you are feeling angry at work, or you feel frustrated by being stuck in a traffic jam, you can use anger to your advantage. You can use anger to motivate yourself, or to help you get through a difficult situation. Anger is a natural emotion, and it can be healthy to express it. However, it is important to learn how to manage your anger so that it does not interfere with your ability to function in your daily life.

Gourmet On A Budget - Marinated Steak

For a flavor change of pace, marinate the steak for a few hours. The marinade can be made by mixing together 1 cup of soy sauce, 1/4 cup of olive oil, 2 cloves of garlic minced, 1 tablespoon of honey, and 1 tablespoon of fresh lemon juice. Place the steak on a cutting board and rub the marinade all over the steak. Cover it and let it sit in the refrigerator for at least an hour. Grill the steak on a medium-high heat for 5-6 minutes on each side. Serve with a side of baked potatoes and a salad. Total cost—around $3.75 per person. For even more economical meals, try substituting ground beef.
