Judge Finds Casteel Guilty Of Arson In Norman Blaze

BY LARRY CONROY

Curtis Moore, a sturdy, 6-foot-2-inch, 220-pound laborer accused of setting a fire in a storage building and causing the death of a child in Oklahoma City, was convicted of arson by a jury in Oklahoma County Court Thursday.

A three-person jury deliberated for two hours before finding Moore guilty of one count of first-degree murder, one count of arson, and one count of possession of an instrument to commit a felony.

The jury recommended a life sentence for Moore, who was convicted of setting a fire in a storage building that killed a 1-year-old boy.

Moore, 32, was arrested in connection with the fire that occurred in April 1977.

The boy's mother, Linda Bell, testified that she heard a noise and saw smoke coming from the building.

The jury also recommended a sentence of five years for Moore on the arson charge.

Moore's trial is scheduled to begin in January 1978.
