Free Enterprise Tough

There are many who criticize the enterprise system of our society as being outdated and inefficient. However, the enterprise system has been the driving force behind America's economic success. It has enabled our country to become one of the most prosperous nations in the world. The enterprise system also provides a great deal of personal freedom and innovation. It is the system that allows us to pursue our own goals and dreams.

The PEOPLE'S Voice

Equal Rights

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern regarding the issue of equal rights. It is important that everyone, regardless of their background, has the same opportunities. Discrimination based on race, gender, or any other characteristic is unjust and should be condemned.

Sincerely,

Tom Braden

Leader Clarifies Report On Charismatic Statement

WASHINGTON, D.C. — David E. Henson, publisher of the Washington Post, said on Thursday that the newspaper's reporting on a recent statement by the Vatican was inaccurate.

In an interview, Henson said the newspaper had misinterpreted a statement made by Pope Francis earlier this week. The statement, which was widely covered in the media, talked about the importance of listening to young people and incorporating their voices into church decisions.

However, Henson said the newspaper had misread the Pope's comments and reported that he was calling for a radical change in church practice.

"We had a miscommunication," Henson said. "We should have been more careful in our reporting."

Archdiocese Planning Education Work

A program for training religious teachers in the Catholic Archdiocese of Oklahoma City, which will lead to certification after about 60 hours of coursework, is in the planning stage led by Rev. Wallace McGowan, director of the department of religious education. Plans call for the training program to extend over a two-year period, with 30 hours each year, but certification requirements allow for previous teaching experience and coursework completed elsewhere.
