Ford Extends Amnesty Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Thursday gave more blacks using government services another month to apply for amnesty for evading military service during the Vietnam War.

The program has been scheduled to end at midnight Feb. 28. Applicants who fail to take advantage of the program after that date will have to be processed by the Department of Justice to serve in the service.

"Thirty-nine months after the amnesty program was created, the Ford administration has just extended it for another month," said Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., who is chairman of the House Select Committee on the Oversight of the Department of Justice.

Voting in favor of the extension were Reps. Robert汕头, R-Ohio, and Ed O'Callahan of the police department's executive secretary, Richard H. McAllister and Chief Deputy Chief Stacy Greeson, who were sworn in before the committee.

Several of the committee members said they were troubled by the extension, saying it is not a good idea to extend it for another month, especially when the amnesty program has already been extended several times.

"We are concerned that the extension is not a good idea," said Rep. Conyers. "We don't want to see another extension. We want to see the program end and for the amnesty program to be ended."
Ask Dr. Brothers...
Divorce, Guilt Roots Of Family Problems

By Dr. JAMES BROTHERS

Divorce, separation, or some other major change in one's life is a time when guilt feelings often come out of the woodwork. The guilt may be directed against oneself or against the other person. It may be more toward the father or toward the mother. It may be toward a brother or sister. The guilt may be related to marriage, children, or the separate lives that each person wants to lead.

Dr. Brothers suggests talking to one's minister, rabbi, or priest about these feelings. Sharing these burdens can help one feel better. He also recommends speaking with a family therapist or counselor who can provide support and guidance.

To Welcome Spring ...

Flowers Add Charm To A Super Sweater

By Judy Love

January's arrival with flowers aflutter - the earliest bloom - signals the season to welcome the brightest color to our wintry days. At last, the snowdrops have made their appearance. Though we may have a blizzard or two more until spring, a few days of sun can help us enjoy the early blossoms in their full glory. A little bit of sunshine can make a big difference, especially when the flowers are a welcome sight after months of snow and grey.
