The majority of the state's 106 Senate Republicans have joined forces to fight against an increase in taxes proposed by Governor Robert S. Boren. This is the first time in the history of the legislature that the Republican majority has taken such a stand.

The senators, who have been meeting in secret, say they will not vote for any tax increase proposed by Governor Boren. They have threatened to introduce legislation to block any tax increase proposed by the governor.

Governor Boren's proposed tax increases include a 1% increase in the state sales tax, a 2% increase in the state income tax, and a 50% increase in the state property tax.

The Republicans say they believe the tax increases are unnecessary and will hurt the economy. They also say the state should be able to balance its budget without increasing taxes.

Some Republicans have said they will vote for the tax increases if they are offered in a package with other budget cuts.

Governor Boren has said he will veto any legislation that would block his tax proposals.

The Republican senators are expected to continue their secret meetings and to introduce their legislation in the coming days.

The newspaper has learned that Governor Boren's tax increases have been monitored by the state's Department of Revenue.

According to sources, the state's Department of Revenue has been using a computer system to track the use of the state's sales tax.

The system, which was developed in cooperation with the state's Department of Commerce, tracks the use of the state's sales tax and other state taxes.

The Department of Revenue has said it will continue to monitor the use of the state's sales tax and other state taxes.

We're in Favor of a Cut in State Taxes... Aren't You?

A cut in state income taxes would be good for business, good for working people, good for Oklahoma.

A cut in state income taxes would stimulate our economy, encourage job providers to provide new jobs.

A cut in state income taxes would be a step toward more responsible government — but it must be accompanied by a cut in state government spending.

Our State Legislature Will Start Debating This Issue Monday, February 3

If you favor reduced government spending ... if you favor a cut in state income taxes ... if you favor lower state government and a boost to the economy in Oklahoma ...

Call or write your state representative or senator today and ask him to vote to reduce the state income tax.

BULLY WRIGHT, President of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, has his name in lights at the moment. He is the toast of the town. But when he was asked, in a recent interview, what he thought the Academy Awards were all about, Mr. Wright replied: "The idea is to make the best films possible."

Well, you see, we're not afraid of the future. Hollywood, like any other industry, is in a hurry to get ahead. And the future looks very bright for the Academy Awards. Mr. Wright says, "The idea is to keep the industry going."

As for the future of the film industry, Mr. Wright feels that "the future is bright."

The Best Director: John Ford

One of Hollywood's leading lights, John Ford, has been nominated for the Best Director Award. Ford's "Sunset Blvd." was nominated for Best Picture, but this time he is up against a tough competitor in "The Grapes of Wrath," directed by John Ford. Ford has been nominated for Best Director five times, but this is the first time he has been nominated for Best Director in a year where he was not nominated for Best Picture.

The Leading Actress: Susan Hayward

Susan Hayward has been nominated for Best Actress for her role in "The Grapes of Wrath." She is up against a strong field of competitors, including Jane Fonda, who was nominated for Best Actress for "The Longest Day," and Shirley MacLaine, who was nominated for Best Actress for "The Hustler."

The Supporting Actress: Mitzi Green

Mitzi Green has been nominated for Best Supporting Actress for her role in "The Hustler." She is up against a strong field of competitors, including Ingrid Bergman, who was nominated for Best Supporting Actress for "Anna and the King of Siam," and Elizabeth Taylor, who was nominated for Best Supporting Actress for "Giant."

"Country Matters"

"Country Matters" is a short story written by A.E. Coppard and H.F. Bates who share much more than program credits on the new television series "Country Matters." They are the creators of the series and they play the roles of the main characters in the show.

The story revolves around a wealthy young man who has recently inherited a large estate. The estate is located in a small town in England, and the man is not sure how he feels about living there. He hires a reputation doctor and a nurse to help him adjust to life in the country.

As the story progresses, the man begins to enjoy his new surroundings and the simple pleasures of life on the estate. He also begins to develop a closer relationship with his new neighbors, learning more about them and their way of life.

However, the man's newfound happiness is threatened when a group of speculative developers arrive in the town, eager to build a new shopping mall. The man and his neighbors must band together to stop the developers and preserve the way of life in their town.

Overall, "Country Matters" is a heartwarming tale that explores the themes of inheritance, family, and the importance of preserving the past.

The Duchess Was American—And Is That What the Duke Loved?

By Ralph G. Martin

He was the Prince Charming of his time, and the Duchess was his treasure. They were the king and queen of fashion, and their every move was followed by the press. But behind the scenes, there was a secret. They were Americans, and the world was not yet ready to accept it.

The Duchess, born in England, was the daughter of a wealthy family. She married the Prince, who was also an Englishman, and together they ruled the social scene. But their love was doomed from the start. The Prince was 30 years older than her, and people whispered that he only married her for her money.

But the Duchess was not about to let that stop her from loving the Prince. She poured all of her energy into making him happy, and the Prince was always by her side. They traveled the world together, and wherever they went, they were the center of attention.

But as time went on, the Duchess began to feel like she was trapped. She missed her family, and she missed the freedom she once had. She knew that if she left the Prince, she would never be able to return to England, but she knew that she couldn't stay with him either.

One day, the Duchess decided that she couldn't go on living this way. She gathered her courage and told the Prince that she loved him, but she couldn't stay with him anymore. He was heartbroken, but he respected her decision.

The Duchess was able to make a new life for herself, and she found happiness in America. She was finally able to be herself, and she never looked back.

The end.

Our Second Annual College Recruiters Poll

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

By Larry Berteza

Why Purgatory?

We're looking for high school basketball players who are college-bound. Our second annual poll of college recruiters is based on a survey of players and coaches. The list includes the top players in the country, according to the recruiters. We've also included some of the best players who didn't make the cut.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker? We're looking for the person who can spot the Camel Filters smoker. The smoker is a new brand of cigarette that is popular among teenagers. We want to know who is most likely to catch the smoker in the act.

Why Purgatory? The story of Purgatory is told in the Bible. It is a place where souls must purify themselves before entering heaven. The story is also a metaphor for life and the challenges we face. We want to know what you think about the story of Purgatory.

The poll results are out, and the top players are ready to go. The list includes players from all over the country, and we're sure you'll find someone you like. The poll is open to anyone who wants to participate, so get your votes in and let us know who you think is the best high school basketball player.

Karl Malden: If You Like How He Acts, You'll Like How He Is

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

We've been married for 30 years. Ask me my recipe for staying married that long and I'll tell you it's to get out of the house as much as possible.

A few years ago Karl told me he never go go alone anymore. He would never be separated from his wife. And never expected to be a healing man. I thought about this as I drove over to the warehouse where the San Francisco drove to tell Karl, one of the many men with cancer, "The Story of San Francisco" TV series.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Why did you decide to spend some dollars doing TV series?

KARL: I could have done some documentaries and "Ministers of the Law." But I felt that as long as I decided to get into TV, I'd do all the way.

FWM: You once told me you could never be a healing man, but you are today. How does it feel?

KARL: Well, I am and I'm not. I think I've learned a character. I've always liked playing characters, and I've always been a character actor. Never a

KARL: Because I was good in basketball, and I was able to get involved in the community, the Depressionyears, and I was glad that it was. I thought if I had to do it over, I would have played basketball. When I got into law, they said, "You have to play basketball—excusing basketball." So I went out, got into law school, and said, "No way!"

KFW: Are your parents still alive?

KARL: Yes, my father is and my father is. He was a lawyer and a judge. He had never been to college and he never seemed to think of himself as a lawyer. He did the same thing.

KFW: You play a police officer in the series. Have you ever had a vice role with the police?

KARL: "One day I was suddenly called to the principal's office. I'll never forget the guy sitting there, big and fat and kind of bulky, with a red face and a red belt buckled all around his waist. He had the devil in him. Do you know who I am? Of course I knew who I was!"

KFW: Yes, in high school. I belonged to a group of people who did, the "fourth grade" at the when we were playing basketball and needed a big, red belt and "Bend" one. One day I was suddenly summoned to the principal's office. All the other gang members were there already, sitting back in a row. I knew what to expect, and I went off with a warrant, more or less.

KFW: Does your brother have a "Tango"? Karl: "Yes, it's called "Tango.""

KFW: Why?

KARL: Because he was a songwriter. I told him I was a songwriter. He was one of the most successful songwriters. The music was written as a song, the music was written as a song, and the music was written as a song. That's why it's called "Tango."

KFW: Thank you for your time, Karl.

KARL: Thank you for your company.
