Callers Want Legislators On The Job

Reorganizing Bill Passed

The Senate passed Gov. David Boren’s reorganization bill last week, clearing the way for the creation of a new police department in Oklahoma City. The bill would create a new police department and transfer the existing police force to the new department. The bill also reorganizes the Oklahoma Police Commission, which is tasked with overseeing police departments in the state.

The bill also creates a new department of police training and education, with a focus on providing comprehensive training to officers. The department would be responsible for developing and implementing training programs for police officers throughout the state.

The legislation is part of a broader effort by Gov. Boren to reorganize the state’s police system and improve public safety. The governor has said that the reorganization is needed to ensure that the state has a modern, efficient, and effective police force.

The bill is expected to be signed into law by the governor shortly. With the passage of the bill, the Oklahoma Police Commission will be dissolved, and the new department will begin operations.

The new department will be led by a police chief who will be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Oklahoma Senate. The police chief will be responsible for managing the department, setting policy, and ensuring that the department is in compliance with state and federal laws.

The legislation also includes provisions to improve the funding for the new department, with increased state funding to support the department’s operations. The bill also includes provisions to improve the training of police officers, with a focus on providing comprehensive training and education to ensure that officers are prepared to serve the public.

Overall, the legislation is expected to be a major step forward in improving public safety in Oklahoma. The governor has said that the reorganization is needed to ensure that the state has a modern, efficient, and effective police force, and the legislation is expected to provide the necessary tools and resources to accomplish this goal.
Fresh French Look... Yves Saint Laurent Shows Slim Silhouette

By EILEEN GUILLOT

As the American fashion industry adapts to a more casual, sporty look, Yves Saint Laurent is bringing a touch of elegance with his collection for the season. "I wanted to design clothes that are not only stylish but also comfortable," said Saint Laurent. "We live in a world where people are on the go, and fashion should reflect that." The collection features slim silhouettes in a variety of fabrics, including wool, silk, and denim. Prices range from $200 to $1,000, so it's not for everyone. But for those who can afford it, it's a chance to own a piece of couture history.
