LOS ANGELES — Testimony by Dr. Carl Buse and others that astronaut Alexei Leonov had had a heart attack at the time of the space walk prompted a Sunday meeting of the Los Angeles City Council, which called for a moratorium on the use of space shuttles until further investigation could be made.

Buse, a medical consultant at the hospital where Leonard was treated, said he had been unable to confirm the exact cause of death. However, he said that Leonov had been healthy until he died.

The council also voted to ask the federal government to provide more information about the accident.
