Three Spellers Join Journal List Of Champs

One girl and two boys will represent Oklahoma at the National Spelling Bee April 27 in Washington, D.C. The students are: Allison Gray of the University of Oklahoma, and Donnie Brown and Tanya Bowling of Oklahoma City University.

Miss Gray, a junior who is a marketing major, is making her second trip to the annual spelling bee. Miss Gray was born in California and lives in Norman with her family.

Mr. Brown is a sophomore who is majoring in automotive technology. He lives in Oklahoma City and is a member of the university's National Honor Society. Mr. Bowling, a junior anthropology major, is making his first trip to Washington, D.C.

Mr. Brown and Mr. Bowling will represent Oklahoma's state university and community college system.

The annual spelling bee is sponsored by the National Women's Press Club and the National Education Association. It is broadcast live by NBC from the Conference Board of National Directors.

The bee traditionally attracts a large audience, with scores of students from across the country vying for the title of national spelling champion.

For information about the Oklahoma City trip, call the university's public relations office at 405-325-3322.

Subject Is Life, Death

The history of capital punishment is one of those stories of America, and all of us will be in it in one way or another. The death penalty is a subject of much debate, with supporters and opponents passionate on both sides. The debate is not just about justice, but also about the morality of taking a life.

The death penalty is not new to America. The first recorded execution in the United States was in 1608, and since then, there have been many debates about its effectiveness and fairness. Today, the debate continues as states around the country decide whether or not to keep the death penalty in their laws.

Supporters of the death penalty argue that it deters crime and justice for the victims of violent crimes. Opponents argue that the death penalty is not an effective deterrent and can be applied arbitrarily.

The debate is complex, and it is important to understand both sides of the argument. The death penalty is a serious and important topic, and it is up to each individual to decide what they believe is the right approach.

The PEOPLE'S Voice

The Resignation

The resignation of the President of the United States is a significant event in the world of politics. It is a moment that is rarely seen and often followed with great attention. The decision to resign is usually made after much consideration and consultation with advisors.

For the President, the decision to resign is a difficult one. It is a sign of weakness and a loss of confidence in their ability to lead. It is also a moment of shame and regret, as they must face the consequences of their actions.

For the country, the resignation of the President is a moment of uncertainty and change. It is a time when new leaders must arise and take up the reins of power. The country must come together and work towards a common goal, regardless of the division and discord that has arisen.

Portentuous Words

NATION'S Woes -- the variety of infestations, both great and small, upon our land and in our breasts, suggests a strong indication of a constitutional trouble. This is not to be taken lightly, for it is a sign of things to come. The nation is at a crossroads, and the decisions we make now will shape our future.

War

The war has been raging for several months, and it shows no signs of slowing down. The enemy is strong, and the losses are mounting. The nation is at a loss, and the leaders must find a way to bring the war to an end.

The nation must come together and work towards a common goal. The leaders must be strong and steadfast, and the people must be united in their determination to win.

Justice Serves To Bridge Gap

In the words of President Richard M. Nixon, the problem of poverty in the United States is "not just a social problem, but a moral problem.

President Nixon said that the United States is "a nation of poverty, a society of the poor, a people of the poor.

The president said that it is his goal to "bridge the gap" between the rich and the poor, and to ensure that "every American has the opportunity to succeed in life."
Feminist Thinkers
Moving To Front

In America

Involvement in the ERA, a new trend of feminist thinkers and activists is coming to the fore.

Feminism in the church is not new. In the 1970s, the church community was focused on the issue of equality and women's rights, but it's gained new prominence in recent years. Feminists in the church are now organizing to address issues such as gender roles, reproductive rights, and pay equity.

Religion

In addition to the ERA, the church has also been involved in the fight for women's rights. The church community has been a leader in the movement for women's rights, and has been involve in the fight for reproductive rights, pay equity, and other issues.

Christians See True Meaning Of Hope

What do you mean when you say "hope"?

Someone may say, "I hope that it will not rain tomorrow. This means that they do not want rain because it might interfere with some of their plans. However, it is simply a desire. There is no assurance that it will not rain anyway. When most people use the word hope, they are simply expressing desire.

In the Bible it is a different matter. The word hope refers to something we know will occur because we have the promise of God on the matter. We are simply waiting for it to come.

Hope stands out as one of the principal words in the vocabulary of the Apostle Paul. He pointed out that every part of the Christian character grows out of his perspective of faith in Christ. Even suffering can easily be faced because the believer has learned he can trust God. Suffering produces the ability to stick to the job. Endurance produces character and hope grows out of the mature character. Hope enables us to look courageously forward to the future because we know that it is controlled by God.

One noted Bible scholar has described the basis on which we can have hope.

“There is no reason to expect a person to find hope until he accepts what God has done for him as Christ. Christian hope is not wishful thinking, it is security based on God’s mercy and grace. That is why Paul continues to talk about justification in the context of suffering. The International Sunday School Lesson

The word hope means that Christians must understand his position in Christ before he can experience the strength of hope in Christ," the scholar says.

Hope is a necessary ingredient of faith. In salvation, the believer looks back to what God did in the person of Jesus Christ. The believer also expects God to do some things in the future. Based on what we know about God we expect these things to happen. However, since they have not happened yet, there must be faith to look to the future. Hope can be defined as faith standing on tip toes to see God fulfill His promises.

Two promises stand out in this expectancy. One is the promise that God will bring to completion the work he began in a person when that person came to God in faith. Just as a carpenter lays a foundation and then builds a house on it, God started building when we believed. He builds on our lives across the years. He completes his work in eternity. Hope expects to see the finished product of what God planned when he began work in our lives. The other promise is that of the Second Coming of Jesus Christ. Prophecies pointed to his first coming. Apollos predicted his return. Christ promised he would come again. This coming is called “The Blessed Hope of the Church.” With the assurance that God fulfills His promises, Christians look for the promised return. Christian hope is not wishful thinking, it is expecting God to keep His word.
