Guard To Watch Tornado-Hit Area

By NANCY GLISNO
Of The Journal Staff
Gov. David Boren ordered National Guardsmen to do not enter because of the danger of electrical accidents. In other words, people should not stand in the streets or maker's orders.

Governor's Office on Main Street WASHINGTON—It is Friday evening, and the Governor is still in his office at the State Capital. He is waiting for more reports about the tornado area.

Mid-South Weather Bureau.

Nest Saturday, Mary Robinson and her husband, Jim, were visiting in the area when a tornado hit their home. They were at the airport watching the weather when the tornado struck.

Brazillian Police Kill 'Deranged' Hijacker

By R. B. SIMS

Early Sooner Attorney Dies

The organizer of the Oklahoma City Jazz Festival, Michael Jones, has announced the death of a prominent attorney.

Services for attorney will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday at First Presbyterian Church, 110 E. Main St., Oklahoma City. The service will be followed by a reception at First Presbyterian Church. The family requests that no flowers be sent.

Noobler, 68, was a prominent attorney and a leader in the community. He had served as a city council member and had been active in many community organizations.

Inside News

On Thursday, Attorney General W. E. B. Orr announced that the attorney general's office would be closed for the week due to a shortage of staff. The office will reopen on Monday.

Services for attorney will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday at First Presbyterian Church, 110 E. Main St., Oklahoma City. The service will be followed by a reception at First Presbyterian Church. The family requests that no flowers be sent.

Armed Forces Toughening Up Standards For Recruiting

Although the military is in dire need of new recruits to replace the losses it has sustained in the last few years, it is making efforts to toughen up its standards for potential recruits. The changes are aimed at ensuring a more disciplined and capable force, which is crucial for the nation's defense needs. The new standards include stricter physical fitness requirements and a more rigorous medical screening process.

Broker Plans Ward 5 Race

Ralph Powers, Oklahoma City's new real estate broker, plans to run for the Ward 5 council seat. Powers, a local business owner, has a strong background in community service and is known for his dedication to improving the city's neighborhoods. He believes that his experience and commitment to the community make him a strong candidate for the position.

Secret Study Doubts Worth Of Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) - A secret study of the nation's defense spending has raised doubts about the value of the military's newest aircraft programs. The report, which was not made public, reviewed the cost-effectiveness of various aircraft projects and found that many were not delivering the promised benefits. The findings are expected to influence future defense budget decisions.

Must Curb Spending Growth

It had been a year in Washington when an accountant, Dwight D. Eisenhower, asked President Franklin D. Roosevelt, "What is the economy?"

It's a question that's being asked again by many of the country's citizens, as the costs of living continue to rise at a pace that is threatening to bankrupt the country.

The answer to the question is simple: the economy is the sum of all the goods and services produced in a country over a given period of time.

The problem is that the economy is not growing at a healthy rate. In fact, it is shrinking.

The government's budget is out of control, with deficits running in the tens of billions of dollars. The result is a growing national debt, which is now over $20 trillion.

We need to find a way to get our spending under control. It's time to start curbing our spending growth.

Bill Thorp
They Helped Get Us Through

The people of the United States have already done their part. They have paid taxes, they have worked hard, and they have contributed to the country's growth. But it's time for the government to do its part as well.

We need a new approach to solving our economic problems. We need to start cutting back on government spending, and we need to start looking for ways to increase the country's productivity.

The people of the United States are ready to do their part. Let's work together to find a solution that will work for all of us.

The People's Voice

U.S. Playing Godfather

The United States is playing a dangerous game by meddling in the affairs of other countries. We need to stop this behavior immediately.

You see, the United States is using its military power to impose its will on other nations. This is not a good thing, and it is not in the best interests of the United States.

We need to start thinking about the long-term consequences of our actions. We need to start taking responsibility for our actions, and we need to start working towards a better future for all of us.

Jack Anderson
Fed Victimizing Citizens?

The Federal Reserve is victimizing American citizens by raising interest rates. This is a clear case of abuse of power.

You see, the Federal Reserve is a private institution, and it has no right to raise interest rates without the consent of the American people.

We need to start holding the Federal Reserve accountable for its actions. We need to start demanding that it work in the best interests of the American people.

Art Buchwald
Party Stoppers

The party stopped the war. The party stopped the deficit. The party stopped the growth.

We need to start holding our leaders accountable for their actions. We need to start demanding that they work for the benefit of all of us.

Harriet Van Horne
Verdict Disturbing In Abortion Case

The verdict in the abortion case is a disturbing one. It shows that the law is not being enforced in a fair and impartial way.

We need to start demanding that the law be enforced in a fair and impartial way. We need to start demanding that justice be done for all of us.

Thomas Paine: Rabble-Rouser Sanitized Into Patriot

The people of the United States need to remember Thomas Paine. He was a true patriot, and he was a rabble-rouser.

You see, Thomas Paine was a man who spoke out against the injustices of his time. He was a man who stood up for what was right, and he was a man who was willing to pay the price.

We need to start remembering Thomas Paine. We need to start remembering that he was a true patriot, and we need to start remembering that he was a man who was willing to stand up for what was right.

Manufacturer Says Industry To Rebound

The manufacturer says the industry is on the rebound. The recent increase in sales indicates a return to normalcy. The company has been working on its recovery strategy since the downturn began in 1973. The new model is expected to be released in mid-1975. The company is optimistic about the future and expects steady growth.

Tips Given To Prevent Burglaries

While maintaining an active surveillance system, it is important to ensure all doors and windows are securely locked. Deadbolts and high-quality locks should be used on exterior doors. It is also recommended to install an alarm system. Regularly inspecting your property for any signs of damage or intrusions can help prevent burglaries.

Tom Jones Nose About Plastic Surgery

Gossip Column

By Walter F. Jones

Tom Jones, an Australian pop singer, has been in the news lately for his recent plastic surgery. He told the media that he had a nose job done, saying he was not satisfied with the look of his face. Jones has always been known for his distinctive appearance, and his fans are eager to see the results of his surgery.

Jones recently appeared on a talk show, where he revealed that he had been considering a nose job for some time. When asked why he decided to finally go through with it, Jones said, "I've always thought my nose was too big for my face. I wanted to look more like the other Australian pop singers."

The surgery was done at a private clinic, and Jones said he was happy with the results. "I'm thrilled with my new nose," he said. "It's just the right size now."

Fans of Jones have mixed reactions to the news. Some are excited to see the new look, while others are concerned about Jones' decision to undergo plastic surgery. "I always loved Tom's unique look," said one fan. "I'm not sure about this nose job."

Despite the mixed reactions, Jones is looking forward to his return to the stage. "I can't wait to see my fans again," he said. "I know they'll love the new me."

Lauren Bacall:
She's More Than Just Bogey's Widow

By SALLY QUINN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — She's 61, great looking, warm, bright, a bit of a character, very reasonable, sexy, easy to interview.

"And being a woman is a fight all the way, Jesus Christ.

Bette ("Bobby who knows me calls me Lauren") Bacall was in Washington recently for the opening of her film, "Murder on the Orient Express," and to do a few interviews.

Being a woman is a subject she talks easily about and it is clear that she has done a good deal of thinking about it.

"It's arbitrary," she says, "I don't think of myself as being that special. We're all unique, of course, but I don't think I am any more special than any other woman. I don't think I'm my sex as a man."

Part of what leads her to that conclusion is what she calls "a formula someone tells me on our backs very turned, called Paul Newman and Robert Redford," that is, the fact that there are fewer and fewer parts for women these days.

"IT'S nothing to do with women's lib. Forget women's lib. I don't particularly believe in it. I don't believe in extremism. I've always been liberal anyway, so I don't pay much attention to it.

But what she's talking about is that people aren't working parts for women, especially women of a certain age."

"The world is always going to have beautiful young girls, there will always be plenty of parts for them, but for a woman of 40 or over — and a woman at 40 is much more interesting, much more attractive, there is so much more than can be written about their relationship to men. I don't think there are that many attractive women around, anyway. We are, after all, on this earth."

"But there's always been a tendency to dismiss something that's been around for more than a year and a half. People are just tired of them. They say, 'What the hell, she's been around for a long time.' If she's over 30, you've washed out. It's like tearing down old buildings."

"THE FUNNY THING is," she says, "younger men don't want girls today. They want 16-year-old cute girls. They want given-up women."

She talks about the women's movement again, almost in passing.

"They want to get rid of men," she says incredulously. "They say, 'We can have a lot of fun. Men can be 100%.' I don't think they're as good as women. Women have more courage, more integrity. They're more honest, they deal with other people better, but I don't want to get rid of men."

She talks about her role in the film and her relationship with director Frank Sinatra.

"I've thought of a lot of men I think I'm formidable. I think, though, that they are men who aren't sure what they are or who they are. They think, 'Oh, she's been loved with me.' But I am, after all, a woman. I have

Lauren Bacall says she finally freed herself from being Humphrey Bogart's widow when she played "Appaloosa" on Broadway (at left), a role which won her a Tony. She toured with the company and performed in Oklahoma City.

She admires the role of being a formidable person and perhaps the director had that in mind when he played the head psychiatrist in a mental institution in "Shack Treadway's" (now Burte Esu) in 1964, with Buddy McDevitt as one of the patients.

Humphrey Bogart and Dooley Wilson share one of cinema's most memorable scenes, the one from "Casablanca." In which Bogart, as Rick (right), tells Wilson as Sam to "play 'As Time Goes By' for her."
Eileen Farrell:
No Degree Needed

Eileen Farrell teaches as one of the largest music schools in the country and finds that both the high and low end of musical performance requires a great deal of work from students. Many students ask her about the possibility of a degree in music, which she finds fascinating. Farrell says that there are many types of degrees one can obtain in music, but that it is important to consider what one wants to do with their music education.

Will '2001' Be Made into a TV Series?

ASK DICK KLEINER

Dear Dick,

I've been a big fan of your show for years and I was wondering if you've ever considered adapting your series '2001' into a television show. The characters and storyline are so complex and well-developed, I think they could make for a great ongoing series. What do you think?

Sincerely,

[Name]

Dear [Name],

Thank you for your letter and your kind words about '2001'. I'm glad to hear that you enjoy the show. As for adapting it into a television series, it's something I've certainly thought about. However, bringing a movie to television is a very different process than from the ground up. There are many logistical and creative considerations that need to be addressed. I'm always open to new ideas and would love to hear more about your thoughts on how '2001' could be adapted.

Sincerely,

DICK KLEINER

Play Too Much Like TV Sitcom

The TV series '2001' is famous for its long and clever dialogue, but some fans have noticed that the show has started to resemble a typical sitcom.

This week's episode featured a scene where the main character, Dave, goes to the store and interacts with the cashier. The dialogue was so quick and witty that it almost seemed like a typical sitcom. Some fans have commented that the show is losing its edge.

The producers of '2001' have been aware of the complaints and are working on ways to keep the show fresh and interesting. They hope to implement some changes in the upcoming episodes.

Sincerely,

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ANN-MARGRET

How often do you visit your home in Sweden—N. S., Long Branch, N.J.

I was very young when I came here, so I don't remember much about Sweden. But the first time I visited Valsjöbyn (my home) was in December, 1963. The entire population of about 300- wrapped in thick blankets, and on horseback and in sleighs—met me. My childhood friends spoke as though I'd never been away. In 1963, the town's first movie theater had opened and "Pocketful of Miracles," in which I made my debut, played there. I had been billed as the star, even though my role was so small you'd miss me if you blinked. Oh, yes, and everyone was fascinated by my mink coat. No one came in town had one.

FOR THE MOST REVEREND FULTON J. SHEEN

If life is ever discovered on other planets, how would theology reconcile it to the Bible?—Stanley J. Traces, Manchester, N.H.

In my opinion theology has no problem now—or later. The Bible is primarily a religious book, not a scientific one. It does not mention other planets, hence it says nothing about intelligent beings on them. Therefore, it does not deny the possibility of such inhabited planets.

FOR MRS. HENRY AARON

Was there a great deal of pressure on you when your husband was going after Babe Ruth's record last spring?—H. M. Mason, Jr., San Antonio, Texas.

I wasn't aware of how hard the pressure was until it was over. Suddenly I realized how uphill we both had been. The whole thing was a strange mixture of pain and pleasure, but Henry carried it so well I didn't realize how much it had affected him until later.

FOR ABBIGAIL VAN BUREN, "Dear Abby"

How did your column get started?—S. Wise, Portland, Ore.

I read that type of column before I wrote it. After a while, I knew I could do a better job than the person who was writing it for our local paper. I had the gall to phone the editor and say he needed me more than I needed him. Instead of hanging up, he interviewed me—and got the job.

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS, star of "The Streets of San Francisco"

Are there any drawbacks to being the son of Kirk Douglas?—P. C., Casper, Wyo.

Yes—when I'm prejudged. Before people meet me, they know everything about me. There's no aura of mystery, and I've never had the delicious experience of being asked, "What do you do?" My life is an open book. And I've never known what it's like to indulge in small talk—no one has ever said, "What does your father do?"

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Is it true there's a major movie producer who's only 19? If so, how'd he get started? I'd like to do the same.—S. P., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Yes, there is. But the young man had certain advantages that you probably don't. He's Edgar Bronfman, Jr., the 19-year-old son of the president of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc., a fellow who also happens to own almost a million shares of MGM stock, was the board chairman of MGM and headed Sagittarius Productions. Young Bronfman never went to college. He was always a moviegoer, and his dad encouraged him. At 18, he co-produced "Blackhouse" with Peter Sellers and Charles Aznavour; and his third movie venture will be "Hucklequins." Morris Wolf's new best seller, Bronfman does have talent: He wrote the lyrics for "Sunshine" for Diana Trask and "I Need You" for Peggy Lee.

FOR RODNEY DANGERFIELD

How did you get inside, "I don't get no respect," originate?—R. B., Trey, N.Y.

Very early in life I found out that no matter how rich or important, young or old, shrewd or slow you are, respect is something that is hard to find and hard to keep. We all like it, but don't always get it. That's why most people identify with my catchphrase.

FOR RAOUEL WELCH

Are you for or against Women's Lib?—J. C., Lynchburg, Va.

For it, as long as women don't lose their femininity or become hostile toward men. I'm against discrimination to women, but I don't believe they can do everything a man can. But I do get annoyed when women are put down because they're attractive. I happen to have a good business head and resent it when I'm not taken seriously. Some hooch-booze women try to disguise their charms, which I find alarming. Having sex appeal doesn't make us dumbbells.

FOR ROBERT BLAKE, star of "Baretta"

On more than one occasion you have said that you would never do a television series. What changed your mind?—Donald Brown, Sacramento, Calif.

If you play Monopoly you'll understand when I say that they changed my mind when they offered me Park Place and Boardwalk.

FOR MUHAMMAD ALI

One of your weapons seems to be the ability to get your opponents riled up and mentally off balance. Do you ever get angry in the ring?—Richard Raymond, Utica, N.Y.

No. In fact, I have to keep from laughing when I hear some cat in a casket say that he is there to see me get a lesson for being such a big mouth. If I didn't play the part of the big mouth, that seat wouldn't be worth $250 to him. And I wouldn't have such a big purse.

The World's Records We Recall Most Vividly

By Norris and Ross McWhirter

We marvel at the rapidity with which people can recall the names of all the Presidents of the United States and the dates of their administrations. Such an impressive achievement can be the result of careful study and hard work. The world record for President's names, however, is much more challenging. It requires a memory that can retain a vast amount of information. The world record for most American Presidents recalled is held by a person who can recite the names of all 44 U.S. Presidents and their dates of service. This record has stood for over 30 years and is likely to remain untied for many years to come. It requires a memory that can retain a vast amount of information. A college President and an Army General want to tell you about a new plan that lets you enlist in the Army and start college at the same time.

“About eighteen months ago, the Army began to develop a bold, new concept in cooperative education. Project Ahead.

“The program began at one university in the Midwest. Interest was so great the Army decided to expand it across the country. Today, the program involves over 800 colleges and universities. And it’s still growing.

“Project Ahead’s structure is basically simple. But its benefits to young people and their parents are enormous.

“First of all, it is a unique individualized education plan. One that allows you to choose, if you qualify, an “alma mater” before you enlist. (Normally a participating school in your home area.) So no matter which college or colleges you attend while in the Army, you’ll know beforehand the courses you’ll need for credit at the school you want to graduate from.

“Secondly, the Army provides financial aid. College courses are available to you while you’re in the Army. And the Army will pay up to 75% of the tuition for these courses. (After your enlistment’s over, you’ll be eligible for 36 months of financial assistance under the G.I. Bill.)

“We, in the educational community, are enthusiastic about this new plan. In fact, many of us believe Project Ahead will be as important to young people entering the Army as the G.I. Bill has been to veterans.”

Dr. Arthur G. Hansen
President, Purdue University

“Project Ahead is the most exciting idea in education that the Army has ever offered.

“Too often people in the service have taken college courses from one school, only to learn later those courses would not apply toward their degrees. Project college courses you take in the Army. And now you can make sure you get credit for the college courses you successfully complete.

“Project Ahead is by no means a free ride. Because while you’re working toward a college degree, you’ll be serving your country. You’ll be a soldier full time.

What It's Like to Raise Daughters Nearly 18 Years Apart

By Rachel Anderson

The 1970s was a time of great change in America. It was a time of political upheaval, social revolution, and cultural shifts. It was also a time of personal growth for me, as a mother of two daughters.

I had always been a stay-at-home mom, and I loved it. I loved spending time with my girls, watching them grow and learn. But as the decade progressed, I began to feel like there was something missing.

I started to wonder what it would be like to go to work full-time, to have a career. I didn't want to leave my girls, but I also wanted to experience something new. So, in the summer of 1979, I decided to take a job as a receptionist at the local hospital.

At first, it was hard. I had to leave my girls at home, and I was away from them for hours at a time. But I found that I really enjoyed my job. I loved interacting with patients, and I was always learning something new.

And then, something strange happened. My oldest daughter, who was just turning 10, started to act like a teenager. She wasmoody, stubborn, and ungrateful. She refused to do her homework, and she started to argue with me all the time.

I was shocked. My daughter had always been a good student, and she had always been respectful. But now, she was acting like a teenager. And as the years went by, she became more and more like one. She refused to do her chores, and she started to argue with me all the time.

I tried everything. I talked to her, I wrote letters, I even took her to counseling. But nothing seemed to work. She was just like any other teenager. And as the years went by, she became more and more like one.

I started to wonder if there was something wrong with my daughter. Was she developing normally? Was there something...
Do Your Neighbors Consider You a Good Neighbor?

TRUE OR FALSE?
1. Most people agree that a good neighbor is a good neighbor if he or she has children.
2. Most people agree that a good neighbor is a good neighbor if he or she has a disability.
3. Most people agree that a good neighbor is a good neighbor if he or she is a good neighbor to other people.
4. Most people agree that a good neighbor is a good neighbor if he or she is a good neighbor to their neighbors.

ANSWERS
1. True—according to the findings of recent neighborhood surveys conducted by sociologist Jane McElroy, which showed that the majority of respondents defined a good neighbor as someone who was friendly, was interested in community affairs, and was helpful to others. The majority of respondents also agreed that a good neighbor is a person who is willing to help others.

What in the World!

Jackie Onassis

What is her public appeal?
The definitive last word on Jackie: Now banned from being within 25 feet of Jackie Onassis, photographer Ron Galella muses about the woman who has, inadvertently, made him famous: "There are four kinds of wealth that make up glamour and the beautiful people. They are social, monetary, physical and psychological. Jackie Kennedy has all four and that is why she is the most glamorous woman in the world. The social wealth she attained by marrying the charismatic John F. Kennedy when he was an up-and-coming politician with the Presidency in mind; the monetary wealth she attained by marrying Onassis . . .; and the physical beauty she inherited. She has a big-boned athletic body, yet is as graceful as a fashion model. She has large, beautiful eyes, set far apart. She keeps her physical beauty by jogging, riding horses, which she loves, and through other sports, such as swimming and water-skiing. Last, but not least, the psychological wealth. Jackie has a quiet, intellectual, extraordinary, mysterious beauty. She is sensitive, poetic and independent." From "Jacqueline," by Ron Galella (Shoed and Ward Inc., $12.95).

Just plain pain: "Chronic pain is the most serious disabling disease. Its cost in human suffering is incalculable. Its cost in medical expense dollars has been estimated at $50 billion a year. The average doctor does not even think of pain as a specific entity, but only as part of another problem, a symptom. We have learned better. There is pain which exists of and for itself. As a result, a new specialty is emerging in medical practice: the therapy of pain. It is a specialty not practiced on an individual basis, like cardiology or obstetrics, but rather in a team approach that brings together the skills of a number of medical specialists in a combined attack upon a condition whose underlying causes may be very obscure." From "The Conquest of Pain," by Samuel Mines (Grosset & Dunlap, $7.95).

C. Alphonso Smith

One ahead of Bobby Riggs

Surprising champion of champions C. Alphonso Smith speaking: "I have often said to my wife that I want to die on a tennis court. She says that if I keep playing singles at age 65, I should reach my goal." Smith, from Charlottesville, Va., holds an amazing 30 national titles, and in 1924 he won both the National Boys Singles and Doubles championships. Last fall, he won the national 65-and-over Doubles Championship on all four surfaces—hard court, indoor, grass and clay. Between these two victories, Smith managed to put together a string of titles that places him one ahead of Bobby Riggs and one behind Bill Tilden in total championships. Even more amazing, many of his matches have been won since 1962, when Smith lost three toes on his right foot in a lawn-mower accident.

Quips & Quotes

Armour's Armour

By Richard Armour

What's Watt?

When I'd replace a hundred watt
A sixty watt is all I've got,
Or when a sixty's what I need
A hundred's all I have, indeed.
And so it goes with twenty-five
And forty watters. How I strive
To keep replacements on the shelf—
It makes me think about myself.
If in my job or with my spouse,
Around the office or the house,
I am replaced, I really ache
To know what wattage it would take.

I saw a vocalist on TV who came
Out wearing a wig, fake eyelashes, caps
On her teeth and a half inch of pancake
Makeup. Her opening number was "I Can't Be Me."

Most people would rather defend to death your right to say it is listen to it.

An English professor at the university who works told this story about his son: It seems the boy was just learning to dress himself, and he usually came up with some very mismatched combinations. One day he came downstairs wearing a pair of beige pants and a paisley shirt with a brown sweater to match. He even had on coordinating socks. The little boy beamed as he walked into the kitchen and said, "Look, Daddy, I'm dressed!"
