CIA Pessimistic About Cambodia

From Japan Wires
WASHINGTON — Several French ministers traveled to the nation on Monday in order to prevent the government from making a decision on whether or not to sell the United States the missiles before the end of the month. The visit is part of a continuing effort by the French government to prevent the sale of the missiles.

The government has been under pressure to delay the sale, but French officials have said that the missiles are needed to protect French forces in the region.

[Dow Jones Newswires]

Guenter Schabert, a spokesman for the French government, said that the French government would continue to work with the United States to ensure that the sale of the missiles is not finalized.

Schabert said that the French government would continue to work with the United States to ensure that the sale of the missiles is not finalized.

In a statement released earlier this week, the French government said that the sale of the missiles would be delayed until further notice.

Senators Rap Dogs, Drunks

The Senate Majority, led by Vice President Al Gore, has introduced a bill that would require all members of the Senate to pass a test on how much they know about their responsibilities.

The bill, which has been sponsored by several other senators, would require senators to pass a test on how much they know about their responsibilities.

The test would include questions on various issues, including policy matters and budgetary issues.

Visitors Call Brezhnev Sick

(August 13, 1971) — Three European leaders have been to Moscow for talks with Brezhnev, and the leaders have expressed concern about the health of the Soviet leader.

The leaders — François Mitterrand of France, Helmut Kohl of West Germany, and Helmut Schmidt of West Germany — met with Brezhnev on Thursday to discuss a wide range of issues, including the situation in Afghanistan.

Mitterrand, who is visiting Moscow for the first time, said that he was concerned about the health of Brezhnev, who has been hospitalized in recent weeks.

“I am concerned about his health, and I hope that he will get better soon,” Mitterrand said.

Kohl said that he understood the concerns of the European leaders and that he hoped that Brezhnev would recover.

“Brezhnev is a strong leader, and we believe that he will get better soon,” Kohl said.

Schmidt, who is also visiting Moscow for the first time, said that he was concerned about the situation in Afghanistan and that he hoped that the talks would be successful.

“I am concerned about the situation in Afghanistan, and I hope that the talks will be successful,” Schmidt said.

Foreign Doctor Issue

The Home Office of the National Medical Association has been the center of controversy over the issue of foreign-trained doctors in the U.S. medical system. The organization has been vocal in its opposition to the importation of foreign-trained doctors, citing concerns about their qualifications and the potential impact on the U.S. healthcare system.

In a recent statement, the Association called for a moratorium on the importation of foreign-trained doctors, arguing that such moves would undermine the standards of medical education and training in the U.S. The organization has also called for increased investment in local medical education programs to address the shortage of doctors in the U.S.

The controversy has sparked debates among policymakers, educators, and medical professionals. Some argue that foreign-trained doctors bring valuable expertise and can help address the shortage of doctors in certain specialties. Others believe that the importation of foreign-trained doctors could compromise the quality of care provided in the U.S.

The issue has also raised concerns about the potential impact on the employment of native doctors. Some fear that the importation of foreign-trained doctors could lead to a decrease in the demand for doctors in the U.S., potentially leading to job losses and economic implications.

The debate continues as the Home Office of the National Medical Association and other organizations continue to advocate for their respective positions on the issue of foreign-trained doctors in the U.S. medical system.

Easter Wonderland Set In Crossroads

Floral Exhibits, Rabbits Highlight Mar. 11-30 Event

Easter Wonderland returns to Crossroads Mall near Shep-Perth-Mar-Mar through Mar. 30 by popular demand and once more promising sunshine, Crossroads officials reported.

Featured this year will be a colorfully constructed Easter Village, with bunny and bunny rabbits for the children.

The entire family will have the opportunity to see the Easter bunny, as well as a variety of other decorations.

More than 500 colorful flowers will be displayed inside the glass cases of the Crossroads Shopping Center, and bunnies will be available for photographs with the children.

Paintings, drawings, posters and other related items are on exhibit, and mementos for the children will be available at the Crossroads Mall gift shop.

The Crossroads Easter Bunny will be at the mall from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, starting today.
