House Back at Court
Douglas Defies Docs

The Los Angeles Times Service
WASHINGTON (AP) - With characteristic disdain, Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart yesterday asked William D. Douglas to return to his seat. The justice was about to begin his argument in a case yesterday morning.

Douglas, who was being challenged by a blue suit and an orange tie, had been asked to return to his seat. The justice was about to begin his argument in a case yesterday morning.

"That's not coming back," the 87-year-old justice replied to his challenge, who had asked him to stop.

Douglas, who has been on the court since 1939, has a reputation for being difficult to work with. He is known for his frequent use of the word "indecisive" when discussing cases.

Washington Post Service
WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - The Senate works out tax compromise

The Senate has worked out a tax compromise that would add up to about $7 billion, according to sources close to the negotiations. The deal includes provisions for major tax cuts, including a 20 percent reduction in the corporate tax rate.

The agreement would also include a repeal of the death tax, a tax on the money that is passed from one generation to the next.

"It's a major victory for us," said one source. "We've been working on this for months."
