Peach Leaf Curl Hits Area

A rare and severe disease, peach leaf curl, has been identified in the state. The disease is caused by a fungus that affects peach trees and can lead to stunted growth, reduced fruit production, and tree death. Growers are advised to monitor their trees closely and take necessary precautions to control the spread of the disease.

Peach Leaf Curl Hits Area

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a warning to gardeners in the area about peach leaf curl, which can cause significant damage to peach trees. The disease is caused by a fungal infection that affects the leaves and twigs of peach trees. Affected trees may show yellowing of leaves, curling of leaves, and leaf drop. It is important for gardeners to monitor their trees for signs of peach leaf curl and take action if necessary to control the disease.

A federal law requiring certification of all private apple growers in Stone County has been announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The law requires that all growers who wish to sell their fruit in interstate commerce must be certified by the USDA. The certification process is designed to protect consumers by ensuring that the fruit is free from disease and contamination. Growers who fail to meet the certification requirements will be subject to fines and other penalties.
