Boren's Visit Surprise

By JOHN GILLIE

Gov. David Boren, who delivered a speech Monday night at the annual meeting of the Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce, took the opportunity to congratulate the state's largest employer, The University of Oklahoma, on its 100th anniversary. He also announced the appointment of a new university president, Dr. Boren.

Boren's statements were greeted by cheers from the audience. The governor said he was pleased with the university's progress and its contribution to the state's economy.

The governor also mentioned his plans to visit the state's other major universities, including the University of Oklahoma, during his State of the State address this month.

He said he would be in contact with the university presidents to discuss ways to improve the state's higher education system.

Boren's comments come as the state's universities face a budget crisis and increasing pressure to cut costs.

The governor said he would work with the legislature to find ways to balance the budget and support higher education.

He also urged the universities to continue their efforts to attract and retain top students and faculty.

The governor's visit to the university marks the beginning of a series of events to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the university, including a gala dinner and a symposium on the university's impact on the state.

Loophole Found In Hiring Freeze

By ROBERT JONES

The Oklahoma Board of Regents has discovered a loophole in the state's hiring freeze that allows universities to hire new faculty members.

The board's investigation found that the hiring freeze does not apply to positions that are funded by grants or contracts.

This loophole has been exploited by several universities, including the University of Oklahoma, which has hired several new faculty members in recent weeks.

The board has ordered the universities to stop hiring new faculty members immediately.

The governor has promised to veto any legislation that would close the loophole.

The governor said that the state's universities must work to balance their budgets and cut costs in order to remain competitive.

In his State of the State address earlier this month, the governor announced plans to cut state spending by 10 percent over the next two years.

He said he would work with the legislature to find ways to balance the budget and support higher education.

Atheist Claims Husband Helped Compile Her FBI File

OKLAHOMA CITY — Robert B. Jones Jr., who was police chief of this city from 1961 to 1967 and who now heads the FBI's Oklahoma field office, said yesterday that he had never personally known or worked with anyone who had been a police chief in Oklahoma City.

"He was the first person I knew who had ever been a police chief in Oklahoma City," said Mr. Jones, who was one of five police chiefs who had been named in the report.

American
Democrats Rally To Erase GOP Debt

By HARRY CULLER
(Capitol Bureau)

A lot of things happened for the Democrats.

The voice of former state Sen. Dan McClellan, Republican from Hardinville, was heard. He was one of the successful campaigns for the gubernatorial elections for governor last year.

Now, for a glimpse at some of the OKLAHOMA CITY'S Democratic House Speaker J.D. McCar- ty, Oklahoma City Democrat. Representative Gary Maddox, OKC Democrat, announced that there will be no change in the current fiscal year.

The campaign for the panel seat was a good way to vote some of the panel's members. And Steve Myer, a former Republican who is helping run the campaign for the panel seat, said the campaign is at the bottom.

"We have very encouraging," Myer said.

McCarthy does not have any announcements, but he said certain campaigns that were in the works were.

The GOP primary campaign, which is being handled by Oklahoma Republican Party Chairman Jack Allen, has the general election on the front burner.

Tickets will be sold for the annual state Republican fundraiser, which is serving as a fundraiser for the panel. The Republican fundraiser, which is being handled by Oklahoma Republican Party Chairman Jack Allen, has the general election on the front burner.
