Doubt Cast On Rosenbgton Case

By DAVID GILMAN

NEW YORK—We have doubts, the only thing that Mr. Leland and the others assure us. We can't get a grip on the plane that they are flying with, anyhow the plane is nowhere to be found.

Mr. Leland was in the dock, and we could hear him say to the jury:

"But before I come to my conclusion, I have a question to ask.
"Was this wiretap tape what you're referring to in your statement?"

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

"Because it was recorded from a tape by Mr. Leland himself."

"And what about the photograph that was shown to you during your interrogations?"

"That was not shown to me."

"But it was shown to me during the interrogation."

"That's not true."

"I don't remember saying that."

"But it was shown to you in the interrogation."

"I never saw that photograph."

"But it was shown to you in the interrogation."

"I don't remember seeing it."

"But it was shown to you in the interrogation."

"I don't remember it."

"But it was shown to you in the interrogation."

"I don't remember.

Kissinger Says NATO Still Questions U.S. Reliability

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today said that NATO still questions U.S. reliability in defense of Europe. In a statement, Kissinger said, "There are many uncertainties about the ability of the United States to be a reliable partner in the defense of Europe. NATO nations must be assured that the United States will honor its commitments." The statement comes as tensions rise between the U.S. and Europe over calls for increased military spending and the possibility of unilateral actions by the United States. Kissinger added that the U.S. must "reaffirm its commitment to European defense" and work with Europe to ensure a "robust and reliable alliance."

Luray Caverns Spelunker's Delight

By EMILY FRANKLIN

Luray Caverns, Virginia's wonderland of natural beauty, is the world's largest caverns. For months, thousands of visitors to Luray Caverns have ventured deep into the caverns to see the world's largest salt-and-stone hag. The caverns themselves are a marvel of nature's artistry. For the past 40 years the caverns have been a major attraction for visitors to Shenandoah Valley.

The caverns are located on U.S. 11, about 80 miles southwest of Washington, D.C. They are open to visitors all year round. The caverns have a total length of over 1100 feet and are 100 feet wide. The ceiling is supported by stalactites that curve downward towards the floor. The walls and ceiling are covered in a dense layer of stalactites, stalagmites, and columns. There are also a number of large rooms and halls inside the caverns. The caverns are home to a variety of bats, including the cave bear and the Tennessee bat. The caverns are a popular destination for spelunkers and cavers. The caverns have been explored by many cavers over the years and continue to be explored by new cavers each year.

Success Awes 'Misbegotten' Star

When "A House for Mr. Bischoff" opened, everyone realized that Colleen Dewhurst had become the first lady of Broadway. Everyone, that is, except Colleen Dewhurst.

The tiresome reviews and the critical acclamation -- all four of them four and a half stars -- did not sit well with her. She was as hard hit by this performance as is Julie Rogers in the Rogers and Hammerstein's show, and that didn't bother her. She thought it was better than her last role, but it didn't bother her.

"It's the usual sort of nonsense," she says, "they've been saying it for years."

Colleen Dewhurst, 44, is a good-looking woman with a soft voice, a warm smile, and a quick laugh. Her left eye is slightly crossed, which makes her look like a movie star.

"I wish I could take my husband to see 'The House,"‘ she says. "He's been living with me for years, but he still hasn't seen it yet."

"He's not interested in going to the theatre," she says. "He likes to stay at home and read the newspaper."

"I wish he could see how good I am," she says. "But he just doesn't understand."

Colleen Dewhurst has mark...

NEW SKATING LESSONS

Super Scooter Skating Lessons

By the time she was 12, Barbara had become a professional skater and was able to command 10 cents a minute.

She passed the test with flying colors.

Barbara's first lesson was given by her father, who taught her to fall on her back and roll to her feet, a skill that is essential in the sport. She also learned how to skate on ice, which she found to be much more difficult than on water.

Barbara's success was not limited to her own growth. She was able to inspire others to take up the sport, and her dedication and hard work made her a role model for future skaters.
