Panel Deadlocked on Impeachment

By RONALD DAVIES
The Journal Star
A deadlocked House Judiciary Committee report was sent to the key Senate committee on impeachment, effectively killing the chances of any new impeachment hearings being held.

The 10-member committee voted 5-5 on Wednesday on whether to send the impeachment article to the Senate. The committee's recommendation must be supported by a majority of 6 votes in both chambers of Congress to proceed with an impeachment trial.

The key Senate committee, the special committee on impeachment, is now expected to rule on the matter next week. The committee's decision will determine whether the impeachment process is revived.

If the Senate committee rules in favor of impeachment, the case will go to the Senate for a vote on whether to impeach the president.

If the Senate committee rules against impeachment, the president will remain in office.

Panel Sets Garbage Meeting

By HARRY J. MILLER

The panel on waste management at the Oklahoma City Council meeting has recommended that the city adopt a moratorium on the construction of new garbage plants. The panel, which was formed in response to the growing problem of garbage, recommended that the city adopt a moratorium on the construction of new garbage plants for one year. The panel said that the construction of new garbage plants would add to the city's environmental problems and that the city should instead focus on improving its existing garbage facilities.

Little time was spent discussing the present facilities, which although varying from 20% to 30% of the total cost of the project, the panel said. The panel recommended that the city adopt a moratorium on the construction of new garbage plants for one year.

McKee也不是唯一一个开始实施这些政策的人，他和他所在的州已经看到了垃圾处理费用的上升。McKee said that his state had already introduced new regulations to address the problem of garbage, including an increase in the fees for garbage collection.
