Naval Balance Of Power

The Strategic Posture Of The United States Is Based On The Principle That We Must Have A Strong Navy, Air Force, And Army. Our Naval Power Is Not Meant To Be Used In War; It Is Meant To Prevent War By Deterrence. The Navy Is The Key To Our National Security, And It Must Be Strong Enough To Ensure That Any Adversary Cannot Challenge Our Naval Power.

Time, Place For Regulation

Although we have enjoyed freedom from government regulation for quite a while, there are some areas where regulation may be necessary. For example, in the airline industry, regulations are necessary to ensure safety, while in the tobacco industry, regulations are necessary to protect public health. However, in other areas, such as the internet, regulation may not be necessary, as market forces can provide adequate protection.
