Mayor Picks Housing Aide?

By TERRY NELSON

Mayor Patrick Kitchen announced Monday night that he is considering hiring an assistant director of public housing to help move forward with the construction of the Oklahoma City Housing Authority.

The aide would be responsible for overseeing the $1 billion in federal funds for public housing that the city has received in recent years.

The position is currently filled by a temporary employee, but Kitchen said he wants to make the position permanent.

"I want to make sure we have the right person in place to make sure we get the most out of our federal funding," Kitchen said.

The position would be a key role in the city's effort to improve public housing, which has faced criticism in the past for its management and maintenance.

The aide would be expected to work closely with federal agencies and private partners to ensure that the funds are used effectively.

"We need someone who can help us navigate the complexities of federal funding," Kitchen said.

The position would also involve working with city agencies and community groups to ensure that residents have access to safe and healthy homes.

"We want to make sure our residents are getting the best possible care," Kitchen said.

The aide would be a key figure in the city's efforts to improve public housing, and Kitchen said he is excited about the potential for positive change.

"This is a chance to make a real difference for our residents," Kitchen said.

'Boren Chooses Ex-Councilman'

By HOWARD DAVIS

REVERED OKLAHOMA CITY Mayor Boren has announced that he will not seek re-election, ending a 30-year tenure as one of the city's most beloved leaders.

Boren, 79, has been a fixture on the political scene for decades, serving as mayor for over 20 years. He was first elected to the position in 1978 and has been re-elected every four years since.

In a statement released Monday, Boren said he made the decision after much reflection, and that he wants to leave office on good terms.

"I have served Oklahoma City well for over three decades," Boren said. "It's time for me to step aside and allow a new generation of leaders to take the helm."

Boren's announcement comes as the city faces a number of challenges, including a growing budget deficit and a declining population.

"We have a lot of work to do," Boren said. "But I believe the city is in good hands, and I'm confident that the new mayor will continue to move us forward in the right direction."

Boren's decision has been met with widespread praise and support, with many in the city expressing gratitude for his service.

"Mayor Boren has been a pillar of this city," said Councilman John Thompson. "He has served us well, and we will miss him greatly."

Boren is expected to remain in office until the end of his term in early 2023.

Ford Signs Bill To Aid Unemployed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed a bill that provides $1 billion in federal aid to help unemployed Americans.

The measure was passed by Congress last week and is aimed at helping workers who have lost their jobs due to the recession.

"This bill is a vital step in helping our unemployed workers through this difficult time," said Ford. "Our goal is to provide the support they need to get back on their feet and back to work as quickly as possible."

The funds will be distributed through a variety of programs, including unemployment benefits and job training initiatives.

"This is a major step in helping our unemployed workers," said Representative John Hall. "It's important that we provide the support they need to get back on their feet and back to work as quickly as possible."

New Garbage Man

SNIPER'S SUCCESSOR 'SURPRISED'

He'll Be On Job Today

By HOWARD DAVIS

Former Oklahoma City Mayor Boren had been the city's garbage man for many years, but his successor is stepping into the job.

The new garbage man is a surprised and excited one, as he has just taken over the position.

"I never expected to be the new garbage man," said the new man. "But I'm ready to take on the job and do my best."

The new man has been a familiar face around Oklahoma City for years, and he has a strong background in waste management.

"I'm confident I can do the job well," said the new man.

Boren had been the garbage man for over 20 years, and he had become a beloved figure in the community.

"We will miss Mayor Boren, but we will continue to work hard to provide the best service for our customers," said the new man.

Coal, Nuclear Energy Urged

The Washington D.C. Bureau, WASHINGTON — The nation's two largest energy companies, coal and nuclear, have joined forces to urge the government to invest more in these sources of energy.

The companies, which represent the majority of the country's electricity generation, have launched a campaign to convince policymakers that coal and nuclear are essential to our energy future.

"We need to invest in these energy sources now," said one of the campaign leaders. "The time to act is now before it's too late."

The campaign comes as the country grapples with the global energy crisis, which has driven up prices and created a growing sense of anxiety.

"We need to act now," said another campaign leader. "Our energy future is at stake."

The campaign is being supported by a range of organizations, including environmental groups, business leaders, and government officials.

"We need to act now," said one environmental leader. "The time to act is now before it's too late."

City Lawyer's Trial Begins

By LARRY CARMAN

The state bar trial of the Oklahoma City attorney who is facing charges of attempting to bribe a public official into not investigating complaints against him will begin today in Oklahoma City.

The trial, which has been highly anticipated, is expected to last several days and is expected to attract national attention.

"This is a highly publicized trial," said one lawyer familiar with the case. "It's going to be a real test of the system."

The trial will go on until a verdict is reached, and it is expected that the outcome will have a significant impact on the legal profession in Oklahoma City.

"This is a trial that's going to have an impact on the entire legal system," said another lawyer familiar with the case. "It's going to be a real test of the system."

9 Cities Lose $3 Million For Prisons

State To Get $3 Million For Prisons

By JOHN GILLIE

The state of Oklahoma has been awarded $3 million in grants to help fund prison construction projects in nine cities.

The grants were awarded through a competitive process, and they are intended to help states expand their prison capacity and improve the conditions of inmates.

"These grants are a significant investment in the future of our states," said one state official. "They will help us meet the needs of our growing prison population."
