Dewey Returns From Somalia

BARTLET SEES SOVIET FACILITY

Pentagon Claims Backed

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon has denied reports that the United States is installing a nuclear facility in Somalia.

Just returned from a visit to the country, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger said that he found no evidence of a secret nuclear facility in Somalia.

Schlesinger said he had visited the country to discuss matters of national security, including the possibility of a nuclear facility.

Schlesinger acknowledged that there had been speculation about the existence of a nuclear facility in Somalia.

However, he said there was no evidence to support that claim.

Impeachment

Windup Slated

The Senate will formally attempt to impeach President Richard Nixon on Tuesday, the day after his resignation, with the full Senate scheduled to consider the charges against him.

The Senate will vote on two articles of impeachment — abuse of power and obstruction of justice.

Nixon's resignation came after a series of events that led to his unceremonious exit from the White House.

Nixon was forced to resign after the Watergate scandal, which began with a break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The scandal led to a series of congressional hearings, culminating in the impeachment process.

Lava from the volcano poured into the sea, creating a dramatic display of nature's power.

The eruption was the latest in a series of volcanic eruptions in Hawaii, which have been occurring with increasing frequency.

The volcano is part of the Hawaiian Islands, which are located in the Pacific Ocean.
