Issues Clear, Boren Says

GOOD - Gov. David Boren said Saturday that in order to resolve the budget crisis in Oklahoma, the state must come to grips with the fiscal problems and make some hard decisions. Boren said the govern- ment has a duty to the citizens of Oklahoma to provide a quality education system, but the state is unable to do so without making some tough decisions.

'This is a hard decision to make, but it's necessary for the future of our state.' Boren said. 'We must be realistic about our finances and make changes that will benefit Oklahoma for years to come.'

The governor outlined several proposals that are being considered, including cuts to state employee salaries and benefits, reductions in state spending, and a tax increase on certain goods and services. Boren emphasized the importance of education and said the state must prioritize investing in schools and teachers.

'We cannot afford to neglect our schools and the future of our children,' Boren said. 'We must find a way to fund our education system while also addressing our fiscal challenges.'

Boren's proposals face opposition from some members of the legislature, who argue that the state cannot afford to raise taxes or cut spending. However, Boren emphasized the urgency of the situation and said the state cannot afford to procrastinate.

'If we do not act now, the consequences will be dire,' Boren said. 'We must make tough decisions and take the necessary steps to ensure the future of Oklahoma.'

The governor concluded by encouraging citizens to stay informed and to participate in the decision-making process.

Burglars Loot Art Collection

The theft of a boot art collection from a Oklahoma City museum is causing a furor in the city. The value of the boot collection is estimated to be around $200,000.

The boot collection includes a variety of cowboy boots from different regions of the United States. The stolen boots are unique and have been on display at the museum for years.

The theft is believed to have occurred during the night of July 19th. The museum was closed at the time of the theft, and no security guards were on duty.

The Oklahoma City Police Department is currently investigating the theft. They are hoping to recover the boots and bring the perpetrators to justice.

Two Leap In Ford Vetos Threatens Oil Price Explosion

President Ford has threatened to veto legislation that would increase oil prices. The legislation, which passed in Congress last week, is designed to increase revenue to help fund the federal budget.

President Ford said that the current oil prices are too low and that increases are necessary to ensure the nation's energy security.

"The higher oil prices will help to stabilize the market and reduce the risk of another oil crisis," Ford said. "I urge Congress to reconsider this legislation and work towards a solution that is in the best interest of the nation."
