Firemen Vote In Stillwater

STILLWATER (AP) — Firefighters will vote Monday on whether to end their contract with the city of Stillwater and begin picketing. The city offers a new contract, but the firefighters' union is unhappy with the proposed changes.

The union represents 160 firefighters in Stillwater and says the city has failed to negotiate a new contract for two years. The union has filed a lawsuit against the city, alleging that the city has violated its contract agreement.

In Stillwater, firefighters are not paid as much as their counterparts in neighboring communities, union officials say.

Farm Pond Claims Aoko Man

A man who said he is the last remaining in a family of Aoko Man, a subcategory of the Ojibwe tribe, has been arrested in Minnesota for allegedly threatening to kill a cow with a bow and arrow.

The man, who identified himself as Aoko Man, was arrested and charged with first-degree assault and some other offenses. He said he was attempting to protect his family's property.

Refinery Pollution Costs Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clean Air Act requires that refineries produce lower sulfur levels, but industry officials say the costs of complying could exceed $1 billion. The debate has been ongoing for years, with some lawmakers arguing that the costs are too high and others saying that the industry should bear the costs.

Texoma Landmark Gets Eviction Notice

TEXOMA LANDMARK — The Texoma Landmark, a restaurant in the heart of downtown, is facing eviction. The owner, a former soldier, said he cannot afford to pay the rent.

The restaurant has been in operation for over 30 years and has been a favorite among locals and visitors. The restaurant, located at the corner of Fourth and Chestnut, serves a variety of dishes including sandwiches, salads, and desserts.

The owner, who served in the military, said he struggled with post-traumatic stress disorder and used his savings to open the restaurant.

"I've lived here for 30 years," the owner said. "This place means everything to me."

The landlord, a local businessman, said he has been trying to work out a deal with the owner.

"We've tried everything," the landlord said. "We want to keep this place open, but we can't keep giving away rent."
