City's Economy Takes Sharp Turn Upward

By DON SHOEKLEY

Business Conditions Improved in Both City

The Oklahoma City Economic Development Foundation's latest quarterly survey has shown a marked improvement in business conditions in Oklahoma City. The survey, conducted by the foundation's Economic Research Department, found that 70 percent of the businesses surveyed reported an increase in sales and profits over the previous quarter. Additionally, 60 percent of the businesses reported an increase in employee morale and productivity.

The survey also found that the largest percentage of businesses reported an increase in investments, with 50 percent of the respondents indicating an increase in capital expenditures. However, the survey noted that the increase in investments was due to increased demand for products and services rather than a response to the current economic environment.

The survey further noted that the increase in investments was also due to the expectation of future economic growth. The survey respondents were optimistic about the future of the Oklahoma City economy, with 70 percent of the businesses reporting an increase in their plans for expansion and growth.

The survey concluded that the overall economic conditions in Oklahoma City have improved significantly over the previous quarter, with businesses reporting an increase in sales, profits, investments, and employee morale. The survey respondents were optimistic about the future of the Oklahoma City economy and expected continued growth in the coming months.

COUNTY'S ROAD PLAN ASSAILED

LSD Tested On Kids

Proposal Outlined

For Tax

By MARVIN MASSEL

Oklahoma County voters are being asked to approve a tax increase to fund a new road construction project.

The proposal, known as the "County's Road Plan," would increase property taxes by 2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The tax would be used to fund the construction of new roads and improvements to existing roads in the county.

The proposal is supported by the Oklahoma County Commission and the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, who argue that the tax increase is necessary to address the county's growing transportation needs.

Opponents of the tax proposal argue that it is an unnecessary burden on property owners and that the money could be better spent elsewhere.

Soviet Sales Boost Sugar Prices

By GENE BOWERS

Sugar prices in Oklahoma City have increased significantly over the past year, due to a combination of factors.

The increase in sugar prices is due to a decrease in the global sugar supply, coupled with an increase in demand. The global sugar supply has been affected by a decrease in production in Brazil, the world's largest producer, due to a series of adverse weather events.

The increase in demand for sugar is due to a combination of factors, including a decrease in the production of other commodities, such as corn and wheat, which compete with sugar for use as a feedstock in biofuels.

The increase in sugar prices has had a significant impact on the Oklahoma City area, with sugar prices increasing by 20 percent over the past year. The increase in sugar prices has led to an increase in the cost of food products, which in turn has led to a decrease in the purchasing power of consumers.

Boren Vows 'Pork Veto' Next Year

By MARVIN MASSEL

Oklahoma City, OK - Oklahoma City's mayor, Robert Boren, has vowed to implement a "pork veto" next year, a measure that would allow him to veto any budget proposals that include funding for projects that are not in the best interest of the city.

Boren said he would use the veto power to ensure that the city's taxpayers' money is used wisely and efficiently.

"I don't want to see any more pork in our budget," Boren said. "I want to make sure that every dollar spent is in the best interest of our city and our taxpayers.

"I want to see a budget that is fair and fiscally responsible," he added. "I want to see a budget that is a reflection of the priorities of the people of Oklahoma City.

"I want to see a budget that is a reflection of the priorities of the people of Oklahoma City.

Boren said he would work with the city council to develop a budget that is fair and fiscally responsible, and that would reflect the priorities of the people of Oklahoma City.

Schools Produce Budget In Secret

By JOHN GALLIE

The Oklahoma City Board of Education has produced a budget for the coming school year without public input or discussion.

The budget, which was presented to the public in a news release, includes an increase in the salaries of teachers and administrators, as well as an increase in the funds allocated for special education programs.

The budget was developed without input from the community, and the public was not given an opportunity to provide feedback or make suggestions.

The Oklahoma City Board of Education has been criticized in the past for producing budgets without public input.

An Analysis

The budget was developed in a closed session, and the public was not given an opportunity to provide feedback or make suggestions.

Comics Thrive During Bad Times

The Endurance of the American comic book is a testament to its resilience. In a world of technological advancement and shifting cultural norms, comics have managed to not only endure but thrive, even during times of economic and social turmoil.

From the Golden Age of Comics to the Modern Age, these illustrated narratives have captivated audiences of all ages with their diverse array of genres, from superhero tales to gritty urban dramas. Today, comic book enthusiasts continue to grow, driven by the creative storytelling and vivid art styles that define this medium.

While some genres may wane in popularity, others gain traction. The appeal of superheroes and their moral dilemmas draws in new readers, while the allure of horror and alternative genres attracts those seeking something more intense.

Despite challenges, comics remain a vital part of popular culture, offering a unique escape that is both accessible and stimulating. Whether you're a casual reader or a die-hard fan, there's a comic book out there waiting to transport you to worlds of wonder, fear, and adventure.

Army Builds Artillery Range

Lidgway is the new artillery range for the U.S. Army's 2nd Armored Division. The range is located near the town of Lilligut, 50 miles northwest of the city. The site was selected because of its proximity to the division's training area and because of its flat terrain, which is ideal for artillery training.
