School Board Drops Attendance Plan

By BILK EORDEL

After lengthy debate, the Oklahoma City School Board dropped the family attendance plan proposed by the superintendent and adopted a stricter policy which would require students to attend school at least 85 percent of the time.

The proposal would have given students up to one-half an attendance day per month for personal reasons, with board member Dan Brown being the only supporter of the plan. Board members voted 11-6 in favor of the new policy.

The attendance policy now requires students to attend school at least 85 percent of the time, with attendance records sent home to parents weekly. Students who attend 85 percent or more of the time will receive an "A" for the term, while those who attend less than 85 percent will receive a "B". Attendance below 60 percent will result in a "F" for the term.

U.S. Vetoes Vietnam Bills

On Wednesday, the U.S. Senate voted to override President Reagan's veto of two Vietnam-related bills. The Senate had earlier voted to override the veto by a 59-39 margin. The override vote was the first of its kind in U.S. history.

The bills, S. 1234 and S. 1235, would have lifted the moratorium on arms sales to Vietnam and provided more funds for humanitarian aid.

Oil Tariff Overturned

A federal appeals court overturned President Reagan's decision to impose tariffs on imported oil. The court ruled that the president's decision was based on a flawed analysis and that the tariffs would harm the U.S. economy.

The tariffs, which were imposed on imported oil from Saudi Arabia, were intended to protect American oil producers.
