13 Judges Plan Action Against Controversial Colleague

By LARRY CANNON

OKLAHOMA CITY: Oklahoma's 13 judges will act as State lawmakers and seek new terms, according to a statement released today by the state's top judge.

The statement, released by Chief Justice Tom C. Smith, said the judges would seek new terms to avoid conflicts of interest.

The statement said that judges have a duty to the people of the state and that they should not be held to the same standards as lawmakers.

The statement also said that judges should not be politicians and should not be involved in political campaigns.

The statement was signed by all 13 judges.

AIM Meeting Site Raided

By JERRY B. WILSON

WASHINGTON: The police have raided an AIM meeting site in Washington.

The raid was carried out by a team of federal agents and local police.

The agents were searching for evidence related to the AIM, a left-wing organization that has been involved in a number of protests and demonstrations.

The raid came after the AIM announced plans to hold a meeting in Washington to protest a planned federal budget.

The raid was carried out without a warrant, and the agents seized a large amount of evidence.

The AIM has been involved in several incidents in recent years, including a protest outside the White House and a demonstration outside the Republican National Convention.

The organization has been linked to a number of violent incidents, including the shooting of a police officer in Washington in 2011.

The AIM has denied any involvement in the incidents and has criticized the police for过度使用力.

Bribery Told By Lockheed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - At Lockheed's annual shareholders' meeting last week, an attempt was made to cover up a bribery scandal that erupted in South Korea. The company is being investigated for paying Korean government officials to secure contracts for the company.

In an effort to shield the company from further scrutiny, the Korean government was pressured to deny the existence of the bribe. Sources say that the company promised to provide the government with a $100 million loan as payment for the bribe.

The company denied the bribe, saying it had never paid any money to Korean officials. However, evidence of the bribe was found in a secret file located in a locked safe at the company's headquarters in Los Angeles.

The company's executives were unhinged over the bribe, saying they had no idea it was going on. They vowed to cooperate with the government in the ongoing investigation.

Secretary of Defense James E. Baker, speaking at the annual meeting of the American Council on Education, said the bribe would not stop the company from winning the contract. He said the company had already won the contract, and that the government would have to sign it before it could be awarded.

Baker said the government would not file any civil suits against the company, but that the company would have to pay for the bribe.

He said the company had offered to pay the bribe, and that the government had accepted the money.

Road Contract Plan Attacked

By STEPHEN HARRISON

A road construction plan that was announced last week has sparked a controversy among residents.

The plan calls for the construction of a new road that would bypass a historic neighborhood.

Neighborhood residents are concerned about the impact on their community and have organized a demonstration to protest the plan.

The demonstration will feature a rally and march, with speakers from the community and local elected officials.

The event is scheduled to take place on Saturday, at 10 a.m., at the city hall.

Boom Town Still Paying For Bust

By WALTER FREDERICK
Journal-Star Tribune

The once-booming oil town of Midland, Texas, is still reeling from the effects of the oil bust. The town, which was once home to more than 100,000 people, has seen a significant population decline.

But despite the downturn, Midland is still making efforts to diversify its economy. The town has invested in new industries, such as healthcare and renewable energy, in an attempt to attract new businesses and create jobs.

The Governor and Party

Oklahoma Governor Stokely, who has a strong track record of supporting small businesses, said he was thrilled with Ford’s announcement.

Stokely said that Ford’s decision to expand in Oklahoma is a testament to the state’s commitment to supporting its businesses. He added that the state is doing everything in its power to make Oklahoma a welcoming environment for new businesses.

The Governor also praised Ford for its commitment to the state, saying that the company’s decision to expand in Oklahoma is a win-win for both the state and the company.

As the sun set on the Oklahoma State vs. Texas Tech game, the fans continued to cheer and celebrate their team. Despite the oil bust, Oklahoma City is still a place of hope and opportunity, with endless possibilities for the future.
