Colorado Goes Down Kicking, 21-20

By LARRY CANNON

The Oklahoma City campus was deserted this week after the Sooners beat the Big Eight's finest, the University of Kansas, 21-20.

It was a 12-list right down to the wire and the Sooners finished strong. It was a hard-fought football game to make history.

The Sooners went on to defeat the Big Eight's finest, the University of Kansas, 21-20.

The Sooners were led by their quarterback, Bob Mullen, who threw for 185 yards and two touchdowns.

The Sooners will now face the University of Oklahoma, who are currently ranked first in the Big Eight conference.

Midwest City Fire Fizzling

BY MIKE BAKER

The United States Department of the Interior has announced that it will begin the process of designating a national monument in Midwest City.

The announcement was made by Interior Secretary James Watt, who said the new monument would be established on 1,000 acres of land near the city's airport.

The monument will include a large park area, a hiking trail, and a historic site.

The announcement was made at a press conference held at the Midwest City Airport.

Law Inexpensive In Forest Park

BY STEVE HOFFMAN

Most small businesses centered around forest parks in the United States are actually very inexpensive to operate. A recent study by the National Park Service found that forest park departments had an average annual budget of $800,000.

The study also found that the average forest park employee was paid $25,000 per year.

The study concluded that forest parks are an excellent way for communities to generate revenue and support local businesses.

Kooks Congregate In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO — They call this the Kook Capital of the World. Everyone turns out to call garbled and weirdos parade down the street of Bohemians, an annual event that draws thousands of people from all over the world. Some say it’s a celebration of creativity and non-conformity, while others see it as a quasi-religious ceremony. Whatever the case, the event has become an annual tradition and attracts people from all walks of life.

Nancy Gilson

SIDE TO SIDE: In the bow, Ghirardelli Square, where your emotions are immediately gravitated to a young San Francisco group. These musicians play great “Oompah” T-shirts and Beverly Hills house girls, playing upbeat, lively music.

After you kick your feet effortlessly into step with the rhythm, you might find yourself swaying to the music. It’s not just the rhythm, it’s the excitement and the atmosphere. Even if you can’t dance, you can join in on the fun and enjoy the lively energy.

Veree Rolls With ‘Jolson’ Nostalgia

Veree was the revue of “The Jolson Story,” the hit show that has won a Tony Award for its music. The show features a cast of talented actors, singers, and dancers who bring the story of Al Jolson to life on stage.

Jaqueen and Burt are both talented performers who bring their own unique style and energy to the show. Their chemistry on stage is undeniable, and they are truly a delight to watch.

Ninety-six years...

... is a long time. It’s been more than 96 years of wonderful music and stories. For generations of people, the music industry has been a part of their lives. It’s a way of life for many, and it’s a part of who we are. It’s a part of our history, and it’s a part of our future. It’s a way of connecting with others and sharing our experiences.

Veree, just sing it...

Bavinger

...it is if they were caught in the snow and somehow put into print. The color names often seem to be trying to illustrate something to move outside the screen itself.

"This is part of the illusion," Bavinger says, "to get the viewer to appear larger than he is, so that the optical effect goes past the limit of the screen.

The use of color is an essential element of the medium, because nothing beyond the surface, only colors appearing through the screen's surface. The colors are not the same as those in the studio, where the illusion begins, and the sound is already present. It is impossible to separate them into sections of the painting, to make clear and dark with a single color presentation. The sound is made to sound in the screen, the color is made to sound out of the painting, therefore, the sound is made to sound into the painting, only the picture is made to sound into the painting. The "sound" is. ...begins outside the screen on an off screen, attracting other elements, playing and being allowed to pass. Sometimes the "silence" produces a great Oriental effect, other times the sound is hard to be found on the ground.

I am still trying to figure out the balance in the balance of tone.

Bavinger comments, "One of the elements of the medium, one of those mysterious and off-putting elements, is the color of the painting. The empty screen is the reflection of a blank mirror, but a shape moves from the blank mirror to the blank mirror, as the screen. The colors are the most bright and brilliant, and the colors are the most saturated with the colors of the studio. It is impossible to separate them into sections of the painting, to make clear and dark with a single color presentation. The sound is made to sound in the screen, the color is made to sound out of the painting, therefore, the sound is made to sound into the painting.

FOR KENNETH O'DONNELL

An instructor at the University of Kentucky, John F. Kennedy was a prolific writer and journalist. He was known for his speeches and writings on a wide range of topics, including politics, foreign policy, and history. Kennedy's speeches were characterized by their eloquence and clarity, and his writings were widely read and influential. Kennedy's contributions to American politics and culture continued to be studied and debated long after his death.
My Jolie Gabor

Who Is Jolie? What Is She?
Cindy Adams, Her "Co-Autobiographer," Tells Us, Finally, About the Mother of Gabor

By Cindy Adams

I've never been able to see eye to eye with my mother. When I was growing up, she was always trying to make me into someone else. She wanted me to be a societyite, and I was just a tomboy. We had a lot of arguments, and I think that's why I ran away from home when I was 16. She never understood me, and I never understood her. I think we both were too stubborn to ever get along.

But now that I'm older, I see things differently. I realized that my mother was trying to protect me, and I was too叛逆. I feel grateful that she stuck with me through the years, and I hope that she's proud of the person I've become.

An open letter to a mother whose son is facing manhood...

Now comes the time—sort of late, I know—when your son must make his own way in life. It's a time of transition for him. A time of hope for you. With all your heart, you want things to go right for him. If you appreciate the Marine Corps, as we do, you'll be proud of the Marine Corps. If you appreciate the Marine Corps, as we do, you'll be proud of your son. If your son is considering the Marine Corps, you should be proud of him too. And you should be proud of your son. He's entering a new phase, and you should be proud of him too.

Your son will be in good hands during his training. The Marine Corps will take care of him. He will be taught to be a good citizen, a good soldier, and a good leader. He will be taught to be a good person, and he will be taught the values that are important to you. You should be proud of him.

On the other hand, the Marine Corps is a demanding institution. It's a school, it's a military, it's a community. Your son will be part of it. He will be part of a team, and he will be part of a family. He will be part of a community. He will be part of a nation. He will be part of the world. He will be part of something bigger than himself. He will be part of something greater than himself. He will be part of something that is more important than himself. He will be part of something that is greater than himself. He will be part of something that is more important than himself. He will be part of something that is greater than himself.

Your son will be in good hands during his training. He will learn to be a good soldier, a good leader, and a good citizen. He will learn to be a good person, and he will learn the values that are important to you. You should be proud of him.

On the other hand, the Marine Corps is a demanding institution. It's a school, it's a military, it's a community. Your son will be part of it. He will be part of something that is greater than himself. He will be part of something that is more important than himself. He will be part of something that is greater than himself.

21 Little Answers to 21 Impossibly Big Questions About Kids

By Helen De Ros, M.D.

1. Do parents have any authority these days?

Of course. But authority has to be earned. Many parents are killed because their authority isn't clear. They can't find it in themselves or in their children.

2. What do you mean when you say they think they have authority?

When parents feel that their children have authority, they're usually talking about their own authority. They want their children to follow their lead. When children think they have authority, they want to be followed.

3. Are parents generally too permissive?

Not always. But it's often easier for parents to be permissive than to be firm. They want their children to be happy and healthy. They want them to have fun. They want them to learn. They want them to be successful. They want them to be popular. They want them to be loved. They want them to be respected. They want them to be admired. They want them to be praised. They want them to be appreciated.

4. How does a parent know when a child or teenager is ready for the next step in their life?

If you don't know what chain saw to buy, let the pros make the decision for you.

Johnny's answer:

I wouldn't buy a 10-hp chain saw for home use. The logs are too small and wood work is too demanding to get the most out of a good chain saw. A 10-hp saw is best for big cutters, and I've seen some loggers who have to cut through big trees. But for home use, you really don't want to do that. A 10-hp saw is too powerful for the job. A smaller saw is better for home use. And if you have the money, you might want to get a 20-hp saw. They're great for big jobs. But for home use, a 10-hp saw is too big. It's better to get a smaller saw. And if you're a beginner, you might want to get a 10-hp saw. It's a good way to get started. But for home use, a 20-hp saw is better for big jobs. And if you have the money.

True or False?
The kind of painting a person prefers tips you off to how he stands politically. (See number 2)

True or False?
1. A psychological study revealed that those signing a check with their full name were significantly more liberal politically than those who signed with two initials and their surname—J. D. Smith. And in a University of Colorado study, subjects were given a list of facts about a test-taker, and those who signed with their full name were more likely to be labeled liberal. These results were statistically significant, and they held when the gender of the subjects was controlled.

THE PHYSICIAN WHO REJECTED THE LARGEST MEDICAL FEE IN HISTORY! Bishop Zeno, a ninth-century physician to Rome's Emperor, is said to have refused a large sum of money for the death of the entire retinue of the Empress in an incident involving her husband. The story is passed down through the ages as an example of Zeno's integrity and his rejection of material wealth.
