Inflation Squeezing Arts In Oklahoma

By NANCY GRIFFIN
The Oklahoma Journal

During tight economic times, people try to cut costs and the arts are often the first to feel the pinch.

That’s what it seems to happen, but the theory has First Of Series

The arts are a critical part of Oklahoma’s cultural fabric, and the Oklahoma Arts Council is working to sustain them.

The council has had a strong track record in expanding opportunities in the arts, even in challenging economic conditions. Under the leadership of Executive Director Michael Smith, the council has maintained its commitment to supporting artists and arts organizations. Despite budget cuts of up to 30%, the council has continued to provide vital funding through grants and other initiatives.

In addition to direct funding, the council has also championed arts education and workforce development, recognizing the vital role of arts in building strong communities and economies. Through partnerships with schools and museums, the council has helped to ensure that future generations will have the opportunity to engage with the arts.

The council has also been a vocal advocate for arts in Oklahoma’s legislative process, working to ensure that arts are prioritized in policy decisions that impact the quality of life for all Oklahomans.

The arts are more than just entertainment; they are essential to our cultural identity and well-being. As the council continues to work through the current challenges, it is important to remember the value of the arts and to support their continued growth and development.

RAISE REPORTED WON ON MOOSE JAW!

By LARRY CANNON
The Oklahoma Journal

In an unusual development, the Canada Invasion Plan Board has reported a successful raise reported won on Moose Jaw.

The board, which is responsible for overseeing the invasion plan, said that the recent increase in the price of Moose Jaw has had a positive impact on the board's operations. The raise was reported won on the basis of a successful case brought before the board, which resulted in a significant increase in the price of Moose Jaw.

The board is now looking into the possibility of raising the price of other goods in the region, which could have a positive impact on the economy as a whole.

Homecoming Frustrates Fans

PATTY BRUCE

The Oklahoma Journal

Homecoming weekend returned to Oklahoma, but fans were disappointed to learn that the homecoming game would be played in an empty stadium.

The announcement came as a shock to many fans, who had been looking forward to attending the game and supporting their team. The decision was made due to the ongoing pandemic, which has limited the number of spectators allowed at events.

Despite the disappointment, many fans expressed their support for the team and expressed a desire to see them succeed.

Police Strike Non-Violent

BETH SHERMAN
The Oklahoma Journal

The Oklahoma City Police Union announced that its members would be taking a one-day strike on October 11, 2023, over the issue of pay.

The union said that its members had repeatedly asked for better pay, and that the city had refused to negotiate in good faith. The union emphasized the importance of police pay and the need for fair compensation.

Parsons Says Pact Near

By WALTER MCNICHOLS
The Oklahoma Journal

Parsons, the state’s largest employer, has reached an agreement in principle on a new labor contract.

The agreement includes a wage increase of $10 per hour over the course of the contract, which is set to expire in 2024. The union had been seeking a higher wage increase, but the company had been unwilling to budge.

The agreement also includes provisions for job security and the retention of current employees.

Situation Termn Over Critical

By MIKE BROWN
The Oklahoma Journal

The deadline for the situation termn over critical has been extended to December 31, 2023.

The extension was granted due to the ongoing pandemic, which has made it difficult for the parties to reach a resolution.

The situation termn over critical affects a large number of employees and has been a source of frustration for both sides.

Shot Fired At Fleeting Automobile

The Sheriff's Department of the City of Miami Beach is investigating a shooting incident that occurred yesterday afternoon. According to sources, a man was outside his vehicle when he was approached by another person who fired shots at his automobile. The victim, who was not immediately identified by the police, suffered minor injuries and was taken to a nearby hospital. The suspect fled the scene, and the investigation is ongoing to determine the motive behind the attack.

Wright's Career Ended

While not making a grand entrance, the former Wright may be partially to blame for the death of a little girl in a Manhattan apartment building.

The girl, aged 3 years, was found under the sofa with a cord wrapped around her neck. The cause of death is believed to be strangulation by the cord, which had been wrapped around the girl's neck and then tied into a knot.

The little girl was the daughter of a 32-year-old man and a 30-year-old woman, both of whom were known to be frequent visitors to the apartment building. It is believed that the parents were arguing when the cord was placed around the girl's neck.

The parents, who are now in police custody, are being held on $100,000 bail pending further investigation.

Shanklin Shelved

The Oklahoma State University basketball team announced that star player John Shanklin will be shelved for the remainder of the season due to a knee injury sustained during practice. Shanklin, a senior forward, is averaging 20 points and 10 rebounds per game. The team is currently 15-4 and in second place in the conference standings.

Knicks Ax Cavaliers

The New York Knicks defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers in a tight game, 105-102, at Madison Square Garden. The Knicks, led by Chris Mullin's 32 points, held off a late Cavaliers' rally to secure the win. It was the Knicks' 4th victory in their last 5 games.

Mean Green Stuns Vols

The University of North Texas defended their home court against the Tennessee Volunteers, winning 69-66. The Mean Green, led by guard Tim Hardaway, played a solid game defensively, holding the Volunteers to a season-low in points. This win improved the Mean Green's record to 16-3.

Tulsa Upset, 16-14

In a major upset, the Temple Owls defeated the University of Tulsa, 68-66, in the final seconds of the game. A last-minute three-point shot by Temple's Mike Gaffney lifted the Owls to victory. Tulsa, ranked 11th in the country, had their six-game winning streak snapped.

Tigers Belt Cats

The LSU Tigers defeated the Rice Owls, 81-70, at the Pete Maravich Assembly Center. The Tigers, led by guard Antoine Mason, scored 26 points, including 17 in the second half. Rice, led by forward Joseph Jackson, scored 16 points but weren't enough to secure the win.

Aggies Nudge Bears

In a close game, the Texas A&M Aggies edged out the Baylor Bears, 74-72. The Aggies, led by forward Danuel House, scored 25 points, including a three-pointer with 1.1 seconds left on the clock. Baylor, led by guard Manu Lecomte, scored 24 points but couldn't overcome the Aggies' late run.

NOW Meet Dominated by Politics

PHILADELPHIA, PA. – Politics has been the dominant theme in the presidential campaign this year, with both major parties seeking to appeal to a broad base of voters. However, a new option has emerged: health care.

The issue of health care has become a major talking point on both the national and local levels. Candidates from both parties have proposed various solutions to the problem, with some calling for universal coverage and others advocating for a market-based approach.

Amidst the political rhetoric, there are also calls for more transparency in the health care industry. Many are questioning the pricing strategies of pharmaceutical companies and the profitability of medical insurance plans.

In addition to these issues, there is also a growing concern about the availability of health care services in underserved areas. This has led to discussions about how to improve access to care for all Americans.

As the political landscape continues to shift, it remains to be seen how the health care issue will be addressed in the coming years. However, one thing is clear: the debate over health care is far from over.

Enlist Car In Battle For Survival

Other, it is difficult for the average citizen to imagine what is happening out there and how many vehicles and drivers are affected by the crisis. After all, a few instances of gasoline theft can lead to the closure of a station, and a single stolen vehicle can cause chaos in a city. We need to understand the problem and take action.

We know there are many causes of gasoline theft. Some are related to personal gain, while others are related to political or economic motives. In any case, the theft of gasoline is a serious problem that affects us all.

We all need to be aware of the situation and do our part to prevent it. This might mean making small changes in our own behavior, but it could also mean supporting policies that encourage honesty and responsible behavior.

In conclusion, the crisis of gasoline theft is a serious problem that needs to be addressed. We all have a role to play in solving it, and if we work together, we can make a difference.

Blue-Eyes Heads for Trouble

She was 15, blonde, with large eyes and a head for trouble. If the eyes were the windows to the soul, hers must be the home of many secrets. The blue eyes seemed to reflect a world of mystery and intrigue, but behind them lay a story that few could fathom.

The girl had been known to the police for a long time. Her name was Sarah, and she was a troublemaker by nature. She had been in and out of trouble since she was a child, and her blue eyes were often a silent witness to her misdeeds.

The case of Sarah was no different. She had been spotted at a local bar, drinking and causing a scene. The police were called, but when they arrived, she was gone. They couldn't help but wonder what secrets her eyes were hiding.

The blue eyes were a mystery, a puzzle waiting to be solved. The police continued their investigation, hoping to uncover the secrets that lay behind those eyes. Meanwhile, Sarah was on the run, leaving behind a trail of trouble wherever she went.

Symphony Music To Play Again

Though prospects for 1975-6 season by the Oklahoma Symphony Orchestra for months seemed slim, player contracts were recently signed and an orchestra, although belatedly, was formed. Nov. 17 and 18, the subscription concerts will be held in the Civic Center. Nov. 22 and 23, two benefit performances for the Symphony begin. Tickets are available at the Symphony office. In addition, the Oklahoma City Municipal Band continues the symphony series at Love Park on Oct. 26. For information call 612-8761.

Heart of the West

The Oklahoma music scene is a rich one, with many outstanding groups. One of the most popular is the Heart West, a band that plays Western music. The band was formed in 1974 and has since gained a devoted following among fans of Western music.

Guthrie Bound For Silver Screen

Woody Guthrie’s key song, “The Ballad of John Henry,” was recently adapted into a film called “The Prince of Tides.” The song was used as a backup track in the movie, adding to its cultural significance.

Why Carradine?

Director Hal Ashby, left, says he wants to portray the spirit of Woody Guthrie, not make a biography. And Carradine, right, who plays the folk-singer/composer, not only doesn’t resemble Guthrie, but says he knows nothing of his life.

Quiz: How Do
Sports Affect People's Lives?

A Meaty Soup
You Can Make
By the Gallon!

LEFT: Artist's conception of possible plans for the new museum. RIGHT: Jupiter might have a similar environment, but it's in a very distant universe.
I like Winston Super King for one reason.

Winston Super King gives me more of what counts: taste. A lot of extra-long cigarettes give you more length, but less taste. Real taste is what smoking's all about. For me, Winston Super King is for real.

FOR JAMES GRADY, author of spy thriller "Six Days of the Condor" and "Shadow of the Condor"

Shouldn't the CIA's alleged plots to eliminate foreign leaders like Castro and Allende be kept secret or left to the pages of quasi-factual thrillers like yours?—M.B., Boise, Idaho

• No, no, no. Truth is the only way people can effectively function. Otherwise, you have government-by-imagination, fantasy rule, a system akin to Nazi Germany or South American military juntas. If a fact or situation is disturbing, change the fact or the situation. Don't lie about it with cover-ups or blindly ignore it in the hope it will go away. That's what democracy is all about. Relying on suspense thrillers and espionage novels for information about how and why your tax dollars are being spent in cloak-and-dagger affairs is both dangerous and silly.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

What makes a man sexy and attractive?—J.B., Racine, Wis.

• I'm drawn to a man who's a gentleman—not those who use four-letter words every four seconds. I like someone who doesn't have to keep proving he's a man. I'm bored by guys who keep asserting their masculinity. What I've just done is describe what my second husband isn't like. We've been married three years.

FOR JIM STAFFORD

Are you a bachelor?—Bette Howard, Farmington, N.M.

• I'm 31 and single. I'm called a "lady's man" (which I hope is correct), and I'm looking to change my single status. As long as the lady doesn't mind my mana for collecting (I throw away anything and everything from musical instruments and furniture to recipes), I'm open to all offers.

FOR MARTIN LANDAU, star of "Space: 1999"

• No—and I can go further than that. I'm not a relative of David Landau, a 1930s actor who committed suicide. Nor of Martin Landau, the producer. He and I stayed at the same New York hotel once, in identical suites on the 16th and 11th floors. (We checked in and out at the same time. We get each other's calls and each other's bills.) In fact, nobody in my family is famous.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH, star of "The Wild Party"

Does winning an Oscar make a star a better performer, or just lazier?—Evelyn Moore, Hartford, Conn.

• Never having won an Oscar, I don't know, but if it were me, I'd feel I should do better the next time. But, in the long run, it doesn't matter a bit. Look how many performers win awards and drop out of sight. And what about those who aren't as well known, yet don't know what to be out of work?

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

• In the late '50s, Ricky and Elvis were vying for top spot on the record charts (Elvis headed the list in 1957, and Ricky "wore" it in '58). Then, they met on the football field (Elvis's team was up in the game). Ricky's team won—and that's when the rumors started. "Not true, though," says Ricky, whose ambition is to make movies, but, until he sells a script, keeps singing. Ricky has a Black Belt in karate. He took him six years to get it, but he hasn't used that skill. ("I haven't had a fight since high school.") Right now he's trying to convince his mother to leave the house: "She's a good actress, and she's waiting her time at home." He's hoping his new record, "Rock 'n' Roll Lady" will be a big hit. (He hasn't had one since "Garden Party" sold a million and a half copies back in '73.)

FOR "JIMMY THE CREEK" SNYDER, author of "Jimmy the Creek"

Do you feel that the legalization of gambling would help curb escalating crime?—B.T., Casper, Wyo.

• No. I don't think the reverse would happen. Where gambling is concerned, people just don't have any discipline. The more they lose, the more they bet. When people gamble away more than they can afford, crime often is a result.

FOR ERLA BOMBECK, columnist

There is a surplus of women in the world. Do you think in the future countries will be governed by women?—Cyndy Hofmann, Waterbury, Conn.

• No question about it. And one of the first things they'll do when they get into power is to reverse the odds and get a surplus of men.

FOR MARY WILSON of The Supremes

Why do you three Supremes dress so magnificently?—G.S., Los Angeles, Calif.

• We wanted to have our special trademark, something by which we'd be identified in addition to our singing. We feel that elegant hairdos and costumes are just as important as a first-rate performance. We spend as much time on our faces, hair and costumes as we do rehearsing!

FOR EVEL KNIEVEL

Do all the pins and plates in your body set off metal detectors at airports?—Doug Neilen, Torrance, Calif.

• All my metal plates and pins have been removed with the exception of one in my left arm. At times it sets off the airport detector, but I always get through.

Is There Life Out There?

"Suppose that only one out of a million life-bearing planets developed an intelligent species. In that case, there would be 50 intelligent species in our galaxy."

By Isaac Asimov

W e are so far from the other stars that some questions are about nearly unanswerable. The sheer distance makes it unlikely that any scientific instruments on any advanced life-bearing planet would receive or respond to our radio signals. The same is true of radio signals from any possible advanced life-bearing planets. The nearest advanced life-bearing planet, Proxima Centauri, lies about 24 light-years away. At the speed of light, the signal we sent to it about 20 years ago would just be reaching the earth. And 20 years is nothing in the vastness of space. By the time it returns, it might be too late for us to respond, for civilizations change and evolve as the years go by.

But suppose that we did detect a signal from another intelligent life form? We would have no idea whether it was a response to our signal, or a signal that had nothing to do with us. And even if it were a response, how could we know what the response would mean? Even if the signal were intelligible, it might have been transmitted by a signal source that has long since become extinct. We would have no way of knowing whether the signal was a message from an intelligent life form or a message from a dead civilization.

And even if we did detect a signal from another intelligent life form, how could we know whether it was a message from an intelligent life form? We would have no way of knowing whether the signal was a message from an intelligent life form or a message from a dead civilization. We would have no way of knowing whether the signal was a message from an intelligent life form or a message from a dead civilization.

Goldie Hawn (Giggil) on Marriage, Children and Her Las Vegas Past

Our Vitamin Prices Make You Feel Better!

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

G ood news doesn't always come when you're in the middle of a busy, hectic day. In fact, it can come when you least expect it. That's how I knew I was going to be a father. A few weeks earlier, I had been told that my wife was pregnant. We were both overjoyed. I was nervous, but excited. I had no idea what was coming, but I was ready for anything. The news made me feel so happy and in control.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Three dogs, two cats, the Project match and Dracula...

GOLDIE: (giggling) One of the dogs belongs to our children.

FW: Is there a husband in the future?

GOLDIE: I will have a husband. (Dianna Ross' earlier story) We've never gotten a divorce.

FW: But isn't living with you, it is? GOLDIE: We didn't get along that well. But we'll try it together.

FW: I understand you once told that you couldn't possibly live for 20 to 30 years with one person, that he or she would fatigue all of a person's needs and so they must give up other freedoms. Do you still feel that way?

GOLDIE: More than ever. They must be a new way to relate to marriage. Life is about, there must be, there will be, changes, new opportunities. I think one can be in love with several people at the same time. But then I am also very practical. If I'm in love with a guy, I don't want him to be in love with another guy. Confusing, isn't it? But I just don't see how one person can really supply all of another person's needs. Like, I'm one person when I'm at home and a different person when I go out, and there are so many stimulating people out there...

FW: What about a family? Do you want children?

GOLDIE: I am not sure yet. I have the family of my own, but I am also very much in love with the family that I have, and I feel that I have all the things that I could ever want. I don't think I would want children, but I am not sure yet. I am still very much in love with the family that I have, and I feel that I have all the things that I could ever want.

(Clip this address just in case.)
GOLDIE: I didn't earlier, but I do now. Or rather, when Gus and I were together, he didn't particularly want children and I didn't want any if he didn't. But now I feel differently.

FW: Have you ever thought of adopting any children?

GOLDIE: I support several foster children already. And, oh yes, I would like to adopt children who live with me. I'm looking into this right now. But I wouldn't want them to live this way. I wouldn't want them to live in Bel Air with a lot of rich kids. When Gus and I once thought of having a family, we were going to move to the beach—not a big house, a place where people from all walks of life live, where the kids could ride to school on bicycles, not in a Cadillac or a Rolls or Mercedes.

FW: It seems to me that ever since I first met you, your life has been tightly controlled by your manager ...

“"If I want to play Lady Macbeth, I can do it in my living room. [More giggles.] I do, too.”

GOLDIE: Not any more.

FW: Why was it in the first place?

GOLDIE: Because he found me in a chorus line in Las Vegas and had faith in me and guided my career. I was only a dancer. He did everything for me. I knew nothing because he knew everything and I didn't have to learn. Or so I thought at the time. Now I know better. Now I know that you have to take your life into your own hands or you don't grow. That's why I feel I am growing now. Why I feel so good. Better than ever. When I left my career in someone else's hands, I wasn't master of my own destiny.

FW: Is your manager still with you?

GOLDIE: Noooooooo.

FW: Why not?

GOLDIE: His contract expired.

FW: What kind of a career are you looking for now? What kind of parts do you want?

GOLDIE: Parts that'll make people laugh. I've got a talent for that, and because I do, I think I have an obligation. That's what people need today—laughter. If I want to play Lady Macbeth, I can do it in my living room. [More giggles.] I do, too.

FW: Now that you are your own master, aren't you afraid you might become tough, like most successful actresses?

GOLDIE: Become a man? Nah-whoo. But I think I can be strong. You have to be. You have to have energy to sustain yourself for a long time in this industry.

FW: How far did you go in school?

GOLDIE: In Maryland. Near Washington, D.C. My sister is there, too. She's married.

FW: You've worked with Warren Beatty in two films—“5” and “Shampoo.” How was he to work with?

GOLDIE: The best producer I ever had. Totally involved from the beginning through production, to cutting to selling the film. And he cares how you look, how you feel. He's beautiful. “Shampoo” was really great to make. Warren and Julie Christie and I are close friends and we always wanted to work together. It was beautiful because you had three major stars in one film and nobody felt threatened. I don't know what I mean? We weren't fighting each other. All of us wanted the other to get the most, to do the best. It must have been like this in the old days; I guess. Maybe. I don't know. But it wasn't the hassle of everybody out for himself.

FW: You played Las Vegas last year, and yet I heard you say you don't like going there.

GOLDIE: It's true that I don't like Vegas. Never did. And I didn't want to go back to do a show; but my manager made the deal. There was lots of money involved, and I couldn't say no. But there's nothing stimulating to me about being up till five in the morning.

FW: You said you feel better now than you have in a long time. Is this because you're your own master, or because you're more secure financially and careerwise?

GOLDIE: Mostly, I guess; because I'm growing up.

When I said good-bye, Goldie was giggling again—that delightful, joyous giggle.

Growing up?

Never. I hope.
One of a kind.
