Taiwan Link Defended
Reagan Raps China Trip

The Washington Post (Washington, D.C.) - Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan defended President Ford's recent trip to China and his statement opposing a Taiwan link to the United States.

"I believe we have a responsibility to maintain a strong relationship with Taiwan," Reagan said in an interview. "We have a treaty obligation to continue our support of the people of Taiwan."

The United States and China have signed a number of agreements in recent months, including an arms control pact. However, the United States and Taiwan do not have diplomatic relations.

U.N. Peace Force Extension Voted

The New York Times (New York, N.Y.) - The United Nations Security Council voted to extend the U.N. Peace Force in the Congo for another six months. The Peace Force was established last year to help implement the terms of the 1972 African Nations Conference on Peace and Security."..."
