1975 Was A Year In Court For Sport

NEW YORK (AP) — The year ended in court in 1975 with a flood of cases involving sports stars, athletes and teams. The legal issues covered everything from antitrust charges against the NFL to a suit by a former college football player against an alligator for biting his leg in Florida.

The year started with a $2.5 million antitrust lawsuit by the NFL against the AFL. The NFL accused the AFL of raiding its player ranks. The AFL denied the charge and said it was offering players more money. The suit was settled in 1976.

Various lawsuits involving sports figures also were settled in 1975. The most notable was the $100 million suit by former college football player John Kimbrough against the alligator that had bitten him in Florida. Kimbrough claimed the alligator had caused his leg to be amputated. The alligator was eventually returned to the Everglades.

In another case, former baseball player Shoeless Joe Jackson was found not guilty of conspiracy to fix games in 1920. The trial, which lasted six months, was a stunning turnaround for Jackson, who had been banned by Major League Baseball for life in 1921.

Other cases included a $5 million libel suit by former NFL player Jack Tatum against former New England Patriots head coach Bill Parcells. Tatum claimed Parcells had made false statements about him in a 1974 interview. The suit was settled in 1976.

The year also saw a $100 million lawsuit by former NBA player Nate Thurmond against his former team, the San Francisco Warriors. The Warriors had cut Thurmond in 1973, and Thurmond claimed they had damaged his career.

In the sports world, 1975 was a year of change. The NFL and AFL merged, creating the American Football Conference. The NHL expanded to give the Los Angeles Kings and the New York Islanders teams. And the NBA had its first season with a 3-point shot.

In sports news, the Atlanta Hawks won the NBA championship, ending a 22-year drought. The Boston Red Sox won the World Series, their first title since 1918. And the Baltimore Orioles won the American League pennant.

Tax Breaks Aid Housing

The tax laws this year included provisions that aid housing. The federal government has added a new tax credit for home buyers to encourage construction of new homes.

This credit, which is in addition to the existing mortgage interest deduction, will provide a $2,000 credit for the purchase of a new home. The credit applies to homes purchased between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1976.

Outlook for Jobs Stronger

The job market this year is expected to be better than last year. The unemployment rate is expected to fall to 5.5 percent, down from 6.1 percent in 1975.

Oil Firms Face Battle

The oil companies face a battle this year to keep up with the oil crises. The price of oil has risen sharply, threatening the profits of the companies.

James Town Open

The James Town Open, a tennis tournament in the New York area, will be held this year. The tournament is expected to draw a large number of players and spectators.

VA Offers Advice

The Department of Veterans Affairs this year is offering advice to veterans on how to improve their health and well-being.

N. Viets Play "Bluff" in Oil

North Vietnam this year is playing a game of "bluff" in their attempts to secure more oil from other countries.

Fleetwood Mac Tops List Of '75 Albums

BY BRUCE MAYER

United Press International

Question: What record did Fleetwood Mac name as the 'best record of the year'?

Answer: According to Fleetwood Mac, their album named "Rumours" was their best record of the year. It is regarded as one of the most popular albums of the year.

"Rumours" came out in 1977 and it was a collaborative effort between band members including Stevie Nicks, Lindsey Buckingham, and Mick Fleetwood. It featured hit songs like "Dreams," "Go Your Own Way," and "Don't Stop." The album sold over 40 million copies worldwide and received critical acclaim for its production and songwriting.

The album's success is attributed to its blend of rock, folk, and pop influences, as well as the personal dynamics depicted in the songs, reflecting the band members' real-life relationships. It marked a significant shift from their earlier rock style to a more mellow, introspective sound.

The band's influence continued to grow, and the success of "Rumours" set the stage for their future work, including albums like "Tusk" and "Tango in the Night." Fleetwood Mac's legacy is cemented in the history of rock music, and "Rumours" remains a testament to their enduring talent and creative output.

Nashville Stars on “Nashville”:

A lot of people have some idea of what the stars look like on TV. They have heard about the shows and seen them on TV. But what is it like to be in a show like this? How do you get the part? What goes on behind the scenes? Here are some thoughts from some of the stars of “Nashville.”

Willa Mae Pace: I think the show is a lot of fun. It’s a great opportunity to work with all the other stars and the crew. I enjoy the music and the stories. It’s a great way to get our show on the air.

Lynn Anderson: I really enjoy working on “Nashville.” I’ve always been a fan of the show and I’m happy to be a part of it. It’s a lot of fun to be around all the other stars and work with them.

Carla Smith: I’ve been on “Nashville” for a while now and I love it. It’s a great show and I’m glad to be a part of it. I enjoy working with all the other stars and the crew. It’s a lot of fun.

Johnny Cash: I think “Nashville” is a great show. It’s a great opportunity for people to see the stars and hear the music. I enjoy working on the show and it’s a lot of fun.

Billy Joe Shaver: I’ve been on “Nashville” for a while now and I love it. It’s a great show and I’m glad to be a part of it. I enjoy working with all the other stars and the crew. It’s a lot of fun.

Too Close for Comfort—Or Not Close Enough?

By Norman Sturtevant

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The stars of “Nashville” have been talking about their experience working on the show. Some have been critical of the show’s portrayal of the South, while others have praised it. Here are some thoughts from some of the stars of “Nashville.”

Willa Mae Pace: I think the show is a lot of fun. It’s a great opportunity to work with all the other stars and the crew. I enjoy the music and the stories. It’s a great way to get our show on the air.

Some Facts About Your Other "Sixth Sense"—Humor

True or False? A woman's preference for humor depends on how attractive she is. (See number 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?
1. Virtually everyone pigeonholes himself on the basis of humor—whether he has one or not.
2. A woman's preference for humor depends on how attractive she is. (See number 2.)
3. Men and women tend to have different ideas about what is funny.
4. You can tell a lot about a person's sense of humor by the way he votes.
5. An atmosphere of humor or laughter drawing around is all right after hours, but it detracts from efficiency in the office.

ANSWERS
1. True. A Harvard University study shows that no less than 9 percent of a representative sample based their ideas about their own sense of humor on the way that humor or its lack influenced their daily lives.
2. True—according to psychological studies conducted at the University of Nebraska, which used some interesting mediums, scientists observed that women, when they have a sense of humor, are more likely to "mold the image" and not overreact to humor. A woman with a good sense of humor often uses humor as an escape from stress, while a woman who lacks humor often concentrates on her problems and looks for ways to solve them.
3. False—humor, by stimulating the brain's ability to relax, makes an excellent contribution to good mental health. Studies have shown that humor can help alleviate the symptoms of stress, anxiety, and depression. For example, laughter can help increase endorphin levels, which are associated with pain relief and feelings of happiness. Humor can also serve as a coping mechanism against stress. When faced with a difficult situation, humor can help shift the focus from the problem to a more lighthearted perspective.
