Bad And Maybe Worse
The Ford era of the '60s was a period of relative prosperity and optimism. Today's Ford era is a time of depression and hopelessness. This is the result of the 1970s, a period of economic instability and political confusion. The result is a nation that is worse off than it was 10 years ago.

Thompson joins symphony

King of Wangers singing, dancer, headliner, has announced his appearance with the Oklahoma Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. Jan. 19 in the Civic Center Music Hall. The concert begins at 8 p.m. and tickets will be available at the door.

In the past, he was a regular at one of the country's most popular Moscow restaurants, making an appearance most every week. He also appears regularly on television and radio, and has written more than 200 songs. At least 50 of his songs have been recorded by various artists, including Billie Holiday, Frank Sinatra, and Tony Bennett.

McMurtry views differ

By William C. Brew

McMurtry and Kevesy are viewing the film from different points of view. McMurtry believes the film is a semi-biographical account of the past 20 years, while Kevesy sees it as a fictional story with its own characters and events.

"What I have is a story with no ending," says McMurtry. "I don't know what's going to happen next." He points out that the film has a strong narrative structure, with well-defined characters and a clear plot.

"It's a story about a young man who has to make decisions and face the consequences of those decisions," Kevesy says. "It's a story about love and loss, about hope and despair."
CBS dumps Lombardo orchestra

By Gary Deeb

Our Lombardo used to joke about dying, "when am New Year's Eve goes with me," he declared. Unfortunately, it appears that Lombardo may have been an unwilling orchestra maestro. The latest news is that the famous "CBS Mutoscope Rollins" has been fired by the network in a move that many are calling a "tr策" to the legendary Lombardo orchestra.

It is now reported that Lombardo has been told to "Steve Bloomson, the network president, that he is not welcome on the air again." The news has shocked many fans, who have come to expect Lombardo's smooth and unique style.

The firing of Lombardo is a blow to the network's lineup, as he was a staple of the CBS lineup for many years.

Reiner, Brest situation comedy masters

By Joseph Collins

Happy New Year! - Carl Reiner and Martin Brest, whose newest masterpiece is among the best the season has offered, are back with "Nine to Five," the story of office workers who band together to take on their boss.

Steve Martin credits Reiner with masterminding the production of "Nine to Five," which is set to be a popular sitcom this season. Brest, known for his work on "Onassis," "Brecht," and "The Producers," has also contributed to the show.

As writer and director of "Going in Style," Brest and Reiner have been praised for their dynamic and innovative style. "Nine to Five" has already received critical acclaim, with many calling it a "classic." The show has been renewed for a second season.

Brest and Reiner are expected to continue their successful partnership with "Nine to Five." The show is already a favorite among fans and critics alike.

The New York City crew of "Going in Style" was recently interviewed by a group of fans who had traveled from across the country to see the show. When asked about the show's success, Brest said, "We're just so grateful to have the opportunity to do something we love." Reiner added, "We're just thrilled to have the chance to work together again."
Top movies list full of surprises

The list of movies I thought were going to be my favorites a year ago and the list of movies I’ve decided upon now are far different. Last year, I told great expectations for the year. I felt that each film would be a masterpiece, a new and exciting experience to be had. I could not have predicted the year that came. My list was almost completely void of any memorable films. Most of the films that I thought would be memorable, movies like “The Great Gatsby,” “Star Wars,” and “The Exorcist,” turned out to be exports.

“Dracula” and the ubiquitous “Hamlet” didn’t fare as well. Neither of these films reached the heights of my expectations. Instead, they were just average films, nothing to be remembered.

In the end, my list reflects the movies that I actually enjoyed. The films that I thought would be memorable turned out to be disappointments. The films that I thought would be forgettable turned out to be enjoyable. I guess I was right after all.

Eric Clapton: One of the best the 70s had to offer.

Distinction, tragedy and a spreading, out-of-control war in Vietnam marked the first years of the 1970’s. It was not only a war; it was a social movement, a political and cultural change. The world of music reflected this change, with the emergence of a new kind of music: rock. Rock music became the soundtrack of the decade, reflecting the spirit of the times.

JONI MITCHELL - "Blue" (Reprise) - The last solo, a flower child of the '60s, matures into one of the most original songwriters of the decade. Her songs are a mix of personal and political themes, often tinged with poetic beauty.

The year was "All in the Family" for the second time in a row; "M*A*S*H" was the top-rated series in the final Nielsen tallies; and "Little House on the Prairie" was the most talked-about show of the fall season. The year's other major events included the release of "Jaws," the first major motion picture to be distributed by a studio-owned television network; the opening of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," a cult classic that became a phenomenon; and the debut of "The Waltons," a new family drama set in the rural South that quickly became a ratings sensation.

The year 1980 will be remembered for its national television events, which included the first presidential debate between Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter and Republican candidate Ronald Reagan; the opening of the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, New York; and the beginning of the Iran hostages crisis, which would ultimately result in the release of the hostages after a 444-day standoff.
