WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Indians were once again demonstrating against the government for what they considered an injustice. They were protesting the federal government's failure to recognize their sovereignty and the right to self-determination.

The protest was held in front of the White House, where a large crowd gathered to listen to the speeches of the leaders of the demonstration. The protesters called for the recognition of their sovereignty and the right to self-determination, and they demanded that the government honor their treaty rights.

The protest was peaceful, and the police were on hand to ensure that it remained that way. The protesters were later allowed to march to the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy, where they were able to make their voices heard.

The protest was a success, and it helped to bring attention to the issue of Native American sovereignty. The government eventually recognized the right of the American Indians to self-determination, and they began to work towards the recognition of their sovereignty.

Olympic Boycott Talk Panics NBC Execs

On the floor, a statement by the President of NBC news anchor Dan Rather said that NBC News is being pressured by the Olympic Committee in LA to remove a planned coverage of the Olympic torch relay in LA. The move was described as a threat to NBC's ratings and could lead to strikes by Olympic committee members. The Olympic committee is under pressure from the United States Olympic Committee to remove the coverage, which was planned to air on NBC.

Doctor Sees Sports Abuse

Dr. Jane Smith, a forensic psychologist, has been consulted by NBC officials regarding the potential impact of Olympic boycotts and related issues on the mental health of athletes. Dr. Smith recommends that NBC executives consider the psychological impact of these events on athletes and the broader Olympic community.

STEVE MARTIN. The Jerk

The Jerk is a 1979 film that tells the story of a man who becomes obsessed with the idea of becoming rich. The film is directed by Mel Brooks and stars Steve Martin. The Jerk's release coincided with the boycott of the 1979 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, New York. The boycott was led by South Africa and was condemned by the world as a violation of the Olympic spirit.

Reno Bridge Traffic ‘Relief Valve’

By Kelly Hays

Reno, Nevada — The city is experimenting with a new traffic plan to ease congestion on the busy Reno Bridge over the Truckee River. The plan involves creating a relief valve for traffic by adding a new lane in one direction during peak hours. An expert in traffic engineering, Dr. John Smith, has been studying the effect of this new plan on traffic flow. According to Dr. Smith, the new lane will help manage the peak hour traffic significantly.

What Jinx? Sooners Beat Wildcats Again

By Michael Braden

Norman, Oklahoma — The University of Oklahoma Sooners, under the leadership of coach Frank Turner, pulled off a surprising victory over the University of Kentucky Wildcats last night. The Sooners' defense, led by senior linebacker John Smith, shut down the Wildcats' offense, keeping them scoreless. The Sooners' offensive line, led by quarterback Tom Brown, managed to keep the Wildcats' defense off balance throughout the game.

Racer Killed At Riverside

By Rock Hudson

Riverside, California — A tragic accident at the Riverside International Speedway claimed the life of 22-year-old driver John Doe last night. In the midst of a high-speed race, Doe's car collided with the wall, causing a severe head injury that led to his death. The Riverside County Sheriff's Department is investigating the incident to determine the cause.

Martin Joins Parade Of St. Mary’s Gunners

By Mike Jackson

St. Mary’s, Kansas — The Kansas Jayhawks basketball team welcomed new member John Martin last night. Martin, a transfer from the University of Texas, will join the team for the upcoming season. Coach Bob Smith expressed his excitement about having Martin on the team, stating that he believes the addition will strengthen the team's offensive capabilities.

Buff Again Saves Best Shot For Final Buzzer

By Jennifer Diaz

Champaign, Illinois — The Illinois Fighting Illini basketball team was on the brink of losing their game to the Michigan State Spartans last night. However, with only seconds left on the clock, senior guard David Buff made a game-winning shot to secure the victory for the Illini. Buff's shot was the result of a well-planned offensive strategy by head coach Mike Allen, who directed the team's efforts throughout the game.

DC Chamber Outlines Plan For '80s

By Charles E. Jensen

A business plan for the 1980s was presented by the Downtown Columbus Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of its Executive Board this week.

The program is designed to promote business and economic development in the city and surrounding area.

The plan includes strategies for attracting new businesses, improving infrastructure, and enhancing the quality of life for residents.

Wet Shoes Court Trenchfoot

By Frank W. McGrew

The wet shoes court was the place to be in the 1970s. The shoes were made of a water-repellent material and were designed to keep the foot dry in wet conditions.

The court was a popular place for tennis and other sports, and was often crowded with spectators.

Gala Winter Ball To Benefit Allied Arts

IF THE WINTER STORM that has been raging across the country in recent weeks continues, the Allied Arts will probably have its gala winter ball postponed. "I hope the weather will improve for the ball," said Mrs. Earl R. Davis, chairman of the committee. "It has been delayed because of the weather, and we want to make sure it is a success." The ball, which is to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, will feature music and dancing, as well as a silent auction. Tickets are still available, and members of the Allied Arts are encouraged to attend.

Winter Workshops Scheduled At Omniplex

The Omniplex is hosting a series of workshops over the next few weeks, including painting, knitting, and cooking classes. The workshops are open to the public, and registration is on a first-come, first-served basis. "We wanted to offer a variety of workshops that would appeal to different interests," said the Omniplex director. "We hope people will take advantage of these opportunities to learn new skills and have fun." The workshops will be held in the Omniplex's main hall, and refreshments will be provided.

Couples Marry, Plan Homes After Journeys

Tina Johnson and Jack Williams tied the knot last weekend, and are already planning their dream home. "We decided to get married because we want to start a family," said Tina. "We've been dating for a few years, and we're ready to settle down." The couple is currently looking for a house in the suburbs, and is considering both single-family homes and townhomes. "We want a place that's spacious and has plenty of room for our family," said Jack. "We're hoping to find something within our budget." The couple is also considering home decorating ideas, and is looking forward to making their new home their own.

CURTAIN CALL
Q: I love Jane Curtain, the newscaster on "Saturday Night Live". I want to know if she played the part of a nurse in a movie a couple of years ago. I don't know what it was, but I'm sure I remember her doing the part of a nurse in a movie. My brother and I were arguing about it. Also, what kind of acting does she like the best? — B.G. Endicott, N.Y.
A: In 1977, Jane starred as a veteran hospital nurse in the NBC anthology series, "What Really Happened To The Class of '65." As to her favorite type of acting, Jane comments, "An actor shouldn't have a favorite type. It's hard enough to choose what he's going to do. What he does depend on the offer and that could mean even be a side show, for God's sake."

YES MAN
Q: Who is the man who always said "Yes" all the time on the old Jack Benny show? I always thought it was Mel Blanc, but my husband claims it is not. Mrs. O.R.B. Springfield, Mo.
A: Frank Nelson is the actor whose name you are searching for. Originally, during one of the early episodes of the "Benny" program, Frank was supposed to say "yes" as part of a line in the script. Amazingly, the unusual way he voiced the word drew such a tremendous laugh from the audience that the show's writers decided to give him this same "line" each week. Eventually, Nelson became so identified with this one word that he was paid $700 each time he said it on the show. This fee was the highest paid at that time for one spoken word on the air.

FOR THE RECORD
Q: I want to get three things straight. No one seems to know what Barbra Streisand's first record was, and I've got to find out. Once and for all, please tell me the titles of her first two albums. Second, is it true she lived with Elliott Gould before they got married, just like she's doing with Jon Peters now? L.A. Shirvapat, La.
A: The title of Barbra Streisand's first two album releases were, consecutively, "My Name Is Barbra" and "Color Me Barbra." Yes, the actress resided with Elliott Gould before they were wed. Says Elliott, "We had our most terrible times when we were just living with each other."

WILD LETTER
Q: How long was Robert Conrad's show "The Wild, Wild West" on? Didn't he have another successful show before that? Also, how does he keep in such good shape? He looks so sexy. B.T. Forshee, Ark.
A: "The Wild, Wild West" continued on television for four years. Yes, the actor did star in another successful series before this one. It was titled, "Hawaiian Eye," and also had a four-year run. Conrad attributes his top physical condition to his four favorite hobbies: boxing, skiing, bicycling and swimming.

TINA TIME
Q: Was Tina Louise known at all before she played Ginger on "Gilligan's Island"? I didn't hear of her at all before that show. N.L. Jonesboro, Ark.
A: Although she had appeared in minor roles on television and in films, Tina Louise did not become well-known to viewers until she starred in the 1958 motion picture, "God's Little Acre," several years before the debut of "Gilligan's Island."

BASKETBALL
If you are a college basketball fan, then this has to be a big week in your life. NBC will offer two nationally televised games, and each of them, if they are good, deserves to be labeled "special." Here is why:

First, on Sunday afternoon (Jan. 13), Purdue will meet Syracuse. This is a classic contest. In previous years, the Boilermakers have been a constant threat to the Orange and Blue, and this time they will have to face a tough Syracuse team.

Then on Sunday afternoon (Jan. 19), Notre Dame meets UCLA. The game is a showcase for the best teams in the country. The Bruins are riding a hot streak, and the Irish are looking to get back on the winning track.

If you don't try to watch this week, don't try to pretend you are a real college basketball fan.

STUNT
This Sunday night (Jan. 13), there is one act which makes "The Guinness Book of World Records" on ABC a show worth watching. It is the Kitty O'Neill, one of the most famous stuntwomen in the world, fakes the most dangerous feat of her career. She will try to outdo the existing record (137 feet) for a "high fall to land" by a woman. Kitty will attempt to fall from at least 175 feet, leaping from a helicopter to an air bag on the ground. "Kitty has never jumped from a helicopter before," says stuntman Don Robinson. "There are many factors by which she is unaware. She will jump on my command, for she cannot rely on her own thoughts and instincts.

ODD AND EVEN: Esther Rolle ("Good Times") stars in a new NBC pilot titled "Momma." As the pilot was about to get underway, a New York agent was asked to find a stand-in for Rolle, who was out of town. The agent, who was supposed to discover that the stand-in was——be it a stand-in or not——Esther's real-life sister!...Sally Struthers says for years and years that what she needed more than anything else was to find the right man. Well, she finds that has happened and her happy married life would seem to bear this out, but now comes the acid test. The man who dreamed up the first TV series in which Sally-the-star-Mor-Talk On The Radio?" was——guess who? Sally's husband. If the series should fail, will he still be "the right man"?...So Red Fox is returning to television as "Sanford and Son," but what's this about him being a singer? Will he sing on the new show? Maybe. It turns out that Fox, formerly known to nightclub audiences only as a comedian, has lately been seen singing. He is a raucously popular performer and has a catchy-voiced quality that reminds you of the late Louis Armstrong. Try and imagine the elements which could have been handled better in "If Things Were Different," this week's CBS Wednesday night movie (Jan. 16), but I think the picture is on the positive side. In the final analysis, you will find rewarding. Suzanne Pleshette stars as a happy suburban housewife whose husband has been wrapped up completely in his business and children. Suddenly, this situation is exploded as her husband (Don Murray) mysteriously collapses into a catatonic trance from which he is to survive with hope he will ever emerge. The wife is forced to go to work (at a TV station) and the conflict produced by this new life as opposed to her former life is the basis for this film. There is drama here——good drama—as well as a meaningful message which has at least some application for most of our lives. And if you don't like messages, there is a far-out performance by Chuck McCann as Farmer Frank, a TV kiddie show host who hates kids and animals. Try it. I think you'll like it.

CARSON'S MAN SPEAKS: Johnny Carson, as Floyd R. Turbo, a man of many opinions, holds an "editorial rebuttal" in one of the comedy highlights of "The Best of Carson," Tuesday, Jan. 15 on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." (10:30 p.m.-12:00 midnight).

THE JOURNAL
“Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders II”

The private lives of the most gorgeous gals in America are highlighted in this all-new “Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders II”, a behind-the-scenes story of the conflicts and pressures that threaten to destroy the cheerleader squad during two critical weeks as they prepare for national routines for Super Bowl Day and a USO tour of the Far East. “Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders II” airs as “The ABC Sunday Night Movie,” January 13 (8:00-10:00 p.m.) on the ABC Television Network.

Starring as a television director who attempts to exploit one of the girls to further her own career is John Davidson. On the second “Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders,” which aired early in 1978, David Travino directed the largest audience of any two-hour movie made for television. Starring as cheerleaders are Roxanne Gaynane as Diane, a former professional dancer with the San Francisco Ballet, and Karin Bronson as Candy Beausoleil, a graduate of the University of Texas. The film also features ArleneStats as the “Super Bowl Beauty” and Tatum O’Neal as the “Super Bowl Beast.”

Hospital cafeteria is quarantined

A playful patient puts the Drs. Michaels, Solomon and Weatherby and the exasperating Mrs. Phillips together in quarantine at “Hill Street Hospital,” Monday, Jan. 14 (8:30-10:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. Bob Clader directed the script by Lee Arnowson.

The cafeteria has been closed off, with some of the members of the medical staff inside, after it is invaded by a seven-year-old patient playfully enjoying a visit of small-pox virus. Fears he has found the virus.

Larry Bird and the Boston Celtics play host to Earvin “Magic” Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers when the "NBA on CBS" begins its regular weekly broadcasts of National Basketball Association games on the CBS Television Network, Sunday, Jan. 13 (12 noon-2:15 p.m.). Bird and Johnson analysis, will be broadcasted in Baltimore (Mar. 1st) to provide commentary for CBS Sports. Following the "NBA on CBS," CBS Sports will present a special Sunday edition of "CBS Sports Spectacular," featuring the 10-round heavyweight bout between Roberto Duran and Jose Nunez, featuring the 10-round welterweight bout between Roberto Duran and Kaiko Nishibuta, live, from the Los Angeles, Nev. And, at the conclusion of that presentation, final action in the Grand Prix Masters tennis tournament will be broadcasted, live, from Madison Square Garden in New York City.

In his professional debut with the Lakers (Oct. 12), brought in by the Boston Celtics, Magic Johnson, who starred at Michigan State University, scored 26 points as Los Angeles posted a 103-102 victory over the San Diego Clippers. Since that time, he and the Lakers average 32 games a regular-season play, Johnson has averaged over 19 points a game, offensively, second only to the team's leader in scoring, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Bird, last year's college Player of the Year, has been the spark to rekindle the Celtics offense by pumping in over 19 points each time he takes the court.

FANS
DESI ARNAZ: "When I Love Lucy first came on, some people told us we wouldn't get fans, because they thought the script was too silly for anyone to offer and audience. They were wrong. One fellow wrote: 'Dear Ricky, I want you to know I thought my wife was a red nut and was about to divorce her. But after seeing the show, she began to look pretty normal. Thank you for saving our marriage.'"
HARRIET NELSON: "Ozzie was a real Papa Fanz, a real Papa Fanz, a real Papa Fanz, of children, used to follow him around like puppies. Once I heard a knock on the door and when I opened it there was nobody there. When I looked down there stood the cutest five-year-old girl you ever saw. She looked up at me, all innocence, and said: 'Can Ozzie come out and play with me?'"
WILLIAM SHATNER: "The most deeply touched I've been by a fan's comment on Star Trek is when I was told by someone that our series was the only thing that enabled him to get through the war in Vietnam. Whenever he and his buddies were on a dangerous mission, he told me, they would pretend they were Captain Kirk, Mr. Spock, and Dr. McCoy, battling aliens on another planet."

DRESSING ROOMS
LAWRENCE WELK: "When I was on ABC, they were always giving me a new dressing room. They spent thousands of dollars decorating it to suit the whim of some other star, and when that star's show was cancelled, they would give the room to me. That's why I never felt bad when they built other actors fancy dressing quarters. It was just a matter of time before they took them over..."
MARGARET HAMILTON: "I was always sure they had gotten Billie Burke and me mixed up with the actual Good Witch and Wicked Witch because of the way we found our dressing rooms decorated on The Wizard of Oz set. Hers was filled with pink and blue powder puffs, pink and blue bottles, and pink and blue peppermints. Mine had an old dirty rug, one chair, and one bare light bulb."
GEORGE BURNS: "Jack Benny loved a dressing room no matter what shape it was in. When everyone had gone and it was time to take off his makeup, he would sit there for hours, reluctant to leave the theatre and the smell of greasepaint.

HOBBIES
GARY BURGHOFF: "Birds are my hobby. I have had as many as 32 birds at one time. The first one was a pet, but they also hunt, because I like to think, 'Why am I here when I should be working?' It's the way I live. I've spent my entire adult life on soundstages, I exist there..." HERVE' VILECHAISE: "There's no hobby like pottery. It's such a dying art. When I'm knitting that clay I feel so religious. It gives my life a spiritual meaning."

Tai and Randi prepare for Olympics
Tai Babilonia and Randi Gardner have been holding hands for ten years now although both still insist they are "just good friends." Tai and Randi are currently the World Pairs Champions of figure skating—so holding hands is a part of their trade. The twosome will be out to confirm their claim as the number one skating pair in the world when the Xll Winter Olympic Games come to Lake Placid, New York. ABC Sports will be covering all the action, February 12-24.
Twenty year old Randi (he will be 21 during the Olympics) and 19-year-old Tai teamed up at the suggestion of their coach a decade ago. They had both placed sixth individually in the U.S. Nationals but neither had much hope of reaching the top as singles skaters. One day their coach, John Nicks—suggested they hold hands and skate around a practice rink in Santa Monica to see what they looked like together. Both Randi and Tai, who were nine and 10 at the time, thought their coach was crazy but they humored him and took a swirl around the rink. That is how it all began for the best pair skaters produced in the United States since Michael and Karol Kennedy won a silver medal in the 1952 Winter Games. Tai and Randi won bronze medals in the World Pairs Championships of 1977 and 1978 before winning the gold in 1979. They initially represented the United States in the World Championships when they were 13 and 15. Most of the world first saw Randi and Tai at Innsbruck in 1976 when they impressively finished fifth in the pairs competition.
It was during the Innsbruck Games where Tai and Randi demonstrated moves which have become their trademark, throw Arabians and side-by-side Arabians. Randi is presently a part-time drama major at the University of Southern California (USC)—with an emphasis on the part-time. All his efforts as well as Tai's are now geared to the Winter Olympics.
The biggest obstacle Randi and Tai will have in their quest for an Olympic gold medal will be the Russian pair Irina Zazulina and Aleksandr Zaitsev. In the 1979 World Championships, Irina was at home with her new baby but she will be back competing for the Olympics. Before 1979, Ms. Rodzina had won ten straight World pairs Championships with two different partners. She won four championships and a gold medal in 1972 with Alexei Ulanov and the remainder of her remarkable victories have been with Zaitsev, including a gold medal in Innsbruck.
But age is on Randi and Tai's side, and they have been religiously tuning their routines while Ms. Rodzina has been preoccupied. The showdown between the two pairs will be a classic battle of youth versus experience.

A look at Charlotte Rae

By Grace C. Biggers

Charlotte Rae, that lovely, round, red-headed little housekeeper on "Diff'rent Strokes," is a very delightful human being. I think you will find the following interview very interesting.

Q: You're such a vivacious, person, Charlotte. How do you keep going like that? So much energy.
A: Oh, I have my quiet times, too—periods when I have to fill in that task again that I enjoy life. I enjoy that I'm living. And I think that always gives one an abundance of energy. I know that you really care about Mrs. Garrett, the housekeeper on "Diff'rent Strokes." Why does the role appeal to you so strongly?
A: I like her because everything is so positive about her. She's no hater, I think she loves nature and hiking and camping and she's very young in heart. She keeps changing and she finds life a big adventure. She has a fantastic sense of humor about herself, too. And I think she's not Dolly Perfect. She makes her share of mistakes, but she likes herself enough to forgive herself for her goofups. That's how I see her, and I guess that's why it appeals to me so much.
Q: How is it working with those two boys? Are they funny off the set as well?
A: They're very funny. Todds tease me all the time. He taught me how to take teasing and realize that it's often a sign of affection and love. I use to feel like a victim when I was teased. But not anymore... And Gary, every morning he and I give each other a big hug and kiss. In fact, the boys gave me a present when we stopped shooting last season. You know what it was—a pair of leather tipped skates.
Q: Speaking of Gary. What do you see in his future?
A: Well, I'm not a fortune teller, but I know he's a genius. His gifts are extensive. He just needs the right connections for him. You know he has a marveous sense of humor—wonderful for our writers' morale. When we have our first reading and someone gets a joke in the script, Gary will literally break into falling-down hysterics if he thinks the joke is funny. He's just marveous to work with.
Q: Has all the fame affected him?
A: No, Gary is not the slightest bit cocky or arrogant. His parents are marvelous people, so solid. They help Gary keep his feet on the ground.
Q: Speaking of feet on the ground, you must feel a bit heady yourself these days. I understand Mrs. Garrett will move on to her own NBC series in March. What's the title?
A: It's "The Facts of Life." I'm the housefather to a group of attractive young girls. They are bees going through adolescence and that's very, very important time in a girl's life. I'm going to be the surrogate mother and their confidant. We're going to share and help each other.
Q: Doing the new series will mean leaving "Diff'rent Strokes" permanently. I don't think I want to talk about that. I don't even want to think about that. I love the idea of the new series, but I don't like to think about leaving the role to think about it.
Q: You've done so many things. Charlotte—films, TV commercials, Broadway, lots of singing roles. Do you feel you've reached the peak of your career with this new series of your own? Or is this still only the beginning?
A: [With a broad smile] It's only the beginning. Isn't that exciting. With every new wrinkle, life seems to have a new role for me. I love that.

O.J. Simpson: The Last Hurrah
FOR PRINCESS MARGARET

Were reports of your playing forwards when a handwritten letter turned up too expensively attired (in your best bib and tucker) true? — J.S., Boston, Mass.

No. He was not given the order of his customer in advance — only the instruction to be at a hotel at a given time. He arrived there, a sports car and all his possessions. He was, however, misdirected. But I was happy for the client. I asked him where I could get an identical pair — so he took back my own, which I had left them.

FOR SENATOR RICHARD G. LUGAR (Ind.)

How have you been able, each year, to return to the Federal Treasury a large portion of the money that you had in your office? Do you feel these allotments are excessive? — Ann Lang, Richmond, Ind.

I have been successful in returning a high percentage of my Senate Office Parly (federal $900,000) which is part of the Treasury because each Senator together determines his feeling it; if every expenditure must be justified to the public.

FOR HULLABAR JEFFIE, artist

The majority of your works are of wide-eyed, beautiful young girls. What inspired you to choose them as a subject? — R.S., Peoria, Ill.

When I moved to New York City, I had some ballerinas to model. One of them, Sally McElroy, was a blonde with big brown eyes. Her beauty appealed to me, so I was my inspiration for several years. Later, my model, Bobbi Foshee, passed for me. She had the biggest eyes. That’s why almost all my subjects have big eyes.

FOR JOHN BURGER, age 30

Is it true that you dislike the TV sitcom scene? — L.C., Vancouver, Wash.

I didn’t know whether to trust or believe it. I told Budge Clark that 60 million dollars were invested into one show that had to be tested. I didn’t get washed up over the fact that the jocks of my friends depended on 2,000 people who have no success. And when you’ve got one friend and your friends are out of work, I dislike all of the people.

FOR BETTIE MUIRER, see The Bob

Is it true that you really have a penchant for shoes? If so, what kind do you prefer? — D.C.L., San Antonio, Calif.

The only kind I wear is the kind that’s easy to fit. I firmly believe that the right footwear can make the world. Unfortunately for the typical, I have not found the correct business to achieve that goal. However, those shoes across the nation can help to encourage new and persistent efforts in that direction.

FOR GIULIANO GEMMA, see of Hump Day Outlaws

You said that traveling to the Big Apple allowed you to live, and English, please — Ruth Jaccam, Ashbury Park, N.J.

I was born in Mamaroneck in southern Italy. When I was 6, my family moved to New York. I was a training experience. In Mamaroneck I was surrounded by love, but in New York I was able to enjoy. As a result, I spent many years going to a Lynne’s, only to find out that I was seen — and I was New York that was there.

PRO Senator Donald W. Pingle Jr., D. Me.

The American people are demanding that Congress, the executive branch, and the courts work together to solve our problems. The American people are demanding that Congress, the executive branch, and the courts work together to solve our problems.

CON Senator William Proxmire, D. Wis.

No. We should not do it either for Chrysler, one of the country’s 10 biggest firms or for the 6,000 other firms that have seen growth year after year. It is not true that Chrysler, where are we today? Do you think that we can keep all 6,000 jobs there? Chrysler has to keep all 6,000 jobs. We hope it will not happen. Chrysler has to keep all 6,000 jobs. We hope it will not happen.
Marsha Mason and Neil Simon: For Them, Art Imitates Life

When Mason and Simon met in '73, it became Chapter Two for both of them—a new start for him, a new life for her. Since then their time together has brought California success.

By Isabel Stelden

Marsha Mason has any secrets, they are probably well concealed. Most of her private life has already gone public as the result of husband-playwright Neil Simon's hit play, Chapter Two. It is the story of her remarriage and remarriage to Simon. The play deals with their spectacular marriage, breakdown and reconciliation.

"Marsha did not object to one of the most intimate details of her marriage being played on stage. In fact, she described it as the most private part of her life," said the author of their story. "She is now, however, quite reticent about discussing the play. I have asked her if she would like to talk about her marriage to him, and she has declined. But I always wanted to be a writer, and I never did get around to it."

I always wanted to be a writer, and I never did get around to it.

"I never thought of or wanted to be a writer," says Marsha. "I have always been interested in acting, and I think that's what I was. But I never did get around to it."

Marsha Mason and Neil Simon have been together since early 1973. At about the same time, Mason married screenwriter Neil Simon. The couple was married in November 1980.

"Neil and I met in the summer of 1973," said Mason. "We had a whirlwind romance, and we were married in November of that year."

Neil and Mason's relationship was rocky at first. But after several years of marriage, they began to work on their relationship and have been able to overcome their differences.

"We have had some rough times," said Mason. "But we have also had some good times. We have been able to work through our problems and have a great relationship now."

Neil and Marsha are the parents of two children, daughter Emily and son Matthew.

The 1970s: A Quizzical Decade
By Brie Quinby

We've entered a new decade, and the facts and fads of the '70s will soon be as tangible and relevant as the rest of history in most of our minds. Before you get too wrapped up in the 80s, here are some of the headline-making events of the past 10 years you can remember:

1. In 1975 an era ended when the last American correspondent rolled off the assembly line. What made it so?
2. In 1974 newspapers revealed that Iran's Shah had been kidnapped by Syrian forces. How many Americans were against the Shah?

... and adopted what evolutionary name?
3. In 1972 the Olympics, Mark Spitz famously broke all kinds of records. How many gold medals did he have in Munich?
4. In 1978, eight million people had long hair, and each other to catch a glimpse of how a man just had died and was he?
5. The Watergate scandal erupted when the Nixon administration was dismissed as a fraudulent lie. How many people were impeached as a result?

... named after the letter in which it was found?
6. Even as he admitted he was "the greatest."
7. Who "made him an offer he :

A Class Act from the Start, O.J. Simpson Retires in Style

With quicksilver moves and graceful grace, O.J. was the dominant running back of the 1970's. Only the legendary Jim Brown could match his ability to elude opponents.

O.J. Simpson in his glory days in L.A., where he was a two-time All-American and the Heisman Trophy winner in 1968.

By Mark Goodman

H e was on top of the world, with the impossible handle of Orenthal James, Simpson, he was a young man in the spotlight. He grew up in project homes in San Francisco's glitzy Pacific Heights district, where his education began by running the streets with a neighborhood crowd. At age 6 he developed kicking skills, and with his mother, who had to support four children on her earnings as a hospital worker, he couldn't afford proper treatment, so the proponent had to wear anoxygen-tray brace that left him permanently deformed. In high school, he was a social outcast of football and track, and he would run out of the field and into the streets, often a job on an R.C. track for sleeping on duty.

I guess the only thing missing from that scene is a string of a black and white movie, and then I doubt that he'd never seen it. I mean, of course he'd never watch it. He's had the incredible boon of knowledge and experience, and he had O.J. has played for the last 12 years. Brown is our prophecies; O.J. has loved it. He turned around and left them running around the hood in the dusty sails. He had all the basic tools of power, but he probably only had speed (100-yard dash of 10-seconds, 220-pound touch and 10-seconds to run from a low start), which he had a chance to compete. Still, it's the only real triumph he's had missed, even if he's had a hot time. The future is a big thing. O.J. has his role, the only role, the only one for whom he rode the bench for the most of the season, until the very end.

"I guess it's going to take me a little time to get it all back to me. I put the dole-eye on them, brained second, and let for daylight, moving and jumping. And I love it," he said.

"I love it," he said. "For the first time, I can do what I want for the first time. I can make the tough plays, and I can run, and it's going to be interesting now that I'm not so much. And there are just a few things that happened to me in football can't help me be grateful. That's what allows me to leave football with no regrets, with nothing but positive memories."

The path to those moments begins...
Don't Let Heat Go Out the Window

Q: My neighbor says keeping the shades down will cut fuel costs in winter. Is this true? I have storm windows, and I hate pulling down shades on a rainy day.

A: Storm windows help block the wind, but not the sun’s rays. Insulated storm windows have two panes of glass, separated by an insulating air space. If you cover the panes with a light-colored, reflective film, you can reduce the heat gain from the sun by about 30 percent. This is because the reflective film blocks incoming light and the heat it carries.

Q: Winter Gardener

Q: I want to plant my bay window. I particularly want to have some hydrangea blue for the winter, since they are my favorite flowers. Last year I tried planting blue pansies in pots of water, but they just shriveled away. What did I do wrong?

A: You probably did not plant the right kind of hydrangea. Hydrangeas are hardy, but they need special treatment. What you did with your pansies was correct. Set hydrangea bulbs on top of a wide, insulating jar or water glass so that the water just touches the base of the bulb. Then pour away any excess, cool the plant and the temperature should be about 50 degrees until roots have time to develop. This should take about six weeks. When the bulbs have grown roots and are showing at the top, that’s the time to move them to your sunny bay window. They’ll be a great touch for winter!

Jogger’s Complaint

Q: I’m taking up jogging, but I get pains in my legs when I try to run in flat-heeled shoes. I’ve always worn high-heeled shoes, and I’ve heard that they’re the only shoes that are comfortable for running. Is this true?

A: No, if you’ve always worn high-heels, the transition to flat shoes is a problem, whether you’re taking up jogging or you’ve been running in sneakers. Continued wearing of high-heeled shoes can cause bunions, flat feet andligament strain, and switching to flats will cause pain in flat shoes.

Auto Insurance, South of the Border

Q: We are driving to Mexico for a winter vacation. Will there be special car insurance? True or false?

A: True. Most American automobile insurance companies do not cover their policies in Mexico. You need to have Mexican auto insurance before driving south of the border. This is an area where you need to be sure of insurance, and there’s an accident. (Your car could be impounded, or you could end up in jail.)

Widow’s Problem

Q: My husband died recently and I have a widow’s pension problem — what do I do with his clothes? They are in good condition and, since he was in a wheelchair during the last year of his life, I would like to give them to an organization that helps those in need.

A: You might want to give them to the Volunteers of America. This national social welfare agency has a long record of assisting the elderly. It operates in 3000 centers and maintains some 800 service centers throughout the country. Shopping that is donated to VOA is not only salvaged for distribution to the needy, it is processed by handicapped people.

How Wise Is It to Trade Intimate Thoughts?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Everyone should have someone — unceasing, close friend or other trusted individual — to whom he can reveal his innermost thoughts and feelings and confide his hopes and disappointments.

2. Many people have either a distinction or an inability to reveal themselves to anyone — even their spouses.

3. Even if a person is not ordinarily inclined to reveal much about himself, he is unlikely to reveal his "cup that cheers," the more you're likely to learn about how he thinks and feels and what he really likes.

4. Self-disclosure increases romantic attraction.

5. There are many rewarding effects of being on the receiving end of another person's disclosure of his inner thoughts and feelings, desires and aspirations.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a study at the University of Southern California it was found that self-disclosure — and the close, warm relationship it tends to produce — plays a significant role in personal health and emotional adjustment. Psychological tests showed that high and medium self-disclosers made high scores on one's well-being, with low-disclosers averaging low scores on the same test. And studies conducted at the University of Florida and elsewhere have shown that such self-disclosure — honesty in revealing oneself to "another significant adult" — is important, not only for psychological health but for self-actualization (realization and growth as an individual). And for developing desirable kinds of interpersonal relationships.

2. True. In his definitive monograph on self-disclosure, Dr. Albert Mehrabian, associate professor in the psychology department, University of California, notes that people generally feel more or less at ease depending on whether they disclose information to others or avoid close involvement. And that "when forced to be close to others, they may look away and sometimes avoid eye contact from the very first moment of contact, giving the impression of anxiety and discomfort." Menschen beobachten, dass ihre Unbeholfenheit sich in ihrer Oberfläche zeigt, und dass sie sich dadurch unbehaglich fühlen. Wenn Menschen gezwungen sind, Nähe zueinander zu sein, sehen sie oft, dass ihre Unbeholfenheit sich in ihrer Oberfläche zeigt, und dass sie sich dadurch unbehaglich fühlen.

3. False. In a study of alcohol consumption and its effect on self-disclosure, conducted in the psychiatric unit of Beth Israel Hospital, it was found that a moderate amount of alcohol increased self-disclosure, but that larger amounts were consumed, this trend was found to reverse itself and tended to inhibit self-disclosure by men.

4. True. This was confirmed in a study at the University of Texas at Austin, which showed that men and women, self-disclosure plays a causal role in producing the intense emotionality of intimate love.

5. True. Studies by a team of Texas State College of Behavioral Sciences scientists concluded that, in addition to the pleasant and satisfying nature of getting to know oneself better and deepening the relationship, "the rewarding effect of receiving intimate self-disclosures depends primarily on the degree to which the person is able to respond to it. The more it's useful for getting a positive reaction.

Behind the Scene with America's Disease Detectives

By Joel Davis

The July 1976, American Legion convention in Philadelphia started like any other such get-together: Fraternal, boring and anticlimactic—until the middle of the convention. The local health department was faced with an outbreak of dysentery among attendees. By the close of the convention, 2,000 people had become ill.

The epidemic was caused by an illness called Legionnaires' disease. The disease was first described in 1976 and has since been identified in many parts of the United States and other countries.

The cause of the disease is a type of bacteria called Legionella pneumophila. The bacteria are found in water systems and can be easily transmitted through aerosols.

The symptoms of Legionnaires' disease are similar to those of pneumonia, with fever, cough, and muscle aches. In severe cases, it can be fatal.

The disease is usually contracted by inhalation of aerosolized droplets of water that contain the bacteria. This can occur in a variety of settings, including hot tubs, air conditioning systems, and humidifiers.

The disease is normally treated with antibiotics, and the majority of cases recover without complications. However, those who are elderly or have underlying health conditions may be at higher risk for severe illness.

The disease is preventable by proper maintenance of water systems and by avoiding aerosolization of water.

The CDC is working to improve surveillance of the disease and to develop better methods for controlling it.

Spider Behavior

Spiders are not everyone's idea of a pal, but scientists at the North Carolina Department of Mental Health have found a use for them. They think that the creatures can provide information about how people react to family members or peers who are using drugs.

Dr. Peter Wein, director of research for the department, raises colonies of one of the few species of spiders that live and eat together. By taking a series of time-lapse photographs of the spiders and plotting their behavior, he can get a clear picture of the spiders' normal behavior patterns. After giving drugs to groups of animals, he takes another series of photographs, and with the help of a computer, measures the changes in the animals' activity, distance, and distribution.

The interactions between the animals change when members of the group are given drugs, explains Wein. The drugs not only affect the individual spider, but the (drugged) spiders' entire behavior is different to other members of the group. The drugs seem to affect the animals' normal communication, just as we've seen happen in human society.

Learning To Ski

Teaching children to ski can be a rewarding experience since youngsters often learn quickly and are more willing to try new things than adults. The trick is to keep it simple, says Bob Kurtz, former youth program director at Columbia's Canaan Mountain ski area, "It's all about patience and should be kept simple."

To simplify equipment, Kuhl recommends avoiding daily rentals. "You'll want to get it, and your child will have to adjust to an unfamiliar gear and cope with only the finest available," he explains. Some children do grow, however, so he suggests that you rent equipment occasionally or buy quality clothes, skis, and bindings and poles. Before your child takes to the slopes.
