U.S. To Keep Pressure On Reds, Carter Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter said Tuesday that the United States would continue to press for sanctions against the Soviet Union until the Soviets stop their military build-up.
The sanctions, which were introduced by the Carter administration last year, target the Soviet military-industrial complex and its support base.

Kennedy Prepares Self For First Campaign Loss

MASON CITY, Iowa (UPI) - President Kennedy, who last week announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, said Monday that he would not seek the nomination this year.

Good Morning

It's Monday, Jan. 18. And ...

...will be mostly cloudy with a high of 37 degrees, according to the National Weather Service. Winds will be out of the north-northeast at 10 mph.

The weather is expected to clear up in the afternoon, with a low of 22 degrees at night.

According to a recent study, if you hibernated for 50 years, you could save a significant amount of money. However, this would also require a significant lifestyle change and would not be a feasible option for most people.

Homey Suite Site For Natural Births

By David Rice

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) - New York's first natural birth center, the Homey Suite Site for Natural Births, opened its doors on Monday.

The center, located at 222 East 47th Street, offers a home-like environment for women to give birth without interventions. The center is run by the American College of Nurse-Midwives and is staffed by Certified Nurse-Midwives.

The center has been well-received by the medical community, with many doctors and hospitals referring patients to the center. The center has also received positive reviews from women who have used the center.

With recent advancements in medical technology, there has been a growing demand for natural childbirth options. The Homey Suite Site for Natural Births is one of the first centers in the United States to offer these services.

Not that it's anything important, I guess, but weather plagues can add to the problems associated with the situation around us.

Hurt In Blast At Soviet Office

NEW YORK (UPI) - A bomb blast at the Soviet embassy in New York City's TriBeCa neighborhood on Monday killed one person and injured several others.

The blast occurred at 5:00 a.m. Monday, when a package was sent to the embassy.

The explosion caused widespread damage to the embassy and caused several buildings in the area to be evacuated. The blast also caused minor injuries to several people, including a police officer.

The cause of the blast has not been determined, but it is believed to be a terrorist attack.

The blast was the second attack on the Soviet embassy in as many months. The first attack occurred in July, when a bomb was sent to the embassy.

The State Department has released a statement expressing its condolences to the families of the victims and to the people of the Soviet Union. The Department also called for an end to terrorism and for the prevention of terrorist attacks.

Clayton To Attend Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin said Tuesday that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to focus on improving East-West relations at a meeting of agricultural ministers here next week.

The agreement follows a joint declaration signed in Moscow last Monday night by the two countries' trade ministers. In the declaration, the United States said it would work to improve trade relations with the Soviet Union and other Eastern bloc nations.

Hardin said the U.S. and the Soviet Union would continue to work on solving trade problems, including an agreement on the sale of American grain to the Soviet Union.

Detente Or Cold War II

Detente is now, as the time grows, in the national interest. Though the Soviet s have attacked us with words, and have not attacked us with weapons, we have not moved forward in the world. The world has grown more complicated, and the world has grown more dangerous. The world is now in a state of flux, and we must move forward with caution. I have just finished reading the book "The Man Who Had 8,000 Women" by Michael Holbrook. It is a fascinating read, and I highly recommend it to anyone interested in the history of the Cold War.

Voice Of The People

Competitive?

President Carter's plan to reduce the budget deficit is laudable, but it must be coupled with a program to reduce the national debt. The national debt is now at an unsustainable level, and it must be reduced if we are to have a stable economy.

Borg Finally Gets N.Y. Win

NEW YORK (UPI) - Even for a mansion like the World Tennis Center here, the sight of tennis's King of Clay sending the ball hurtling over the net was a rare one.

Bil Johnson of the Los Angeles Rams is a big man, a big hitter, but a ballancer who plays the game with a finesse that is as basic as his heft. He's a mover, too, has some of the slowest movement you can imagine.

But there's no mistaking the lanky figure of Bjorn Borg as he throws the ball into the air and steps into it. A few times now, he's done that, and never more than in his 16-8 victory over Jimmy Connors in the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Manhattan Classic.

Johnson described the ball as heavy and illusory, something that produced a jokier than Johnson. The American was just happy to be able to get to the third round.

Johnson, who had also lost to Connors in one of the opening rounds, had only one word for Borg: "He's the best."

Conversely, Connors, who had been training in New York for a long time, said of the ball: "I've never played in this kind of conditions before."

The first set was really tough, at least for Connors. Borg made him look silly with his serve, which broke Connors' confidence and made him look very nervous. Then it was Borg's turn to break down, and Connors even won a game off him.

But in the second set, Connors simply could not hold his own. He lost the set 6-3, and then it was over. Borg won the third set 6-2, his third straight victory over Connors in as many years. The match was played in front of a capacity crowd of 5,000 at Madison Square Garden, with Connors and Borg both clearly missing some of their best form.

The comeback against Connors last year was the only one of Borg's three visits to the Garden. Before that, the Swede hadn't even come close to winning.

But this year, he was back in form, and his serve was unreturnable. The match was the first of two in which Borg is scheduled to play, the other against Jimmy Arias, who beat him in the first round.

Borg, who already has the French Open and Wimbledon titles, is now focusing on the United States Open, which he considers his biggest challenge of all. He's been training here for the last few weeks, and is already living up to his reputation as a hard hitter and a patient player. But Borg was in a great mood after winning his third straight set, and he's looking forward to the rest of the tournament.

After the match, Connors said: "I thought I had a chance, but Borg is just too good. He's the best player in the world, and he proved it today."

Conversely, Borg said: "I'm just happy to be here, and I'm looking forward to the rest of the tournament."

There should have been a main line through Oklahoma State's wrestling team this season, but instead there was little coordination and no one to fill the void.

The Cowboys have been looking for a new coach since the hiring of Dave Johnson last year, and they've been searching for someone who could help them get back to the Top 25. But after last year's disappointment, they're looking for someone who can get them back to the Top 25.

Oklahoma State's wrestling team has been struggling for years, and it's clear that they're still struggling. The Cowboys have been looking for a new coach since the hiring of Dave Johnson last year, and they're looking for someone who can help them get back to the Top 25.

Oklahoma University basketball coach Eddie Sutton has been on a roll lately, and he's looking to boost his team's chances of winning the Big Eight Conference.

Sutton, who has been coaching at OU for the last 10 years, has the Sooners in the Top 15 this season, and he's looking to keep them there.

The Sooners have been playing well recently, winning five of their last six games. They've also been playing well on the road, winning six of their last seven games away from Norman.

Sutton says the Sooners have been working hard to improve their play, and he's looking to keep them there.
