STOKES - A 72-year-old girl, awakened by the sound that killed her husband, was found in a room in their home near this city, and she is now in the hospital, where her doctors say she is in critical condition. The man whose body was found in the room was identified as Mr. Jones, 72, who lived in the same house. He was last seen alive last night, and his body was found by his daughter, who went to the police station this morning. The girl was taken to the hospital, where doctors say she is in critical condition.

By Handcuffs

The girl's grandfather, who was severely injured in the accident, has been taken to the hospital, where doctors say he is in critical condition.

By Police

The police were notified of the accident and are investigating.

By Stormy Weather

It was raining inside and out in the Oklahoma City area on Tuesday, and a severe storm warning was issued for the area. The storm caused power outages and flooding in some areas. The National Weather Service said that the storm was expected to last throughout the day.

Buckeyes Fall In Overtime; Irish Win

By Robert Erwin

The Ohio State University men's basketball team's upset attempt at Pitt was thwarted by foul trouble and late-game turnovers. The Buckeyes were expected to win their first game of the season against the No. 11 Pittsburgh Panthers. However, the game ended in overtime with a 97-89 loss. The Buckeyes were down 10 points in the first half but fought back in the second half, making a 23-point run to tie the game. Although they had a strong start, they were unable to maintain their momentum and ultimately lost to the Panthers.

Pokes Breathe Big Sigh Of Relief

According to the consensus of the basketball writers, the people who attend the games, and the common traveler who stops to watch a street game in a small city, the University of Kentucky is in the best position to win the NCAA basketball championship.

There will be no one in the crowd at the final game in New York City to say to the Kentucky team that the victory would have been sweeter if it had been won with a larger margin. There will be no one to say that Kentucky has a young team and that its players should have been more mature.

The fans of Kentucky will be satisfied with the victory and will be content with the fact that the team has made it to the final game.

Official Ankia Boxing Ban

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Friday was the day that the ban on boxing in the state of New York was lifted. The ban had been in effect since 1949 due to the deaths of several boxing fans in the state. The ban was lifted after a club in Brooklyn, the Tropicana Club, was found to have been operating without a license.

The club was cited for operating without a license and for allowing boxing matches to be held in violation of the ban. The club was ordered to pay a fine of $1,000 and to cease all operations.

The club appealed the decision, but the appeal was denied.

Place In History Awaits Winner

By Bob Ewing

The University of Kentucky basketball team is on the verge of winning the NCAA basketball championship. Kentucky has never won the championship before and is in the best position to do so this year.

Stevie Martin, a key player for the team, was coaxed out of retirement by a special colleges and universities summer promotion. Martin, who had not played in a basketball game since 1963, was asked to return to the court to help the team.

Martin was asked to return to the court to help the team because of his past success with the team. Martin was a key player for the team and helped lead them to the championship in 1963.

Couple Runs Amazon Hotel

By Mike Alder

EVENTHOUGH the Amazon Hotel is a local hotel that has been running for many years, it is now under the ownership of a couple who have decided to take it to the next level.

The hotel is located in a quiet neighborhood, surrounded by trees and nature. The couple, who met while working at the hotel, decided to purchase it and make it their own.

With the help of their team of workers, they have been renovating and upgrading the hotel, adding new amenities and improving the overall experience for guests.

The hotel now offers a range of services, including a spa, a restaurant, and a conference center. The couple hopes to attract more visitors and make the hotel a popular destination in the area.

The Amazon Hotel is proving to be a successful venture for the couple, and they are looking forward to the future.

THE JOHNNY CASH YOUTH SPECIAL
WHERE HAVE ALL THE CHILDREN GONE? Editorial Copy On Page 3
LISTINGS FOR JANUARY 20 THROUGH JANUARY 26
"Where Have All The Children Gone"

Life and death drama drawn from real-life experiences of young people, as well as an array of exotics and still are combined in a unique three and one-half hour television special, the Johnny Cash Youth Special: "Where Have All The Children Gone?"

Many top actors, comedians and singers, including Bob Hope, Carol Burnett, Cash himself, and sports world figures as well as others concerned with today’s troubled youth, appear on the program. It can be seen on Channel 7 at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, January 19.

In recent times, teenagers have faced a host of complex personal problems that have been brought on by the pressures of growing up in a society where there is an ever-increasing amount of violence at all levels, from school shootings to street violence. The program will focus on these issues and offer solutions.

Cash, who has always been concerned with young people, said, "I've always felt that youth is the future, and it's important to give them guidance and support. That's why I decided to make this special."

The program will feature stories of young people who have overcome difficult situations and how they have managed to make positive changes in their lives. It will also include interviews with experts on adolescent issues, such as mental health professionals and educators.

At the end of the show, Cash will offer a message of hope and encouragement to young viewers, reminding them that they are not alone and that there is help available. "You can get through it," he says, "and you can make a difference in your community and in the world."

Previews of Superbowl XIV

There's one day a year when Americans, no matter where they are, stop what they're doing, forget about the time, and gather round to watch the premier sports event of the year—the Super Bowl.

CBS Sports will capture this part of America, along with presenting a comprehensive preview of the 14th annual edition of the championship of professional football, on 'The Super Bowl Today,' Sunday, Jan. 20 (3:30-6:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Hosted by the Emmy Award-winning broadcast team of 'The NFL Today,' including Brent Musburger, Jayne Kennedy, Irv Cross, Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder and Jack Whitaker, 'The Super Bowl Today' will be broadcast live from eight different remote locations.

Producer Mike Perl and director Bob Fishman will make full use of two production vans, 16 cameras and almost a like number of announcers, in presenting this special 90-minute broadcast prior to the kickoff of the National Football League's Super Bowl XIV, to be played at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

Jack Whitaker will set the scene for the Super Bowl with one of his timely commentaries.

One of the remote locations will be the Kelley Recreation Center at Kelley Barracks in Stuttgart, West Germany, where CBS Sports' Lindsey Nelson will join American Forces personnel to watch the contest. Kelley Barracks is headquarters for the U.S. Navy's VII Corps.

Robert Wagner stars as the fabulously wealthy jet-setter, Jonathan Hart, who along with his wife, Jennifer (played by Stefanie Powers), often finds himself in a tangled web of mystery on the ABC Television Network's action-series, "Hart to Hart," which airs Tuesdays (9:00-10:00 p.m.).

Q: Would you please settle a bet between me and my cousin? I say that Erik Estrada of "Chips" is Italian. She says he's Spanish. Who's correct? Right? Also, when did he get to be an actor? I mean, did he ever go to school? He played Dante on "CHINATOWN." Did he ever go to school?
Erik: Yes, I've been to school. I was born and raised in East Harlem and am of Spanish descent. The actor makes his decision to enter the acting field a matter of love. When, according to Erik, a female classmate became a member of the high school drama club, Erik decided to enroll in hopes of "getting to know her better." He wound up falling in love with the dramatic arts instead of the girl.

BEST BUDDY
Q: I'm Buddy Ebson's biggest fan and I heard that he was originally a doctor before he started to act. Is that true?
A: Following his high school graduation, Buddy Ebson was accepted to the Harvard Medical School but decided not to pursue medicine after two years and went on to a career as a dancer and actor.

Sports Calendar
SUPER SUNDAY
This Sunday afternoon, ABC kicks off its eighth consecutive year of "The Superstars" - a series of 11 Sunday shows that pit the world's greatest athletes against each other in opponents that pit men superstars, women superstars, "world" superstars and super-teams. The season premiere will offer the first of the men's qualifying round with both teams from the Men's World
Basketball Superstars and women's world superstars, WBC Heavyweight Boxing Champion Harold Solomon, a top-rated Tenilli pro; and Gaby Davis, a New York Cosmo who was North America's Player of the Year in soccer.

The "Superstars" is designed to test the ability of selected athletes in events other than those in which they have achieved their greatest success, evading the networks' with expert commentary provided by Don Drysdale, Bob Voeger and Reggie Jackson. For the most part, the title "Super Sunday" is not connected with ABC's "Superstar" series. It is connected instead with the Super Bowl. Well aware of this fact, CBS -- the network that is carrying this year's Super Bowl in prime time -- is capitalizing on the interest in this event by offering a 90-minute special preceding the game. The title is intended to be comprehensive preview of Super Bowl XIV.

The Mailbag

.Files finally forced him to abandon the idea. Buddy was chosen to star in "The Beverly Hillbillies" when the producer of that series saw the actor's exceptional performance in the movie "The Beverly Hillbillies." (For an answer to your question about any TV or movie, write to Mailbag, care of Tel-Aire Publications, 2121

"Once Upon a Family," in the simplest terms, is about a man who has to raise his two children by himself when his wife leaves him. Describing it is simple. For the man, living it is anything but.

Jacqueline Babbin produced the GE Theater comedy-drama which airs on CBS-TV Tuesday, Jan. 22, 8:00-10:00 p.m., and Jacqueline Babbin wasn't "assigned" to the project as a woman filling somebody's idea of tokenism. It's Jacqueline Babbin's project.

"I'd seen 'An Unmarried Woman,' and I'd seen 'Breaking Up,' and I'd seen all the other things about the poor woman who was left holding the bag when the man walks out. And there was something that annoyed me very, very much," she recalls.

"That was: I suddenly realized that there had to be a reverse side to this. And I spoke to a couple of men whose wives had left them with the children, and I discovered it wasn't that uncommon, particularly since the advent of the so-called 'woman's movement.' And I just thought it would be only fair to show the other side.

"I think it's rather amusing that it's instead of a male producer who thought of doing this," she says.

Ms. Babbin, whose 25-year career in television includes maybe 200 productions (she honestly doesn't remember) was at Universal Television at the time (she is now in charge of the prestigious long-form dramas at ABC), so "Once Upon a Family" will come to life as a Universal Television Production for CBS Entertainment, with Richard Michaels directing.

"We went to Alvin Sapiensky to write the story," she recalls, because he's a marvelous writer. And as a widower, we thought he would understand the problem.

The cast of the GE Theater comedy-drama is weighted with "New York actors"—Tony-winner Barry Bostwick is Henry, the confused and frightened father who must suddenly come out of his shell and get acquainted with his children; Broadway's Maureen Anderman plays his escaping wife, Nancy Marsh (Lou's publisher) is his mother; (who, contrary to grandmotherly cliches, is not eager to raise another generation of children), and Lee Chamberlain is featured as a schoolteacher who sees the negative effect that the father's insecurity is having on his daughter. Marcia Strassman is also starred as the woman with whom Henry feels he can start a new, honest life, and Jeremy Licht (7) and Kyle Richards (10) are starred as the children.

Henry does learn to be a father—not only a good one but a determined one, and when his wife reappears, announcing that she has "gotten herself together" and is ready to take the children—He is not ready to give them up. No way.

And that means a custody fight. A no-holds-barred custody fight.

"This is a subject that's extremely popular these days," the producer observes, "There's a new book out called 'Mother's Day,'" and the movie ' Kramer vs. Kramer.' It's a theme of today: a woman who's left with a form of responsibility he's never had to cope with before.

"In this film, which we shot last spring, we've gone beyond the immediate family to show what happens to Henry's life as a whole: his relationships at work, at his children's school, and with his friends. It's a study of a man growing and coming to grips with himself."

Henry's own feelings come through appropriately, and there are some scenes in Babbin's most recent production before this was a drama called "Friendship, Secrets and Lies." It was an all-woman production.

FOR BARBARA M. WATSON, Assistant Secretary of State for Consular Affairs

In the late 19th century, there was discrimination against Japanese immigrants, especially in labor markets. This was partly due to the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882. However, the United States has come a long way since then, and there is no legal discrimination against Japanese tourists today. The United States is open to all visitors, regardless of nationality.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Jack Lord, one of TV's Hawaii Five-O, says that smoking is his hobby. Does he mean that he's an actor or that he enjoys it as a leisure activity? — E.L., Ogden, Utah

Jack Lord is an actor and the creator of the character Steve McGarrett on "Hawaii Five-O." He may enjoy smoking as a hobby, but it's important to note that smoking can be harmful to one's health.

FOR JULIA CHILD, cooking authority and author

What is the onion that makes our eyes burn and water, and what can we do to prevent it? — J.E.F., Silver City, Calif.

The onion is indeed the culprit, but it's not the whole story. It's actually the sulfur compounds in the onion that cause the tears. To prevent this, you can try chopping the onion under cold water or in a stream of cold air.

FOR JOHN GABRIEL, host of ABC-TV's "Rip's Hope"

Does it bother you that men are not familiar with you and your work? — P.M., Vancouver, Wash.

As a host of a talk show, I feel that being a woman adds to my credibility. People often come to me because they want to hear a different perspective.

FOR ANNE MEARA of CBS-TV's "Archie Bunker's Place"

You said you hoped your kids would see the show on the show. They're 11. When I say I'm the world's worst cook, I'm not kidding. The only person who turned out food less appetizing and edible than I was my mother — from what I remember of my childhood. The only thing I can think of is trying to keep my fingers crossed that something about my rule will fall off in my own kitchen.

FOR CHARLES WILLIAM DUNCAN Jr., Secretary of Energy

Having appointed John C. Snowoll the former energy official as my deputy, I'm not bringing back the so-called "old guard" that failed to move against the energy crisis 10 years ago — J.A., Brandon, Ohio

As Secretary of Energy, I'm bringing in a fresh team of experts who are ready to tackle the energy crisis. John C. Snowoll is one of these experts.

FOR FELICE C. COTT, Associate Professor of Biochemistry, Syracuse University

Have you any idea how long it will be before there is a collection of natural antioxidants which can be manufactured to protect our cells? — R.S., Beachwood, N.J.

It's difficult to say exactly how long it will take, but researchers are constantly working on developing antioxidants. The key is to find effective, safe, and affordable ones.

FOR TATUM O'NEAL, actress

We're always reading about you and your family. What's your opinion about all the attention? — R.B., Fayetteville, N.C.

As an actress, I'm used to being in the public eye. I try to keep my private life separate from my professional life.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Do you have any tips for writing a letter to a school? — P.T., New York, N.Y.

When writing a letter to a school, it's important to be clear, concise, and to the point. Make sure to include all the necessary information, and be polite and professional in your tone.
Unleashing Creativity
New Ways to Develop Your Child's Talent

The word talent has always connoted a special gift or skill that belongs to a chosen few. But new research shows that we all have hidden talent. It's just a matter of tapping it.

By Richard Louis

T he little girl and boy with hands were capable. She tossed off a couplet. She sat back and showed her paper away. Next to her was the creative writing class, or Allen, a 15-year-old with a composition of boisterous speed skater hit the floor. Allen, at the els. Finally.

"If you can make a story easy," he said, leaning toward her, "then you can make a story difficult."

The class had been discussing the creative process that day, how stories are already inside of us, just waiting to be written. But this little girl was having difficulty. Allen looked at her and explained softly, "Imagination is like becoming a story from your future.

Filtered, the little girl understood. She then wrote a story. She stood up to a moment, then bowed to her paper. Allen, how- ever, did not. He closed it, then wrote and showed a look at the little girl's curiousness. She read the story. Others did the same. Allen was unable to turn the experience into creativity, into art or a story.

Allen learned he had no talent.

"What do they mean about talent?" asked the art teacher. "Is it that you can do something?" Indeed, several new teaching techniques demonstrate that natural, hidden talents can be tapped in all of us.

There are many children, and adults. But Allen, who was capable of wonderful creativity, says child psycho-topes Dr. Mary Louise Scholl. "Unfortunately, they're the victims of talent rights."

One of the biggest crimes, according to Scholl, is that there is something magical about talent. "You always think you can't see the magic," she says. Talent is simply a particular area in which, for neurological, emotional or environmental reasons, a person is able to learn more quickly. The process of releasing talents for adults and children is a way of identifying certain blocks, then allowing them to unlock.

Scholl, a Harvard researcher and teacher for 25 years, is now co-director of the Neuropsychological Development Center, connected to the University of California, San Francisco. Scholl is known primarily at teaching pediatrics to recognize the neurological blocks that prevent natural talent from appearing.

 Güzel Malibu is big enough to deliver a smooth and quiet ride on the highway. It has the kind of feel you might want to examine with longer cars.

Try it. You'll feel good about this.

CRISP CLEAN LINES. Malibu looks thin. A thoroughly modern automobile.

No clunk. No sadness, no unneeded inches or pounds. It's a car you can feel good about driving.

It's important when you consider that people are keeping their cars for three, four years.

FULL OF FEATURES. Compare Malibu value with any other mid-size car.

Chevy. Malibu. Fits both.

SIX OF YOU CAN RIDE. Despite its slim exterior, Malibu is a roomy family car. There's room in there for mom, dad, three kids and grandma. As a matter of fact, based on EPA ratings on mid-size cars in America has more room than the 1980 Chevy Malibu 4-door Sedan.

NOW THAT'S A TRUNK: Some cars may have a little," he said, leaning toward her, "Then you can make a story difficult."

The class had been discussing the creative process that day, how stories are already inside of us, just waiting to be written. But this little girl was having difficulty. Allen looked at her and explained softly, "Imagination is like becoming a story from your future.

Filtered, the little girl understood. She then wrote a story. She stood up to a moment, then bowed to her paper. Allen, how- ever, did not. He closed it, then wrote and showed a look at the little girl's curiousness. She read the story. Others did the same. Allen was unable to turn the experience into creativity, into art or a story.

Allen learned he had no talent.

proving information through spoken language, drama, a problem with abstract mathematics, and spatial disorientations, a difficulty in relaying objects and symbols, memory, words or numbers in relation to each other. While Government agencies estimate that 80 to 25 percent of schoolchildren have learning disabilities, Scholl believes that many more have undiagnosed problems.

If these blocks go untended, children may grow into adults who do not believe they have a specific talent. On the other hand, if a person consciously or unconsciously learns to compensate for a disorder, hidden talent can be unleashed. Albert Einstein, a poor student, suffered from dyslexia. So did Nelson Rockefeller. Scholl urges parents and teachers to view each talent as a series of skills—not just one ability. "One of the reasons writing seems so difficult to teach is that it's taught as a skill, one at a time," she says.

"Actually, the art of writing is made up of at least three different skills: expressiveness, the mechanics of penmanship and the mechanics of spelling and grammar. If a child has trouble with one or more of these processes because of a mild learning disability, his writing ability is short-circuited. But that doesn't mean the child lacks talent — given care and attention...

The important thing, however, is that it's in the child's strength, bring the weaknesses up to par. Try to find out which of the skills is compromising the child's talent. If poor penmanship is complicating the child that can't write, Scholl suggests teaching him to type at an early age, since typing demands a minimum of visual-spatial awareness. Another good way to bypass the stumbling blocks of spelling and penmanship is to have the child tape-recorder a story as he writes it down. Then carefully, personally, he can transcribe the tapes. And if the child has difficulty with expressiveness, slow down. Some of the most becoming artistic creators have been the ones that took the longest to develop. The most important thing," says Scholl, "is not to believe the myth that just because you can't spell, you can't write. Just because you've never been able to draw, you never will; just because musical notation seems impossible, you do not have a symphony within you."

Armed with this information, a writer to the writing classes, described earlier, began to suspect why young Allen, who understands creativity, could not write.

"Allen, how's your spelling?"

"Not good." Are you afraid we won't like your essay because of your spelling?"

Allen didn't answer, but the visitor encouraged him to forget about his spelling — just write. Allen didn't look convinced, but after a week of harvesting, his words began to get longer, more complex. And then, suddenly, Allen showed the rest of the class — not in spelling, but in storytelling. Soon he was being chosen to read the pages of a composition book.

It was a story, of course, that Allen had borrowed from his history book.
Joe Namath
Without Cheers

Joe Namath was the supremely gifted quarterback who changed the course of pro football. Off the field, he played just as hard, just as joyfully. Now that the career that has stopped, Namath reflects on a magnificent career—and looks forward to a quieter life.

By David Gronwald

I had been a fan since Joe Namath had played professional football. But now it was over. The choice quarterback sensation was doing just right for himself. Like many other sports aficionados, I learned early on what it is to be a big-time football fan.

Now 36, Namath’s playing days are over, and he has retired. While he can’t help but remember the glorious Sunday in Miami eight years ago when he led the New York Jets to a 17-0 victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III, he dreams deal in the past.

more than a little discouraging in "Broadway Joe." Namath: "I was only the way through rehearsals." He recalls, "I was doing the right things with myself to keep my system under control. Not drinking coffee, maintaining regular exercise.

He was together up to when they said, O.K., place everybody. My heart almost came through my shirt. I didn’t want to be running and being felt. I didn’t know what the hell was going on. I was so excited.

I had to cry myself to sleep and ask a psychiatrist if he had a solution so I could take my mind off football.

He has no plans for my selection ceremony. "I’m only going to think about football till I go to the Super Bowl," he says. "I’m still going to think about football; that’s the only thing I know how to do."

But football is more than just a game for Namath. "I love being part of the New York Jets," he says. "I love the love and support."

Joe Namath was the greatest quarterback sensation since Joe Namath joined the Jets in 1965 and the league in 1966, a year after the New York Jets. Namath was named the most valuable player of the championship game.

But for the Jets fans, the greatest quarterback sensation since Joe Namath joined the Jets in 1965 and the league in 1966, a year after the New York Jets. Namath was named the most valuable player of the championship game.

I Joe Namath was the best-known quarterback in the NFL. He was by no means the first fan to be warming up for the Super Bowl. But his presence on the field meant something to the Jets fans. "I’ve never heard anyone say anything negative about Namath," said aJets fan. "He’s a great player." "I could have sworn I saw him in the stands," said another. "I’m sure he’s the greatest quarterback sensation since Joe Namath joined the Jets in 1965 and the league in 1966, a year after the New York Jets. Name the most valuable player of the championship game.

Joe Namath was the most valuable player of the championship game."

People Quiz

Can You Measure Your Marital Happiness?

True or False?

1. Men choose their marriage partners for different reasons than women do.
2. Husbands enjoy the physical act of marriage more than wives do.
3. If you live in a middle-aged couple, and you have sex without a partner, is the last thing you can do to improve your marriage, your sense of well-being, and to increase your chances of being happy.
4. Problems in the physical act often stem from a lack of energy.
5. Before getting married, couples should do something they seldom do have the chance to discuss their attitudes and expectations about their relationship, and to get to know each other better.

Answers

1. True. Research at East Tennessee State University indicates that women are more satisfied with men's behavior than with men's behavior.
2. False. A study by the San Francisco State University longitudinal study of marriage, in which a group of couples had been followed for over 20 years, revealed that wives who had been married for 20 years were more satisfied with their marriage. However, there was a significant difference between the two groups, with the wives in the study who had been married for 20 years being more satisfied with their marriage. The study found that the wives in the study who had been married for 20 years were more satisfied with their marriage than the wives in the study who had been married for 20 years, but there was no significant difference between the two groups.
3. True. A study by the University of California, Berkeley, found that men and women were more satisfied with their relationship than were men and women who were less satisfied with their relationship. The study found that men and women who were more satisfied with their relationship were more likely to be satisfied with their relationship, and that men and women who were less satisfied with their relationship were less likely to be satisfied with their relationship.
4. False. A study by the University of California, Berkeley, found that men and women were more satisfied with their relationship than were men and women who were less satisfied with their relationship. The study found that men and women who were more satisfied with their relationship were more likely to be satisfied with their relationship, and that men and women who were less satisfied with their relationship were less likely to be satisfied with their relationship.

Private Eye Herman Hurwitz and the Case Of the Hungry Husband

By Barry Storro

In winter, 3:00 in the morning and cold as winter, but Herman Hurwitz was out. A 60-year-old private eye on a cool but cozy country road, tracking a man who was probably a serial killer. Hurwitz, the editor of The Weekly Beast, was on the case involving the murder of a local woman. The suspect was a local farmer who had a history of domestic abuse.

Herman Hurwitz: The Man Who Never Slept

Herman Hurwitz was a private investigator with a reputation for being a hard worker. He was known for his dedication to his cases, often working long hours to solve them. In this particular case, he had been tracking the suspect for several days, following his movements and trying to gather evidence.

Herman Hurwitz: The Hunter

Herman Hurwitz was a hunter of all sorts, looking for the truth in every case. He was always ready to take on a new case, no matter how difficult it might be. In this case, he was determined to find the truth and bring the suspect to justice.

Mothers-In-Law

From famed French relations about how her mother-in-law, a whispy, thin, gray-haired woman with a starched, perky expression, seemed to keep her husband's family "in line," Angelina says, "I just wasn't "with it." With my new baby I was feeling a bit ... and she [Angelina's mother-in-law] seemed most of the time to be very busy, very kind, but very distant, almost as if she was afraid of the unknown, her own life."

Author and daughter-in-law Ann Serb

As reported in the New York Times, Washington Post, Chicago Tribune, Miami Herald, Paul Harvey News

Doomsday Powder for Roaches could Endanger Species.

The cockroach could become the next endangered species if a California manufacturer has its way.

Ali Brite, 51, Minneapolis, who 30 years ago developed and lent his name to what is now a standard household cleaner, CREEPIT BRITE, has a new product called ROACH PRUF.

Brite states that because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUF as an insecticide, they do not avoid it, then scatter to other parts of your residence as they do with the more toxic insecticides. But, the electrotically charged powder sticks to their bodies which then carry back into the walls spreading among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in your walls and then you are protected for years against reinfestation.

In scientific tests conducted during a major research project at the University of California, the ROACH PRUF formula was tested in heavily infested housing developments, restaurants, hotels and grocery stores against the most powerful insecticides used by professional exterminators. In every instance the ROACH PRUF formula proved strikingly superior in eliminating all roaches and preventing reinfection.

ROACH PRUF is registered by the United States Environmental Protection Agency for use in all buildings, new and in new construction and can be used in homes with children and pets.

The powder is odorless and non dusty and no harmful or irritating effects await the user as it is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and other hidden areas.

Brite has a problem, however: he says retailers apparently think it's unprofitable to stock the one-shot roach killer on their shelves when the same customers will come in again and again to buy the other roach insecticides. So he has decided to sell his product directly to consumers.

ROACH PRUF costs $7.50 (including postage) for a one-pound can. Additional is $1.00 per additional can. In California add 6% tax. One can covers up to a 4-room residence, plus one can for basement and garage. To obtain the product, send a check or money order in COOPER BRITE INC., Dept. 90, 5147 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90037.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I'm a woman who has been on the warpath to lose weight for years. I've tried every diet, from the Hollywood Starlets to the low-carb diets. I've even tried the rice diet, but I never found it to be effective. But I thought I would give it a try.

QUESTION: What is the rice diet?

ANSWER: The rice diet is a weight loss diet that emphasizes eating rice as the staple food. It is called a reducing diet because it helps you lose weight. It is also known as a health diet because it is good for your health.

QUESTION: Why should I try the rice diet?

ANSWER: The rice diet is a healthy and effective way to lose weight. It is low in calories and high in fiber, which helps you feel full and satisfied. It is also rich in nutrients that are important for your overall health.

Catching Glaucoma Early

By Paula Dronov

Every year, 1.5 million Americans suffer from eye disease. However, the majority of these cases are left untreated because the disease is asymptomatic or nearly so. This is a serious problem because, if left untreated, the disease can lead to blindness.

Glaucoma is a condition that affects the eye's drainage system, causing the pressure in the eye to rise. If left untreated, this can lead to permanent vision loss. The disease is particularly common among people over the age of 60, and it is estimated that over 2 million people in the United States have glaucoma.

Treatment is key to preventing vision loss. There are several methods of treatment, including medication, laser treatments, and surgery. Early detection is crucial, as vision loss can be prevented with proper treatment.

The rice diet is a great way to lose weight, but it is not a substitute for a healthy lifestyle. It is important to eat a balanced diet and exercise regularly to maintain your health.

Contact your doctor if you are concerned about your weight or your health. Your doctor can help you develop a plan to achieve and maintain a healthy weight. They can also help you identify any underlying health conditions that may be contributing to your weight gain.

Glaucoma gives no early-warning signs, but it can be detected by a simple test and then controlled.

Glaucoma is a condition in which there is a higher than normal pressure within the eye. This increased pressure can damage the optic nerve, which connects the eye to the brain. If left untreated, glaucoma can lead to permanent vision loss.

Treatment for glaucoma can include medication, laser treatments, and surgery. It is important to detect glaucoma early, as vision loss can be prevented with proper treatment.

It's A Bear's World

Animals are the favorite characters in children's books, and bears are particularly popular. Among the best loved are the two sisters by Stan and Jan Berenstain, a husband-and-wife team with 24 Bear books to their credit.

"Our idea of doing children's books came about because we had two sons, tow funny, and we quickly ran out of room to tell," said Stan Berenstain. "We didn't write the books for our children, but we wanted to do something humor, and our sons certainly gave us insight into just what that was. The Berenstains have worked together since they were married in 1960, and they say that the secret to their success is that "we each have our own professional ability." They both feel that children appreciate humor and like learning to read funny books that are both entertaining and informative. As 30 million children in 14 countries seem to agree.

Fitness Nationwide

Fitness has become one of the most talked about subjects in this country, and running has become one of the most popular methods of achieving it. But all too often, joggers give up because they've thrown themselves into jogging without adequate preparation and have ended up with sore muscles, or they've gotten bored with their trail, or they're visiting a strange city and don't know where the best running trails are.

Well, now The Great American Running Trails, a packet of poster guides to running trails in cities nationwide, is here. Each city's guide features a map and a description of the best running trails and the architectural and natural wonders of each city along the way. Often a history of the area is included. The pamphlet also contains a section on the warm-up, stretching and cool-down exercises that are necessary for comfortable running. The trails packet can be obtained by writing to Great Running Trails, Dept. F.W. P.O. Box 9306, New York, N.Y. 10001, and enclosing a check or money order for $1 to cover postage and handling.

Sunday Celebration

For 200 years, children have been going to Sunday school, and this year marks the bicentennial celebration of their involvement. In 1795, Robert Ruffin founded the first Sunday school in Emmanuel Church, for children who worked in factories every day and had no opportunity for an education. In their early years, Sunday schools provided children with both religious and secular instruction. But as child labor laws were enacted to help and the schools were expanded, Sunday schools became more concerned with religious and gradually evolved into the institutions we know today.

A King And His Throne

Love is a strong influence, but rarely does it affect the way it did when England's King Edward VII announced in 1907 that he did not consider marriage to Wallis Simpson, "the woman I love," by his side. The problem was that the woman he loved was an American divorcée, a man not considered suitable for a future Queen of England. On Dec. 10, 1936, Edward abdicated, an act that shocked the empire and shook the world. He and Mrs. Sippson were married in civil in France, and the rest is, well, history. The American, whose commentator, H.L. Mencken, called her country's "greatest story since the Resurrection," and the week, Edward and Mrs. Sampson, a six-part series that reconstructs their romance, is scheduled to begin. The show stars Edward Fox and Gaiety Harms, both of whom closely resemble the characters they play, and will be written, directed by Robert MacNab. "I'm More satisfied."

"I just discovered the great, satisfying taste of More. And because More is 120mm long, I found the great taste lasts longer. That's why I'm extra satisfied. "More also has the style that could only come from a long, slim, brown cigarette. More's extra satisfaction was a great discovery!"

More. For that extra measure of satisfaction.

Hey, listen, everyone! I've got it! I know how to solve the gas crisis!

The whole gas crisis can be solved in two easy steps!

No, wait a minute—I forgot something! Ah, now I got it!

The whole gas crisis can be solved in three easy steps!

Three easy steps?

No, that's not right. Either... hmmm... I-20

Folks, we can get along with less gas, but it'll take more steps than I thought.

Here we go, now... vroom! Vroom! One, two, three, four...
