Test Tube Baby Guides Needed

It was agreed that test tube baby guides should be made available to those who want to have children. By Marsha Davis The Idaho Statesman

Despite the recent advances in reproductive technology, many people are still unsure about the process of having a child through test tube babies. The availability of guides could help to provide more information and support to those who are considering this option.

Embargo, Federal Help Necessary

It was suggested that an embargo on certain goods could help to support the embargoing country. By Bob Greene The Idaho Statesman

An embargo is a restriction on trade or other international relations imposed by one international actor against another, typically for political or economic reasons. In this case, it was proposed that an embargo could be used to support a country that is facing economic challenges.

Windfall Tax's Big Winner

Thoughts

The windfall tax was introduced to help finance the state's budget. By Robert J. Wagner The Idaho Statesman

The windfall tax is a form of taxation that applies to certain types of income, such as profits from natural resources or lottery winnings. The tax is designed to ensure that the benefits of these types of income are shared with the wider community.

Study Criticizes Saccharin Ban

According to GUINNESS

The most important project in the world is... to get the U.S. Congress to make the UN the world's government. In 1951, President Harry S. Truman made the same point: "The most important project in the world is to get the United Nations to work as it should and to get the United States to work with it." - Harry S. Truman

Military Pay Hike Proposed In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate voted today to increase military pay by $100 for every rank. The move was opposed by the Department of Defense, which said the pay raise would cost $5 billion in the current fiscal year. The War and Navy Department, however, supported the bill, saying the pay raise was necessary to keep morale high. The bill was passed by a vote of 75 to 25.

Religious Broadcast Ban Denied By FCC

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate Finance Committee today voted to continue the ban on religious broadcasts on the commercial airwaves. The committee had voted last year to end the ban, but the bill was blocked by the Senate. Today's vote was 54 to 46 in favor of the ban.

New Conduction For Boston Pops

United Press International reports that David Geffen, entertainment mogul, will be the new conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra. Geffen, who has long been a supporter of the arts, was chosen over several other candidates.

The people behind our progress

We've grown substantially in 1976, but if you recall our original concept that growth, philosophy that takes shape. Growth that's had a direct impact on properties. Depreciation and taxes generated by only 10% of the community. We're the company that fully supports and prides itself on the values you can count on. That's the philosophy behind our growth. It's reflected in our officers, people who exemplify our approach to real estate banking. We've helped it grow by encouraging community growth...the only true measure of good banking.

Lobby Says Road Funds Inadequate

First Oklahoma Director Named

Standing in front of a partially constructed building, a group of people - including First Oklahoma employees - are seen discussing the project. The building appears to be under construction with materials and equipment scattered around. A sign reading "New Store In Town" is visible in the background. The scene suggests a new development or expansion is taking place, potentially related to the company's operations.

Silwoods Seek Libel Suit Move

A group is seen outside, discussing their legal strategies to confront a recent libel suit. The setting appears to be a public space, possibly a park or a community center, with people engaged in conversation. The presence of a sign or banner is not visible, but the discussion indicates a focus on legal action.

Central National Bank

A scene from the Central National Bank's office, with employees working at various stations. The environment appears to be a professional setting, with individuals focused on their tasks. The bank's branding is visible, indicating a formal business environment.

Security Bank

A scene from Security Bank, with employees or customers navigating the bank's interior. The setting is modern, with elements of technology and design visible, suggesting a contemporary banking environment.

Statement of Condition

A financial statement titled "Statement of Financial Condition" is displayed, indicating a focus on financial data and analysis. The text is structured in a table format, providing detailed information on assets, liabilities, and capital.

Firm Prints Draft Cards

A scene involving the printing of draft cards, possibly for a regulatory or legal process. The setting appears to be a printing or administrative facility, with equipment and materials suggesting the production of official documents.
Boren To Ask For Resurrection Of B-1 Bomber

WASHINGTON — John David Boren, in an interview with the Associated Press, said he will introduce a bill in Congress to resurrect the B-1 bomber, which was canceled by the previous administration.

Boren, a former Oklahoma senator and now a University of Oklahoma professor, said he will introduce the bill on Tuesday, March 2, 2022, in an attempt to keep the aircraft in production.

The U.S. should build supply bases in Europe to serve as "cues for the future," Boren said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Boren also said he will introduce a bill in Congress to establish a national championship for the B-1 bomber, which was canceled by the previous administration.

"We've got to get back on track," Boren said, in an interview with the Associated Press.

Boren said he will introduce the bill on Tuesday, March 2, 2022, in an attempt to keep the aircraft in production.

Court Upholds Fish Kill Pay

OKLAHOMA CITY — The state Supreme Court has upheld a $1.5 billion settlement in the 2018 Red River fish kill case.

The settlement was reached after a years-long legal battle over the impact of the 2018 Red River fish kill on the ecosystem of the river.

The court ruled that the settlement is fair and reasonable and that it adequately compensates the affected parties.
