Down But Not Out

It is not enough to quarrel for a few years, if you still have nothing. If you are going to quarrel, you might as well have something to quarrel about. If you have nothing to quarrel about, you should not quarrel.

Your quarrel should be with something that is wrong,
not with something that is right.

Soviets Feel Sting Of Moslem Anger, U.S. Gains

By William J. Holahan

Washington: The U.S. has been relatively successful in winning friends and influence among Moslem countries in recent years, but some observers see a growing Moslem anger that could pose a threat to American interests.

The United States has made great efforts to build relations with Moslem countries, particularly in the Middle East, where American military bases are located. The U.S. has also been promoting economic development in these countries, in part to win their support.

However, some observers believe that Moslem anger is growing, fueled by a sense that the United States is taking advantage of Moslem countries for its own interests. This has led to a growing sentiment among Moslem countries to seek ways to counter American influence.

Recently, there have been tensions between the United States and some Moslem countries, particularly over the issue of American military bases in the region. These tensions could cause problems for American interests in the future.

Black Population Gains On Whites

Washington: The U.S. has made significant progress in increasing the number of black people in the country, according to recent data. The black population of the U.S. has grown steadily over the past few decades, and it is now the largest minority group in the country.

The growth in the black population is due in part to the migration of people from the South to the North and West, where they find better opportunities. The increase in the black population has been particularly noticeable in large cities, where the proportion of black residents has risen significantly.

The growth in the black population has been accompanied by an increase in the number of black-owned businesses, which has helped to create jobs and economic opportunities for black people. However, the black community still faces many challenges, including poverty, unemployment, and discrimination.

ICC Chief Holds Little Hope For Saving Rock Island Line

Washington: The ICC (Interstate Commerce Commission) chief has little hope for saving the Rock Island Line, a major freight and passenger rail line that runs through the Midwest.

The Rock Island Line has been struggling for years, and the ICC has been working to find a solution to its problems. However, the ICC chief says that a solution is unlikely to be found, and that the line may have to be closed.

The Rock Island Line is a crucial part of the nation's transportation network, and its closure would have significant economic and social effects. The ICC is working to find alternative solutions, but the future of the line remains uncertain.

Radio, TV Tax Exemption Passed

Washington: The Senate has passed a bill that would exempt radio and television stations from paying taxes on airtime. The bill, sponsored by Senator John Smith, is expected to be signed into law by the president.

The exemption is designed to help radio and television stations that are not able to pay taxes due to financial difficulties. The bill was supported by a majority of senators, and it is expected to have a positive impact on the industry.

Mental Patient Jail Measure Held Back

Washington: The Senate has held up a bill that would allow mental patients to be held in jail. The bill was sponsored by Senator Jane Doe, but it was blocked by a group of senators who opposed it.

The bill was designed to address the problem of mentally ill people who are a danger to themselves or others. The opponents of the bill argued that it would lead to the overuse of jail as a mental health treatment option.

State Senate Backs Olympic Boycott

Washington: The state Senate has voted to support a boycott of the Olympic Games. The Senate was responding to a resolution passed by the House of Representatives earlier this week.

The resolution called for a boycott of the Olympic Games, which are scheduled to take place in Moscow next year. The Senate resolution was supported by a majority of senators.

Vital Statistics

Washington: The latest vital statistics from the Department of Health show a significant increase in the United States' life expectancy over the past decade.

The life expectancy in the U.S. has risen from 78.2 years in 2000 to 80.8 years in 2010. This increase is due in part to improvements in healthcare and a decline in the number of deaths from certain diseases, such as heart disease and cancer.

Other key statistics from the Department of Health include:

- Weight: The average weight of Americans has increased from 170 pounds in 2000 to 175 pounds in 2010.
- Smoking: The percentage of adults who smoke has declined from 20.6% in 2000 to 17.8% in 2010.
- Exercise: The percentage of adults who engage in regular physical activity has increased from 53.3% in 2000 to 59.4% in 2010.

These statistics highlight the progress that has been made in public health, but there is still work to be done to improve the health of Americans.
Helen Help Us: Post-Holiday Bills Plague Homemaker

By Helen Bottles

Most of us have a little extra money in our pockets already; but what do we do with it? What do we think about it? Those who make a plan to save some of it might want to take a long look at what they are saving for. Whatever it is, it could be a bad idea to save for something that doesn't make sense. For example, if you are saving for something that is going to cost you a lot of money, you should think about saving for something that is going to cost you a lot less money. If you are saving for something that is going to cost you a lot of money, you should think about saving for something that is going to cost you a lot less money. It's important to remember that you should always save for something that is going to benefit you. If you are saving for something that is going to cost you a lot of money, you should think about saving for something that is going to benefit you. It's important to remember that you should always save for something that is going to benefit you.
