Santa Fe Prison Uprising Kills 15

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — A New Mexico judge has set bail at $10,000 for 15 men accused of initiating a prison riot here Saturday night that left 13 inmates dead, many of them in agony, on a bed of their own blood.

Corrected instructions followed through the night, hoping to put an end to the violence before it mushroomed into even more serious proportions.

A television reporter who observed the melee outside the prison said officials told him there could be as many as 30 innocent dead.

Overall, it was the most serious U.S. prison uprising since theutton riot in Jackson, Miss., where 21 employees were killed from Sept. 9, 1971.

Inmates, armed with meat cleavers, hammers, knives, hammers and shovels, warned that their hostages would be killed.

Inmates' rights were made "one fancy escape," a message read out by a prisoner and others and authorized by the state's Bureau of Prisons.

The killing report continued: "If the hostages are killed, they'll be message official.

Big Eight Grid Recruiting Remains Mystery

It's beginning to look like the Big Eight is going to have a lot of questions mark than answers when it comes to recruiting the football class of 1983. But there's a good chance that the grid will not have to look far for its best athletes.

"The one thing that's clear is that the Big Eight is going to have a strong class," said one of the top recruiting experts in the country. "We've seen some really good athletes coming out of the Big Eight in recent years, and I don't think that's going to change this year."

U.S. On Verge Of Atomic War

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - The skies are clear, the wind is quiet, but the atmosphere is charged with tension. The United States is on the brink of an atomic war.

The tension was felt in the halls of the White House, where President John Doe sat at his desk, staring at the clock. The hour of 3 A.M. was approaching, and it was clear that a decision had to be made.

The Soviet Union had just launched a massive missile attack, and the United States was forced to retaliate. The decision was made, and the president signed the order.

The world held its breath as the missiles took off, racing towards their targets. The scientist's words echoed in everyone's mind: "The impact will be catastrophic."

But the United States had planned for this moment. The military had been preparing for years, and they were ready.

As the missiles struck their targets, a wave of destruction swept across the globe. The cities were leveled, the population in ruins.

The world was left to pick up the pieces, and the Atomic War had begun.

"Scared Straight-Another Story"

Filing of "Scared Straight—Another Story," a new motion picture-for-television being produced for CBS Entertainment by Golden West Television for broadcast on the CBS television network, has been at the Arizona State Prison. Florence, Ariz. Later filming will be done in Los Angeles locations.

Cliff De Young has been cast in the top role in the drama. Richard Michaels will direct for producer Arnold Shaimin. T.S. Cook wrote the teleplay. John T. Reynolds is the executive producer.

The fictional story is based on "Scared Straight!" the much-acclaimed, multi-Emmy Award-winning documentary that was broadcast widely in this country and abroad in 1978 and 1979 and was also a product of Shaprio and Golden West Television.

"Scared Straight!" was a raw, powerful study of a program being operated by a group of convicts at New Jersey's Rahway State Prison with the purpose of dissuading juvenile criminal offenders from continuing with activities that could result in the sentencing of them to Rahway or similar institutions.

The Rahway program gave the youths a shocking, first-hand look at the brutal realities of a prison existence during their confrontation with the group of hardened inmates.

AGELESS TROOPER

The legendary Bob Hope, today still going strong at 76, will look back on three decades of entertaining American service personnel in "Bob Hope Overseas Christmas Tours: Around the World with the Troops; 1941-1972," a two-part retrospective of his famed yuletide trips to points around the globe Sundays, Feb. 3 and Feb. 10 (7:00-10:00 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

"Angel on my Shoulder"

Peter Strauss will star in a contemporary motion picture adaptation of the 1946 classic, "Angel On My Shoulder," for airing on the ABC Television Network during the current season. It was announced by Leonard Hill, Vice President, Motion Pictures for Television, ABC Entertainment.

The fantasy and comedy elements of this unique project should spotlight an entirely new facet of Peter Strauss' remarkable talents." Mrs. Hill said in making the announcement. "This continues a pattern he has already established in five consecutive starring vehicles for ABC, each a departure in content and style from his previous work."

"Angel On my Shoulder" offers some election-year levity in the tale of a small-time Chicago hoodlum, now declassed, who strikes a bargain with the Devil to escape the eternal discomforts of Hell-by inhabiting, and attempting to corrupt—a totally honest district attorney who is running for Governor.

The 1946 film starred Paul Muni in the role Peter Strauss will reinterpret for television.

Strauss previously starred in five ABC Projects: "Rich Man, Poor Man" (Books I and II); "Young Joe, the Forgotten Kennedy"; last season's "Jericho Mile," for which he won the Emmy; and "Masada," the "ABC Novel for Television" now completing principal photography for next season.

Sports Calendar

BOWLING

ABC's Pro Bowlers Tour has an exciting match lined up for this Saturday afternoon (Feb. 9). It's the $135,000 Final Open in Palatine, Illinois. And you think there is no point in tuning in—that you have seen all there is to see in bowling—then you must have missed this season's first match. The roll of just one ball there was alone exciting enough to make the entire match worthwhile.

Mark Roth, the game's top money winner for three straight seasons, was doing the bowling. The place was Rosemont, Illinois. And Roth was almost to make a seven-million-to-one shot, a shot never before seen on television.

It was a 7-10 split, and later Roth would say that he was not really trying to make the shot. He was just good at it, and that his previous ball, a good one, had left him with the split. So because of that, he got a little harder than normal. And a "little harder" for Mark Roth, a power bowler, is a lot harder for most people.

Both pins went down, and expert commentator Nelson Burton, Jr., was shouting: "The first time? A 7-10 split! After 19 years on television, we have here something never before accomplished."

PRIMETIME

NBC's Sports Department seems to have their eye on more and more primetime opportunities. For one thing, Don Ohlmeyer is producing a 4-hour movie "The Golden Moment," about a Russian gymnast and an American decathlon champion who fall in love during the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

For another, Art Watson (President of NBC Sports), is producing a 4-hour primetime pilot-special called "The Sunday Games" which will cover American successes around the country (not well-known professional athletes) enjoying the joy of athletic competition.

Speaking Up

DUSTIN HOFFMAN: "People call me difficult because I've spoken up ever since I started acting. I got kicked out of acting class when I was 20 because I yelled at the teacher for not letting me in the middle of a scene. So I tried Off Broadway and I quit shows.

Even so, I have always felt that I knew what I was doing. Often, if I was sitting in a hotel room, I'd think: 'I should be doing this thing.'"

LINDA CARTER: "I had no choice but to yell each week on the set of 'Wonder Woman.' Nothing in the script would ever change except the names of the villains. So I made noise. Men don't like dealing with women who make demands, though. That's why I was given such a bad reputation."

Parents

JOYCE DELLIT: "My father was against show business because it controls only the best for me. He thought acting was such a lowly existence. He told me I'd wind up having forty husbands, forty abandoned children, and in the end turn out to be an alcoholic. Talk about cliches!"

DAVID JANSSEN: "Mother was of the old school. She believed stardom had nothing to do with talent and hated the profession. But she wanted him to be an actor because it was the most glamorous, sought after thing in town."

MARCO THOMAS: "My father wanted me to stop acting, but only because he didn't want me to spend the rest of my life depressed. At that time I had been bouncing the pavement in L.A. and New York with no one noticing. The minute I got my first smash review in a play, his opinion changed. He came backstage crying and his face was filled with pride."

Dancing

PENNY MARSHALL: "My mother had me tapdancing since I was three. I hated it, but she used to threaten me. If I didn't want to dance, she said, I'd have to spend all day Saturday cleaning the house."

BERNADETTE PETERS: "It made my debut dancing on 'The Horn and Hardart Children's Hour.' Mother had me in radio at all the time to catch me, but Dad had to get up at 2 a.m. for work, and he'd always try to pull the plug out of the wall."

BARBRA STREISAND: "Not many people know I studied ballet. I took it as a kid for some years but, unfortunately, my mother made me give it up. My legs were so skinny she thought they'd break!"

COLD WEATHER JACKETS

One of the major concerns for ABC Sports during the XII Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid, N.Y., is protecting its cameras from freezing. It is not highly unusual for the temperature to plummet to 40 degrees below zero for four hours without the built-in heating units.

A look at two new series

By Grace C. Biggers

Then there is "One in A Million" on ABC. This is the story of Gayly Simpkins, a female taxi driver who suddenly comes into control of Grayson Enterprises, a huge business conglomerate, when a former client (a regular passenger) dies and leaves her $20 million. Now

Shirley regularly dumps bums with it fine without Grayson

(played by Keene Curtis) and has trouble satisfying the identity of a stubborn father (Mel Stewart) and devoted mother (Ann Wedman). Bernard Fox supports her with a spelunk Ballantine who has not clicked in a series since

"McHale's Navy."

An endless series of plots can be drawn from this kind of story. It should be good for some excellent, insightful comedy. But, sad to say, that is not the case. "One In A Million" appears to be a long line of series which were rushed onto the assembly line without proper preparation. The actors do not appear to have the vaguest knowledge of who they are supposed to be. Their characters lack even the most primitive signs of motivation. The plots selected thus far are the thickest, emptiest imaginable.

And the star Shirley Hemphill portrays the title role. You may remember her as the waitress in "What's Happening?"

She is a funny lady, but she is not ready for this sort of starring role. The natural talent is there, but no one has taken the time to know her or make her properly train.

Her movements, expressions, even her dialogue is in an awkward, amateurish manner. There is no real excuse for this. None except "greed" on the part of the networks.

They are so anxious to do "One in A Million" because they think nothing of gambling with plots or performers, tossing series and people into the oven before they are ready.

What a waste.

AT IT AGAIN: Here comes Lucy again, and what do you know—she's not on CBS. The redhead has moved her commitment to NBC, and this Friday night (Feb. 8), you can see her in something of a new kind of special titled "Lucy Movies to the Rescue." What's so new about it? A new 90-minute NBC program opens with Lucy being welcomed to NBC by a ton of stars like Bob Hope, Jack Klugman, Gary Coleman and some other unknowns. Then comes the "Lucy Night" of comeedy shows for the network. Well, the fact of the matter, is really that Lucy's job for NBC, and before this 90-minute special is over, she has watched a full 30-minute clip for Lucy's first NBC production—a comedy series starring Donald O'Connor and Gloria DeHaven. Is that trick or is that new about it that you're watching her special and she actually tricks you into watching her new first NBC production. Oh well, you know Lucy.

MODESTY: Meadowlark Lemon, asked the difference between the Harlem Globally all 16 episodes Burnetette, answered: "The big difference is the Bucketeers have Meadowlark Loment..."George Burns, asked how he described the uncles of this, I cannot say, but, "You know in Vaudever, answered: "All my songs are very fast. That way by the time the audience found they despised my singing, I was out of the way.

CRAZY COUPLE: If you see "Hardhat and Legs" (and I hope you do), you are almost certain to ask who in the world dreamed up a story like that? You see, it's all about this construction worker who loves to look at beautiful legs—so much so that he falls for a pair owned by a lovely young divorcee (with two kids). Who happens to teach a course in sex education. So naturally, the construction worker enrolls in the sex education course to win the heart of the teacher. And that's only the beginning. There are problems with compulsive gambling and falling debris and chaos in the house. It's a crazy movie, but it's fun, and the reason it's fun is because it is a story of a very young couple Ruth Godon and Garson Kanin in their first collaborative effort in 28 years! Kevin Dobson stars as the handicapped, Sharon Gless has a role and aprons this Saturday night (Feb. 9) on CBS. I think you will enjoy it.

QUICK CHANGE: From dazed to wed—Linda Lurl, recently has been added to the cast of the dramedy movies ever made, turning to happier moments as the new bride of the once very eligible and much sought after Desi

Kellerman. ...And they have two shots—Don Murray, one of the stars of CBS's newest nighttime series "Knots Landing," appearing in a very demanding role of a very important movie, "The Boy Who Drank Too Much," on

CBS Wednesday night (Feb. 6). From vogue shows that Robert

Blake, who spent several seasons on the trail of vice as

"Baretta," set to make several TV movies with NBC, one of which will be a new version of John Steinbeck's classic "Of Mice and Men." From age to stage—Jan Miner, the TV manicurist who is forever saving women from their aging hands by soaking them in certain dishwashing liquid, treating Broadway audiences to a remarkable performance as she portrays Fanny Farelly in an excellent revel of "Watch On The Rhine."

ROWAN ROW
Q: Where was Dan Rowan born? My brother and I are having a terrible fight over it. S.L., Dallas, Texas.
A: Believe it or not, Dan Rowan was born on a train en route to Los Angeles, California. In fact, since these circumstances at the time made it impossible for the comedian's mother to register his birth in a city, Dan Rowan does not even have a birth certificate.

MR. ROBERTS
Q: Could you give me some background on Pernell Roberts of the new T.V. show, "Trapper John, M.D.?" Is he married, any children, and what has he been doing since he was on "Bonanza" days? And what did he do before he was an actor? R.H. Sterling, Ill.
A: Pernell Roberts married and has one son, now fully grown. In the intervening years between "Bonanza" and his new series, Roberts divided his time between touring the country in musical productions such as, "Cameleon" and "The King and I," and traveling overseas with his wife. Before he decided to pursue an acting career, Pernell worked as a butcher, a forest ranger and—the job he considers his most unusual—a tombstone maker.

Teen-age alcohol abuse dramatized

Like father, like son. That might seem to be the problem of "The Boy Who Drank Too Much," two-hour dramatic special which airs Feb. 6 on CBS-TV at 8:00 p.m.

But there's more than just genetics involved in this dramatization of Shemp Greene's novel which stars Scott (Chachi in "Happy Days") Baio and Lance ("James at 15") Kerwin. "The Boy Who Drank Too Much" dramatically reflects some very sobering statistics—alcoholism among teenagers is reaching epidemic proportions, with an estimated 3.3 million problem drinkers between the ages of 14 and 17.

Scott plays the title role; Lance co-stars as the friend who's determined to keep Scott from becoming the mirror image of his father—an ex-hockey standout (played by Don Murray) with a tragic past and an alcohol-ridden present.

While "The Boy Who Drank Too Much" dramatizes the traumas of teenage alcoholism, executive producer Jerry McNeeley emphasizes "This is not a docudrama on alcoholism. Rather, it's the story of friendship. If one of my children got into trouble and somehow I failed them, what a moving concept to think that one of their peers would come to their aid."

The Xerox special was filmed entirely on location in Madison, Wis., where the state's 1979 high school championship team, the Madison Spartans, was recruited to create the fast-paced hockey action. Both Lance and Scott endured a rigorous three-week training program in Los Angeles with former ice hockey star Bill Simpson to prepare them for their workout in front of the camera for the MTM production, which was dramatized by Edward DeBlasio and directed by Jerrold Freedman.

To heighten the visual excitement and movement on the ice, director Friedman placed cameraman John Toll in a wheelchair and had technical advisor Ned Dowd (a professional hockey player) skate him around the arena.

"We want viewers to feel they're part of the action—not just kibitzers," explains Friedman, whose sports-related credits include directing the highly rated television movie "Blood Sport" and the action-packed feature film "Kansas City Bomber."

"Besides being entertaining and, I hope, involving on an emotional level, I'm certain 'The Boy Who Drank Too Much' will get kids thinking about the negative aspects of excessive drinking."
Announcing:
The National Home Health Plan Benefits Book

Presented By:
National Home Life Assurance Company. Serving the insurance needs of America since 1920.

Dedicated to:
Providing Better Health Care Protection for Residents of Oklahoma

J. Dewey Gregg
President National Home Life Assurance Company

Dear Friend,

Your decision to purchase the additional cash protection of the National Home Health Plan could be the most important one you make today.

Your basic hospital insurance is essential. Keep it! But these days, you need more. Since 1970, hospital care costs have nearly tripled! In fact, the American Hospital Association reports that an average patient stay today will cost the hospital nearly $1,500.00!

Incredible? Yes. Like most Americans, you must be deeply concerned about how these runaway costs will affect you...especially since no one basic insurance plan pays it all.

That's where the National Home Health Plan comes in. It pays cash directly to you, up to $50.00 a day; $1,500.00 every 30 days...and that's in addition to benefits you get from any other health plan.

And now you can enjoy the added convenience of charging your premiums on your Visa or Master Charge credit card. It's the easy way to keep your cash protection current while having an automatic record of your payment.

I urge you to read this booklet and join over 2,000,000 Americans who have the added security of National Home's Cash Protection. It's a nice feeling.

Sincerely,

Art Linkletter
Member, Board of Directors with a financial interest in the company

P.S. Everyone is immediately guaranteed acceptance into the National Home Health Plan. Simply mail the brief application form and the postage-free envelope provided. And be sure to keep this booklet as an easy-to-read summary of your added cash protection.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

What should Jackie O do with her old or unwanted furniture? — M.G., Brand, Texas

We do know that she sells some of it. Five years ago, when she closed up one of her homes in New Jersey, she sold the clothes she wore in "Bosom Friends," and the antiques in her New York apartment, and asked him to outdo her. According to Doyle, "the public is hungry for Jackie O's. She has a tray of table and chair sets with a sign: 'This is what Jackie O used to sit at.'" For the next time, Jack O. will ask her to do it again.

FOR HUGH DOWNS, host of PBS-TV's "Omnibus"

Is it true that although you've been around as a broadcaster, what you enjoy most is writing? Here do you find time for everything? A woman who had 11 children was once asked how she had time to take care of all of them, and she answered that when she had one child, it took 100 percent of her time, and 11 could not take more. I think that's the answer.

FOR MARCO TRUNTA, spokesman for Toy Manufacturers of America

Do you think that the toys children play with frame their future? — S.A., Abbeville, N.Y.

As the mother of four sons, I feel that I have been doing a pretty good job so far. I have been a part of their growth and development, and I believe that toys are an important part of that process. Toys help children to learn about the world around them and to develop their imaginations.

FOR GILL GERARD, star of NBC-TV's "Blackie and the Angels"

Did you really want to be an astronaut but were turned down? — W.P., Tyler, Texas

As a child, I did want to be an astronaut. I was fascinated by space and the idea of exploring new worlds. I was also inspired by the early astronauts who were pioneers in the field. However, I was turned down for the position, and I am grateful for that decision. I believe that I have been able to make a greater impact through my work in television and film.

FOR JOYCE CURTIS, actress

How do you maintain your skin? — M.J., Orlando, Fla.

I believe in taking care of my skin from the inside out. I eat a healthy diet, stay hydrated, and try to get enough sleep. I also use a good moisturizer and sunscreen to protect my skin from the sun. I find that the key to healthy skin is to keep it balanced and hydrated.
America’s Olympic Hopefuls

In the 1976 Olympics, pair skaters Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner finished an encouraging fifth. Since then, they’ve won nearly everything in sight, and many experts believe they’re now good enough to beat even the Soviets.

By Karen Jackovich

Gardner’s main competition is the Soviet husband/wife team, Irina Rodionova and Aleksandr Zaitsev, who are returning to competition after a year off to do a son.

And Nichols admits the pressure will be on: “I feel the attention is greater on this event because it’s our chance for an American pair to win a gold medal for the first time ever. It’s never been done before. I tell them that they will not be remembered for how they placed in the Olympics, but whether they won or lost a gold medal.”

The pressure is a “benefit,” Nichols maintains. “It’s an opportunity to perform spectacularly. It’s a form of love that a pair skater, a pair skater at a recent practice session. The pair skaters, by their skating and their skating and their skating, can become an American pair to win a gold medal.”

Tai and Randy have been a team for a year and a half in practice, and for a little over a year. They have been a team since 1975.

Olympic Hopefuls

and Ken Shelly. (Our idol," says Baldonita and Gardner in unison.)

Though success has come quickly for:

and Randy, the work hasn't been easy. Their grueling schedule includes: skating every day, with only Sunday off the ice. From 7:30 to 9:30 A.M. at the

Calif., they practice triple throw saults, inside death spins, too, much as you would with Baltidon's head turning slowly through the ground, split double steps and throw side croppers. At 9:30, they box for 15 minutes and are back on the ice until 11:30 A.M.

Oblivious to the grumble of onlookers, which includes both Baldonita's and Gardner's mothers, an agent, professional sports personality agent and future

Olympic hopefuls, the duo then meeting with Niles for individual coaching. From 12:30 to 2:00 P.M., Baldonita and Garner take breaks from Threne Rudolph (a specially built practice room adjacent to the rink) or gymnastic training from Bob

Anderson.

Gardner and Baldonita acknowledge the crowd after winning the World Pair Skating Championships last year in Vienna.

Office training continues when both go on separate ways from the rink.

Over to the side of the week or around a neighborhood store in San Francisco Valley home. Gardner trains until meeting, when he works out at the Los Angeles Athletic Club with older brother Gordon, a local dancer — and noted for his ability to dance.

Although both have committed to staying together through the Olympics, neither has made plans after that. There has been some desire from all in the class to compete in the future. "We can't win tonight," admits Niles, who, despite his job as National Skating Association for the Ice Capades and Ice Show, wanted them to continue skating competitively, rather than turning professionals and getting back to school, as Baldonita and Gardner say they wish.

But both want an education," explains

Gardner, who is a part-time drama and speech major at U.C. and eventually wants to become a director of live shows or legitimate theatrical productions.

Baldonita looks for a future as a model, sports executive or skating teacher. "I'd like to quit college," she says wistfully, "it was too hard with Niles. But I sent exhibitions. We regret things like giving up our social life, school, etc. But is it

... she explains. Both have to get in by 9:30 every night but Friday, when training is 11:30, which doesn't leave much time for dating. (Both date other people)

Gardner and Baldonita have been asked to some events. There have been a lot of terrific opportunities. "We love traveling and meeting new people," says Gardner. "We don't lead a sheltered life." They have been to the Queen of England, died at the Imperial Palace in Tokyo and were the first American skaters to compete in the U.S.S.R.

What do they consider their chances to be this month? "We had our best chance yet," says Baldonita, and that may be the perfect combination. Gardner says, "This's a Vega and I'm a Taurus. She is supposed to supply the lack of the other. and I supply the energy. We both ."

"I'm More satisfied."

"I get great, satisfying taste with More. And More is 120mm long, so the taste lasts longer. That's why I get an extra measure of satisfaction.

"More also has the style that could only come from a long, slim, brown cigarette. I'm much more satisfied with More."

More. For that extra measure of satisfaction.

An Important Opportunity for Every Older Person

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a remarkable concept of the insurance, achieved as a result of the years of effort Colonel Pennington has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

Our goal has been to save the life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—no policy whose cost is based on health examination. Costs are based on age, not health.

Here’s How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This: There is a two-year guaranteed benefit period. During the first two years that your policy is effective, your coverage is reduced to 100% of the amount you pay for your policy each year. If you die within two years, policy benefits are payable to your beneficiary and are limited to $250 per year instead of the full amount of the policy. If death occurs during the second year, your beneficiary receives $50 per year instead of the full amount of the policy.

Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for her or his insurance needs—now, at a time when insurance is of prime importance.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS also provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year, depending on your age.

The cost: $1.85 MONTHLY

No matter what your age, sex, or the condition of your health, you pay $1.85 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your age and sex. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up.

Differences in family backgrounds: "I'm a from-good-cook, but my husband's mother was the best," one woman says. "I enjoy making special meals and unusual dishes, but he says 'Why doesn't she try anything new?' The same thing with my parents. They want me to make muffins and potato soup - and I'm just not interested in hearing about his mother's potato soup!"

In this instance, the husband grew up in a family where simple, hearty food was a symbol of loving warmth, and "curing"

Today, as more and more men and women marry across the social, cultural, and religious barriers within which they grew up, conflicts over different attitudes are bound to occur.

Concentrating on the negative in marriage: A good deal of marital friction stems from the fact that many people focus attention on the problems in their relationship and neglect the positive factors that brought them together in the first place. Once their therapist helps couples with this kind of problem by having them talk about the qualities they admire in each other, the gloriettes they share, the goals they mutually set out to reach. "You can almost see the antagonism dissolving away," for these past few years has led to expectations of constant change in the marital "life cycle." A marriage in its early years experience certain normal stresses as the young couple learns to adjust to each other's habits, temperaments, etc. So says Ewing. "Other stances arise when a first child is born. An old couple may find themselves arguing more frequently after the husband's retirement."

The marital life cycle is basically concerned with a group of events: a promotion to a demanding job, a serious illness, unemployment, a move to a new community. One couple, for example, each of their events is shared with the other. They can and do trigger clashes, but a couple may not tolerate it for long.

The inability to accept today's changing roles for husband and wife: "Take, for instance, the middle-aged man who constantly autos his wife's life - who tends to return to work as a nurse, neglecting their chil-

ren. "I'm proud of him," he says. "It's fine that she's working. But she ought to be home when the kids need her."

Another couple encouraged their wife to take a job that troubled a great deal of work. But when I'm out of town for even one night, he has it - it - for the woman says. "Every time I have to go away he accuses me of not caring about him. And I really get angry when he calls my hotel several times a night to make sure I'm in my room."

The fact that men may have ambivalent feelings about being a father, a culture where men are expected to be proud of their wife, but he may also feel resentment, neglect, or threatened. Because he can't admit those feelings, he may then be subtly by picking things to fight about.

How can couples cope with these hidden causes of marital friction? Here are some suggestions:

- Don't fall into the trap of trying to "win" an argument. In virtually every instance, one person's point of view eventually turns into a sales for both partners because it removes a marriage to a stalemate and endures struggle for power.
- Learn to communicate ideas and feelings more clearly. One is personally aware of the act of "dialoging." A husband-wife conversation is an act of collating facts and emotions involved in a troubling argument. The purpose of dialoguing is to help a couple share and accept each other's attitudes.
- Realize the popular notion that it is always healthy to vent your hostile feelings in order to "clear the air." According to family therapist Dr. Murphy: "The man who helps his people make a decision, it makes of a decision, it makes the difference between a man and a woman."
- Instead of trying to change what's different about your relationship, try to accept and learn from those differences.
- Be patient in the understanding of arguments. Seek to learn the hidden meaning behind the facts, the anger, the frustration. One counselor suggests using the image of a "mental sale task" as an emotional trigger: "When a test is a test to you, and you are yourself, why am I testing?" What is really at issue here? You have a right to feel and express anger, of course. But unless you try to feel out the why of it, the arguments will probably remain unresolved unless some process is used to solving the problem.

The Man Who Talks to Dolphins

Scientist John Lilly believes dolphins may well be smarter than people. For years he’s been coaxing them to tell us what they know.

The date is July 9, 1966. The place: John Lilly’s Communication Research Institute in St. Thomas, the Caribbean. Researcher Michael Urban is talking to a dolphin named Peter, and Peter is making sounds back at Michael. At least that’s what Michael believes. Because dolphins don’t normally do this.

"They open their mouths," Urban remarks, "and they start making these strange noises." But the sound he makes resembles the cry of a young child trying to make words.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven," the dolphin seems to be saying.

Peter repeats with seven outbursts, a perfect master. "You’re all first class," Michael tells him. "That’s only one problem—Peter has no idea what he’s saying." Today, high in the hills above Wellesley, Mass., overlooking the Pacific Ocean, John Lilly continues his quest to establish true communication between man and dolphins at the Humane-Dolphins Foundation, which he founded with his wife, Mary Lou, in 1969.

"I’ve always been interested in dolphins—" he says some of the newest and most startling computer equipment available in order to convert human speech into appropriate dolphin sounds and to translate the dolphin’s high-frequency noises into human sensory spectrum.

Lilly’s experiment is called Project Canon (Communication Research Underwater System) and is named for the computer system housed on a state-of-the-art sonar support boat. The human side is for communication, the dolphin side for communication in the water. Operating under the direction of the center’s world-renowned dolphins, Urban and other members of the Center’s research team work with the dolphins, who are taught to use different sounds to express emotions.

Now that the programming is complete, Urban and John Lilly hope to take the computer into a mobile lab to research the dolphins’ communication abilities. They hope that this will prove the dolphins can communicate with humans.

The dolphins are taught to use different sounds to express emotions. Urban says, "We’re trying to teach them to say, ‘I’m happy,’ ‘I’m sad,’ ‘I’m angry.’"

Among the dolphins that have learned to communicate with humans are "Beauty," "Roxy," and "Tinkerbell." Each has its own vocabulary, and each uses it to communicate with humans.

"Beauty," named after an actress, has been taught to say "I love you," "I’m happy," and "I’m sad." "Roxy," named after a movie star, has been taught to say "I’m happy," "I’m sad," and "I’m hungry." "Tinkerbell," named after a fairy, has been taught to say "I’m happy," "I’m sad," and "I’m hungry." Each dolphin has its own individuality.

The dolphins are also taught to use different sounds to express emotions. Urban says, "We’re trying to teach them to say, ‘I’m happy,’ ‘I’m sad,’ ‘I’m angry.’"

For Kathy Quinlan, Everything's Coming Up Roses

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

A Los Angeles swimming pool designer has been discovered by Hollywood and appears to be making a name for herself.

Kathy Quinlan is now a regular on the NBC television series, "Hollywood's Most Wanted," and has been nominated for an Emmy Award for her role as a swimming pool designer.

Kathy's career began in the 1960s when she opened her own pool design firm in Los Angeles. She quickly gained a reputation for creating unique and innovative pool designs.

Her work has been featured in several movies and television shows, including "Desert Sands," "The Beverly Hillbillies," and "The Nanny." Kathy has also been the recipient of several design awards and has been featured in numerous magazines and newspapers.

Kathy's success is not just limited to the entertainment industry. She has also been involved in numerous charitable organizations and has used her platform to raise awareness for various causes.

Kathy says that her success has come as a result of hard work, dedication, and a willingness to take risks. She encourages aspiring designers to follow their dreams and never give up.

"I've always been passionate about pool design," Kathy says. "I believe that a swimming pool should be more than just a place to swim. It should be an extension of the home and a place to relax and unwind."
Is It Really Better to Have Loved and Lost?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you are alone with people, small talk will always get you somewhere.
2. How well you get along with another person, how much you feel in common in attitude and outlook, is affected by his or her physical appearance.
3. One of the biggest problems in life for most people is adjusting to, and getting along with, people they dislike — and this includes co-workers, bosses and other people we have to live with.
4. If you ask a friend for a letter of recommendation, how well you've gotten along with him and how you really think of him as a person, will get revealed in the letter in a way which you may not suspect.
5. When it comes to getting along with your spouse, your family, your friends, your co-workers, and people you have to live with, the emotional feelings which the relationship requires usually need to be increased to bring the situation to the point where you can get along with them.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies at University of Wisconsin on the psychosocialism show that how a person responds to people he has a feeling for, to his own self-esteem, and how he feels about himself as a human being. If he is on good terms with himself, feels capable, confident and "with it," he is more likely to be a successful person and more likely to be a happy person.
2. True. A study of men and women undergraduates at the California School of Professional Psychology, showed the relationship between perception and success. People who were more on good terms with themselves were more likely to be successful than those who were not.
3. True. In a study of men and women undergraduates at the California School of Professional Psychology, showed the relationship between perception and success. People who were more on good terms with themselves were more likely to be successful than those who were not.
4. False. The investigation showed that "sentiment of accommodations" was perceived as being most valuable to task performance and was more likely to be the best performer toward job applicants.
5. True. Other studies find that clear, unambiguous letter of recommendation means a lot in determining who gets the job. When an employer asks for a recommendation, he is often hard put to it, regardless of how much he feels about the employee, but the letter of the former serves as a barometer of the true feelings.

6. True. It's more important to get along with your spouse than any other person, so that personal happiness is concerned. A University of California study showed married couples showed increased emotional stability. In order to allow as opposed to self-strengthening and agreements, an opposition to being unpleasant, obvious and effective to be the most obvious task in the most completely attractive task. However, the level of communication was found to play a major role in the level of satisfaction of the relationship.

7. True. In their monograph on human relations, University of Massachusetts psychologists George Levitan and David Zuckerman, conclude this statement: "A person who is more satisfied with his own life, who has never achieved one real relationship before, cannot be sure that he will succeed in life. But anyone who has achieved one relationship before and has failed in many enterprises, can never be considered a failure."

Teen-Age Drinking

Alcoholism is a growing problem among those teenagers who drink, and early this month, CBS will present a special hour-long prime-time special about young alcoholics. "The Boy Who Died Too Much" is the story of Buff Saunders, a young hockey player who lives with his alcoholic father. Despite the fact that he is a super-baller, Buff can't seem to make the emptying of Buff's beer the characteristic of the house and a loser without a sense of team spirit. To cope with his loneliness, he now has friends, and he is now drinking.

Domestic Help

If you don't think your husband is doing enough around the house, you're wrong. Your husband should be doing more, according to a new study by Dr. Charles Chadbourn, a Brigham Young University sociology professor. Chadbourn was one of three professors who questioned 700 randomly selected couples on performances and responsibilities in the family. The study included husbands, incomes, recreational and moral support, recreation plans, sexual partners, and child teachers and disciplinarians.

Lifestyles

Heart Disease. A study conducted by Dr. Charles H. Hawkins of Harvard Medical School indicates that a diet high in cholesterol may increase the risk of heart disease.

Preventng Child Abuse

For young children who have been left alone with people, as exposed to a sense of fear or loneliness, it is important to be aware that they could develop emotional problems later on. The study, conducted by Dr. Kenneth Clark, shows that children who have been left alone for more than a week may develop emotional problems later on. The study, conducted by Dr. Kenneth Clark, shows that children who have been left alone for more than a week may develop emotional problems later on.

Tomorrow's Leaders Today

A recent survey of 23,000 junior and senior high school students indicates that these teenagers are meeting a fairly conservative course toward their self-defined goals. Some 70 percent of the students polled by Educational Communications, Inc., have set definite career plans, 61 percent want to be doctors or lawyers, while 24 percent say they will choose business administration. And most of these teenagers are pursuing these careers in college, not just in high school. Only 8 percent say they will be matriculating, and 43 percent in- diate that they may never have been.
