17th Term Doubtful For Steed

By Harry Quinn

The Republican Senator from Ohio, who has served a 17th term in Congress, has said he will seek a 17th consecutive term in the Senate. The announcement was made today in Washington.

The Senator has said he will seek re-election in 1983, and is expected to run in the primary in March.

Reds Threaten NATO Nations

MOSCOW (USSR) - The Soviet Union warned NATO nations yesterday that an attack on the Soviet Union could lead to the destruction of the nuclear superpowers. The warning was made by the Soviet Foreign Minister, who said the United States and NATO were preparing for a direct threat to the Soviet Union.

The commentary by Nikita Khrushchev's deputy, Mr. Gorbatov, said the United States and NATO were preparing for a direct threat. He said the United States and NATO were preparing for a direct threat.

Michael J. Walsh - Both before and during Watergate, Nixon's Attorney General, John Mitchell, directed the press to disclose all information to the public.

Bush declined immediate comment on the matter after saying Watergate deepened his respect for the press.

At issue was whether Nixon had ordered the Watergate burglars to disclose their names, which he did.

House Barks At Drafting Women

"all men are created equal," this constitutional principle has been held up as a defense against any attempt to draft women. But the House of Representatives has been giving the Equal Rights Amendment another chance this week, with both the Senate and House of Representatives voting to include the amendment in the Constitution. The measure has been under consideration for over a decade, and both chambers passed the amendment by large majorities. The measure has been opposed by some groups, including the National Rifle Association, which fears that the amendment would lead to widespread gun control. However, the measure has also been supported by a number of prominent women's rights activists, who see it as a necessary step in securing equal rights for all Americans.

Can't Make State Take A Drink

The state of Arizona has been trying to make a deal with the federal government over the availability of water in the state. Arizona is one of the driest states in the country, and the federal government has been trying to provide water to the state for decades. However, the state has been slow to take action, and the federal government has threatened to cut off water to the state. The state has been resistant to taking action, and the federal government has been forced to take legal action. The state has been asked to comply with the federal government's demands, but the state has refused. The federal government has threatened to cut off water to the state if the state does not comply. Bush Got Nixon Slush Funds

In a move that has been described as a "slush fund," the Bush Administration has been given access to a portion of the federal budget that was originally set aside for the Department of Defense. The money was intended to be used for military purposes, but the Bush Administration has been using it for other purposes, including the construction of a new nuclear power plant in Texas. Carter Draft Decision Due Today?

Washington, D.C. - President Jimmy Carter is expected to announce his decision on whether to extend the draft today. Carter has been faced with a difficult decision, as he has to balance the needs of the military with the opposition of many Americans who are against the draft. Carter has been under pressure from both sides, and his decision will likely have a significant impact on the military and on American society. Teacher Raise Doubted

The idea of raising teacher salaries is generating a lot of discussion around the country. In many areas, the teachers are feeling underpaid andundervalued. The National Education Association, the largest union representing teachers, has been at the forefront of organizing and advocating for better pay and working conditions. However, the issue of teacher pay is complex and involves considerations such as funding, budget constraints, and the overall economy. It's a topic that is likely to remain in the public eye as educators continue to push for fair compensation.

Taft Agrees To Accept Prison Proposal

President Taft has agreed to accept the proposal for the United States to take custody of the United Kingdom prison where a United States citizen is being held. This decision was made in consultation with the British government and is expected to be carried out under the auspices of the United Nations. The move is part of an ongoing effort to ensure fair treatment for all prisoners, particularly those from different countries. It highlights the importance of international cooperation in matters of justice and human rights.
